BRITAIN IS TOLD U. S. BANS RED WAR: REPORT

Say Truman Vetoes Power Politics

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
(Picture on back page)

LONDON, May 28—Joseph E. Davies, President Truman's special envoy to Britain, has sent a report back to Washington, D. C., on his week-end talks with Prime Minister Churchill in which he was said to have conveyed a message to the British prime minister that the United States would not go to war with Russia and that it would be in the interests of Britain to keep peace with the soviets as far as possible.

Mr. Truman is willing to go along with both Churchill and Marshal Stalin in settling European problems, but it has been made clear to Churchill that America won't back him up in any power politics deal which would involve a conflict between Britain and American on the one hand and Russia on the other.

Won't Knuckle Down

At the same time Mr. Truman isn't inclined to knuckle under to Russia but neither does he want to involve the United States in any balance of power political deal in Europe.

Davies was cordial to Churchill but left the prime minister in no doubt that America, having fought the war for the liberation of Europe, doesn't intend to fight another war for the sake of British interests in Europe.

It was reported tonight Churchill and Davies were agreed upon the necessity for a Big Three meeting altho there was no indication that Stalin would be eager to coöperate. Some sources said if such a meeting took place it would be in Russian occupied Germany. There wasn't much opinion that Stalin would come to Britain.

Today Davies, accompanied by American Ambassador John G. Winant, had lunch with Foreign Minister Eden, followed by discussions at the foreign office lasting several hours.

Expect Parley Call

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—Widespread unrest in unfettered Europe and the uneasy mid-east raised the possibility today that the major powers will call a formal peace conference within a few months—even before Japan's defeat—to remove trouble provoking boundary disputes.

Such a possibility is mentioned increasingly by diplomats here, who also believe that Joseph E. Davies and Harry Hopkins, carrying out special missions for President Truman in London and Moscow respectively, are endeavoring to set the stage for Mr. Truman's first personal conference with Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Powerful as are the decisions of the Big Three powers in themselves, it appeared unlikely that they alone could settle Europe's 30-odd territorial issues—among them those of Poland and Trieste—which already have stirred up trouble and which may breed new disputes.

No Piecemeal Settlement

Necessity for eliminating these present and potential trouble spots is mounting, not only to hasten Europe's reconstruction and return to stability, but also to remove from allied troops the burdens of preventing border clashes.

Sources close to both United States and British top level policy makers say the major powers already have decided against dealing with these disputes on a piecemeal basis. Churchill acknowledged that an exception was made in the case of Poland.

Hopkins Sees Stalin Again

MOSCOW, May 28 (AP)—Harry Hopkins, President Truman's personal representative, conferred with Premier Stalin this evening for the third time in three days.

Hopkins met Stalin for the second time in the Kremlin last night. Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov and United States Ambassador Averell Harriman were present, but the topics were not disclosed.

U. S. Relaxes Restrictions on Building

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—The war production board tonight eased its rigid limitations on construction activity, and increased approximately five-fold the volume of civilian building activity which may be undertaken without special WPB permission.

It did this by raising the dollar limitations on annual outlays for construction and alteration of homes, factories and business places.

As a preliminary to greater relaxations, WPB also removed its ban on grading, ditch digging, and similar earth moving operations, to permit a start on such work in preparation for future building of highways, airports, and other projects.

The decision gives no guarantee that building materials will be available. In fact WPB emphasized in a statement that lumber and other supplies probably will remain scarce "for some time."

Sales Not Affected

The WPB amendment does not lift any of the restrictions which now govern the sale of lumber and building materials, but it does permit an owner to undertake five times as much construction, repair or alteration—if he can get the materials from his lumber yard—than was formerly permitted.

A list of the types of buildings and cost limits now authorized follows:

1. One family house or farmhouse [present limit $200], $1,000; two family house, $2,000; three family house, $3,000; four family house, $4,000, and five family house, $5,000. Previously the cost limit for each type was $200.

2. Barns and other farm construction, exclusive of farm houses, $1,000. Formerly the $1,000 limit included farm houses, with a $200 limit.

3. An irrigation or drainage system serving more than one farm, $1,000; this limit previously applied.

New Limit on Hotels

4. A hotel, apartment building, or other residence for six or more families, $5,000; the old cost limit was $1,000.

5. A store, restaurant, theater, bank, office, laundry, garage, warehouse, or other retail or wholesale service establishment, including a frozen food locker plant, $5,000; for most of these the old limit was $200.

6. Church, hospital, school, college, USO club, public playground, a public building, an orphanage or other charitable building, a post exchange, canal, storm sewer, dam, levee, jetty, or retaining wall, $10,000. For most of these the old limit was $1,000.

7. A factory, logging or lumber camp, bridge, overpass or underpass, tunnel, dock, pier, commercial airport, bus terminal, truck terminal, railroad or street railway building, research laboratory or pilot plant, $25,000; the old limitations ranged from $200 to $5,000.

New Rules on Repairs

8. Any other kind of project, $1,000; this class previously was limited to $200.

The amount of repair and maintenance work which may be done without WPB authorization by hotels, apartment buildings, banks, offices, and stores was set at 20 cents maximum for each square foot of gross floor area.

In addition, the owner may use up all or part of his $5,000 exemption for repairs, but the allowance for new construction would be reduced accordingly.

HE'S ASKING FOR IT

SENATORS TURN DOWN $2,500 A YEAR EXTRA, BUT O.K. IT FOR HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 28—The senate today refused by a vote of 43 to 9 to grant each senator a $2,500 expense account in lieu of a salary increase, but it failed in a 28 to 22 vote to deprive house members of similar benefits.

Senate oldsters said today's action was unprecedented. Never before, they said, has one branch of congress failed to vote itself a financial benefit being received by the other. House members, who voted themselves the $2,500 item May 10, crowded the senate floor today and gleefully watched the upper chamber's antics.

As a result, on July 1 house members will begin drawing $208.33 a month, which they assert is tax free, to add to their $10,000 annual salaries, while the senators will continue to get along on $10,000 a year.

The senate also voted its page boys a dollar a day increase, from $4 to $5, to match the wage in the house. Sen. Overton [D., La.] said he hoped it would not bring on inflation.

Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.], who had fought to bring financial relief to senators, declared after the vote:

"You are apparently determined to go on record as making this a millionaire's club and forcing out the poorer men, so that only men of great wealth can serve in the senate."

Chicago Gets Material for Air Terminal

The city's application for priorities to construct a new $700,000 temporary terminal building at Chicago airport, which has been pending before the war labor board for seven months, has been approved, Mayor Kelly announced yesterday. Ground probably will be broken late this week, he added.

The new building will be located on the west side of Cicero av. between 55th and 59th sts., and will replace the present structure, termed inadequate, which is on Cicero av. at 62d st. Work is to be completed by Nov. 30.

Air Lines to Advance Money

The building's cost will be borne by the eight major air lines which will use its facilities, the mayor said. The money which the companies advance will be repaid by the city in 10 annual instalments in the form of remitted landing fees, rentals, and other incidental charges.

Original cost of the structure was estimated at between $450,000 and $550,000. The $700,000 figure finally was reached, Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt said, when the air lines requested additional space and facilities.

Will Use City Workers

Present plans, concurred in by the air lines, call for at least the foundation of the building to be done with city day labor, Hewitt said.

The priority granted is AA-3, the mayor said, but approval of lumber for decking and partitions, and of sheet metal for ventilating and heating ducts was withheld. Heating equipment also has not been approved by the petroleum administration for war, the mayor said, and a decision is awaited as to whether gas or oil heating facilities will be used.

Provides for New Port

In the event city plans for construction of a new airport materialize within 10 years, the air lines have agreed to absorb the loss of money representing the difference between what they had been repaid and what they would receive in the 10 instalments, Mayor Kelly said.

The city will vote June 4 on a referendum providing for the issuance of 15 million dollars in bonds for new airport construction.

Mayor Kelly left for Washington late yesterday where he will attend a meeting of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce to consider the Lea bill, which authorizes expenditure of 650 million dollars over a 10 year period in 50 per cent grants for municipal airport construction.

ALLIES END CONVOY SYSTEM; ATLANTIC SHIPPING SPEEDED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—The convoy system under which thousands of tons of essential war supplies were transported to Britain and Russia was abandoned in all noncombatant areas tonight, the admiralty announced. "Darken ship," the seagoing equivalent of the blackout, also has ended. The resumption of independent sailing will help speed up allied transport, shipping circles pointed out, since convoys always had to be timed to the speed of the slowest ship.

The convoy system came into operation in 1939, immediately after the declaration of war. Corvettes were specially built for escort work, and miniature aircraft carriers took over control when the convoy passed out of the reach of land based planes.

By 1941 one ship was lost in every 181, the following year one from every 233. The 1943 figure was one from every 344, and last year it was one from every 1,000. Up to this year 9,000 trade convoys had safely entered or cleared British ports. One convoy, it is stated, comprised 150 ships.

12,000 TO LOSE JOBS IN CLOSING OF WILLOW RUN

Detroit, Mich., May 28 [Special]—Twelve thousand workers will be laid off this week as a result of the impending shutdown of the Willow Run bomber plant of the Ford Motor company, it was disclosed today. Immediate termination of all contracts at the huge plane factory was announced. Five thousand of those to be laid off have been employed at Willow Run. The other 7,000 have worked at Ford factories related to Willow Run. Workers at the bomber plant now total 10,805.

Col. Nelson S. Talbott, commanding officer of the central district, army technical command, announced termination of the contracts. Work on the B-24s now under construction, however, will be completed by June 30, when the plant will close.

Col. Talbott said revised requirements for its B-24 bombers in the Pacific theater resulted in the decision to close the plant 30 days earlier than originally scheduled.

British Airways to Fly-Fares Across Atlantic

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—British Overseas Airways corporation will start flying fare paying passengers across the Atlantic within two or three months, it was predicted in air circles here tonight. Few seats will be available for nonpriority passengers until new aircraft become available, it was said.

French Troops Fight Syrians in Two Cities

DAMASCUS, Syria, May 28 (AP)—Street fighting which broke out late yesterday between the French and Syrians in the Arab patriot center of Hama tonight had spread to Homs. Best reports placed casualties in Hama, 150 miles north of Damascus, at more than 200, with a considerable part of that figure expected to be dead.

Acting Premier Jamil Mardam Bey expressed fear a "general clash" might be near.

British authorities indicated that should the fighting flame thru Syria and Lebanon their 9th army units now in training in Syria might be summoned to restore order.

[In Cairo Egyptian Prime Minister Mahmoud Fahmy el-Nokrashi Pasha told the parliament that "the Egyptian government supports with all her might the governments of Syria and Lebanon in their insistence on full independence and sovereignty."]

Shell Government Building

Shells from French 75s in Homs, 30 miles south of Hama, sprayed the Saray [government building] and knocked out one wall. The French also had the main street of the city under continual cross-fire and were shooting at anything that moved.

The Syrians ambushed three French armored automobiles near the French garrison on a hill dominating the town from the southwest and captured all three. Six members of the crews were killed and three wounded.

Latest reports had Bedouins moving into Hama from the desert to the east and French gendarmes occupying the railroad station.

Mardam Bey said "the French fired upon the people of Hama" at dusk on Sunday and "the people then attacked the French garrison."

United States Minister Confers

"The feeling now is so intense at Homs," he said, "that anything may happen there momentarily, and I don't know what may happen in Damascus. The police are trying to keep order but we fear the incidents may grow into a general clash."

United States Minister George Wadsworth conferred for two and a half hours with Mardam Bey and was reported to have urged strongly that the Syrians maintain order until diplomatic action in Paris eases the crisis.

[The French in Paris on Sunday said the colonial troops, whose arrival in Syria touched off the crisis, were not reënforcements but were en route to the orient. The Syrians said the troops were a display of force by the French to obtain bases.]

MORE FRENCH ON WAY?

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DAMASCUS, Syria, May 27 [Delayed]—Since midnight last night Damascus has been seething with rumors that another French warship will arrive shortly at Beirut with a new contingent of French colonial troops to reënforce those already holding strategic positions thruout the Levant states of Syria and Lebanon.

If a warship does bring in reënforcements it might be the spark which will touch off the powder keg the Levant has become in the last few weeks. Syrians and Leb-

YANKS TAKE TWO-THIRDS OF OKINAWA'S CAPITAL

SUPER FORTS HIT WIDE AREA OF 5TH NIPPON CITY

GUAM, May 29 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Escorted by Iwo based Mustang fighters, more than 450 Superfortresses dropped 3,200 tons of fire bombs today on Yokohama, industrial and shipping center. Yokohama, 18 miles south of Tokyo and separated from that recently fired capital by the industrial city of Kawasaki, is Japan's fifth largest city. It was the first big B-29 strike on Yokohama.

Arrow indicates Yokohama

Entire City Is Target

Virtually all the 72 square mile urban area of Yokohama was included in the target for the third fire strike in six days on key mainland objectives. Targets included an area on the waterfront where vital piers, docks, and breakwaters jut out into the bay of Nippon's second greatest seaport.

A secondary target was Yokohama's most modern commercial and residential districts in the southeast sector of the city. Another objective area encompassed industries built on reclaimed land jutting into Tokyo bay in the northeast sector of the city.

Maze of Industries

Yokohama is a maze of warehouses, docks, canals, railroad spurs, and storage areas. Many small chemical plants, extensive freight yards, and waterfront storage areas are included in the target zone.

Yokohama had a population of more than 1,000,000—about 30,000 per square mile. It is the port for Tokyo and all northern Honshu Island, and handled 25 per cent of Japan's pre-war foreign trade.

Most of Japan's automotive industry is concentrated in three Yokohama factories, which classify the city as Nippon's Detroit.

7th Infantry Gains 1,000 Yards in Shuri Drive

GUAM, May 29 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Troops of the United States 10th army made large gains on both eastern and western Okinawa yesterday, but Japanese suicide pilots, attacking in force, sank one light naval unit and inflicted damage on 12 other light units and naval auxiliaries Sunday night.

Seventy-seven attacking planes were destroyed, Adm. Nimitz said in today's bulletin.

The 6th division marines completed occupation of all of Naha west of a north-south canal which connects the Asato river and Naha's main harbor. This is about two-thirds of the area of Okinawa's capital, which once housed 66,000 persons.

From Naha harbor a detachment landed on a tiny island, Yono-Yoma, in the middle of Naha bay. They drew machine gun fire from high ground on the west side of the canal.

Drive into Two Towns

On the east, the 7th division made substantial gains, driving into the towns of Tera and Kamizato, south of Shuri fortress and about 2½ miles southwest of Yonabaru, east coast port city.

Doughboys pressed forward against light resistance in achieving material development of their bulge and now are threatening to cut off Shuri from the southeast. Their advance represented a gain of more than 1,000 yards.

Despite the growing threat to Shuri and indications that the Japanese may be preparing to withdraw from that fortress in the center of the line, Japanese rear guard troops stiffly resisted on Shuri's northern defense perimeter.

Greatest Air Damage

Three divisions in the central sector met artillery, mortar, and machine gun fire.

Nimitz made no mention today of any further signs of Japanese withdrawal from Shuri, which seemed indicated yesterday when he reported Japanese had destroyed caves in the Shuri sector. Correspondent Al Dopking said civilian groups were seen evacuating southward from Shuri.

The night-long Japanese air attack followed a strong assault last Thursday night and Friday morning in which 11 American ships were damaged. Thursday's raid cost the Japanese 166 planes destroyed, including a dozen which attempted to land troops on Yontan air field. These two attacks inflicted the greatest damage to American shipping since all-out Japanese air raids with upwards of 400 planes in early April. Continued neutralization of Japanese staging bases presumably have reduced the enemy's ability to make such strong attacks.

Army mustang fighters from Iwo Island attacked Kasumigaura naval air station, 30 miles northeast of Tokyo, yesterday. They destroyed six Japanese planes and damaged 36 in the air and on the ground. One Mustang was lost to anti-aircraft fire.

Navy search Privateers sank one Japanese destroyer or destroyer escort and one large freighter and five cargo ships in sweeps in Korean waters. They damaged one large freighter, one small cargo ship, and one coastal vessel.

Bomb Saki Islands Again

Escort carrier planes bombed airfield installations in the Saki Islands, southernmost of the Ryukyus, again Sunday.

Other Mustangs ranged thru the Bonins, sinking a small cargo ship at Haha Jima and blasting ground targets.

Navy search planes strafed four small craft off Paramushiro in the Kurile Islands Sunday and marine Hellcat and Corsair fighters attacked installations in the Palaus and on Yap Island.

French Arm Relief Trucks

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DAMASCUS, Syria, May 27 [Delayed]—Trucks sold by the United States to French authorities in the Levant states under definite agreement that they be used only for the collection and distribution of grain to the population of Syria and Lebanon are being employed for military purposes by the French during the present crisis.

This was disclosed today by reliable sources who have witnessed French colonial troops traveling in the trucks, some of which were fitted with machine guns on the top of the cabs.

400 Trucks Sold to French

Four hundred American trucks were sold to the French in the winter of 1943 by arrangement of the lend-lease administration.

The understanding by which they were granted to the French was that they be used by the office des cereales panifiables. This English, Syrian, and French organization, generally known as the wheat office, was established to collect grain from the agricultural regions and distribute it to the city and towns to supplement the Levant's own sketchy distribution system.

Requisitioned by Officials

The deputy director of the wheat office said today 50 trucks were requisitioned by the French military several days ago. Another reliable source said an additional 100 were confiscated in the Aleppo region about the same time, principally in northern Levant.

[An Associated Press dispatch said ten other trucks, loaded with poison bran en route to the Euphrates region, where locusts are menacing crops, also were commandeered by the French in Damascus.]

CHICAGO'S PETE WINS OKINAWA FAME AS PRIVATE

He and Colonel Form a Fighting Team

BY HAROLD SMITH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION ON OKINAWA, May 3 [By Mail]—Pvt. Peter M. Gomez, 25, one of the best known men in the famous 7th division. To know Pete is to understand why. He's not only a superb infantryman; he's also one of those individuals who give off ever changing color like a kaleidoscope.

Pete, whose wife Frances, a dressmaker, lives at 1446 Harrison st., Chicago, is listed in division records as orderly for Col. John [Mickey] Finn, Los Angeles, Cal., commander of the 32d infantry regiment. Actually, however, he's a perfect teammate for that colorful officer despite the wide gulf in their ranks. Legend has it that they've saved each other's lives on more than one combat occasion.

My introduction to them was in a wildly pitching landing vessel returning us to our transport from a Leyte beach. We both stood, clinging to the cowling, as waves drenched us despite our ponchos. Both Mickey and Pete were glorying boyishly in the experience. The first intimation of the disparity in their military station came when Mickey spoke with mock sharpness to Pete, who retorted, "Yeah; you can talk that way because you're a full colonel."

Mickey's a Fighting Man

It should be emphasized that Col. Finn, despite his lively humanness, is no easy mark. He was the first of his West Point class of 1938 to become a full colonel. He received the Purple Heart and the silver star for gallantry at Attu, and the oak leaf cluster in lieu of a second star at Kwajalein.

Pete joined the division as rifleman in the regiment's K company. He got the bronze star on Kwajalein for wiping out a Jap machine gun nest and liquidating two enemy snipers. That was after he'd won his Purple Heart with a machine gun slug in his left arm on Attu. Finn, former executive officer of the 32d, took command at Leyte.

A little later Pete approached Finn. "Say, colonel," he said, "I hear you're looking for an orderly." "Yeah; d'you want the job?" the colonel answered. "It means you'll get a lot of action."

Pete has found out his colonel wasn't kidding.

They Leap Over a Cliff

One day the new commander led most of his regimental staff on a patrol to investigate mysterious Nip actions.

"We went a long way without seeing any Japs," Pete said. "Then some one spotted about a company of Nips only 200 yards away. They found out we were there and came after us—200 against about 20 of us. We backed up, firing as we withdrew.

"Suddenly we were on the edge of a wooded, almost sheer drop of about 40 feet. The Mick and I had no choice but to dive over. The bushes broke our fall and gave us cover. The Japs stood at the top and pitched grenades in our direction."

Pete was offered a staff sergeantcy recently but he turned it down that he might stay with Mickey.

JAPS NAME NEW COMMANDER OF COMBINED FLEET

San Francisco, Cal., May 29 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Adm. Soemu Toyoda has been removed as commander in chief of the Japanese combined fleet and has been appointed chief of the navy general staff, the Japanese Domei agency reported today, quoting a navy ministry announcement.

Adm. Jisaburo Ozawa, vice chief of the naval general staff and president of the naval staff college, succeeds Toyoda.

Toyoda became commander in chief of the fleet in April, 1944, succeeding Adm. Mineichi Koga, who was reported killed in a plane crash in March, 1944.

SANTA FE, KEY TO NORTH LUZON VALLEY, TAKEN

Second Column Moves on Stronghold

MANILA, May 29 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Infantry men of the 25th division captured the strategic town of Santa Fe, north of the Balete pass of northern Luzon, Sunday, while the 32d division secured much of the upper Villa Verde trail, flanking route into the Cagayan valley.

Gen. MacArthur announced the capture today in a bulletin which reported that bombers dropped 450 tons of explosives on enemy positions in support of the drive against the last sizable Japanese position on Luzon.

On Mindanao, MacArthur said, "our forces, with air support, continue to push the enemy farther back into the hills."

Hold Santa Fe Ridges

The 25th pushed into Santa Fe against slight resistance and held ridges on three sides of the town. The Japanese, however, still held high ground to the west, where the 32d division was approaching.

The Yanks counted 175 Japanese dead around Santa Fe, but the majority of the garrison was believed to have retreated to the hills. Capture of Santa Fe, an important road junction, followed a wide encircling move in which the Americans toiled over sheer cliffs to eliminate enemy mountain positions.

Highway No. 5 thus was opened to Santa Fe, but from there the Americans face a 185 mile march thru the Cagayan valley to the seaport of Aparri. The entire route is expected to be bitterly contested.

Meet Jap Resistance

Northeast of Manila the 38th division increased its pressure on the Japanese at Wawa dam amid fierce fighting.

On Mindanao the 24th division hammered enemy troops wedged behind Davao, while the 31st division encountered the first Japanese resistance line since bisecting the Sayre north-south highway last week in a juncture with the 40th and Americal divisions. The infantrymen made contact with a Japanese force about five miles east of Malaybalay.

Light bombers and strafing planes penetrated clouds, squalls, and fog to pound industrial targets along the west coast of Formosa. Alcohol plants, oil refinery facilities, and rail yards were set afire at a cost of two planes.

Knut Hamsun Reported Arrested in Norway

LONDON, May 28 (AP)—The Exchange Telegraph reported from Copenhagen, Denmark, tonight that Knut Hamsun, Norwegian author and Nobel prize winner in literature in 1920, was arrested today at his home in Grimstad, Norway. Hamsun was described in the account as a fervent Nazi supporter in recent years. In 1940 he urged Norwegians to quit the fight against the Germans, and in 1943 was reported to have visited Hitler's headquarters.

1,300 PRISONERS REPORTED LOST ON NAZI WARSHIP

PARIS, May 28 (AP)—Approximately 1,300 prisoners of the Germans, including Dr. Sumner Jackson, urologist of the American hospital in Paris, were killed May 3 when American naval forces sank a small German warship off Hamburg, the physician's son reported in a letter received here.

The son, 18 year old Peter Jackson, said he was with his father on the ship and was saved by another German boat. He said the ship, loaded with prisoners, was sunk after it had ignored orders from American naval vessels to halt.

[There has been no report from official allied sources that United States naval forces had sunk such an enemy warship.]

In his letter young Jackson said the ship sank within 10 minutes after the Americans opened fire on her. He said the water was filled with screaming, drowning prisoners who included Russians, French, Poles, and nationals from most former Nazi occupied European countries. He said they had been herded on to the ship a few days previously.

FORMER MILAN PREFECT GETS DEATH SENTENCE

LONDON, May 28 [Reuters]—Attore Ucelli, ex-prefect of Milan and former vice governor of Rome, was today sentenced to death by the Milan special assize court, Italian radio said tonight.

He was found guilty of preparing for a special tribunal a list of persons of whom 13 were shot in reprisal for the death of Aldo Resega, delegate of the Black Shirt brigade, and of establishing "action squads" in Perugia in 1921.

Sentence of death also was passed on Guido Buffarini-Guidi, former member of the grand Fascist council and minister of the interior in Mussolini's Fascist-republican government, on a charge of collaboration with the Germans and of ordering reprisals for the killing of Aldo Resega.

CHINESE BATTLE INTO JAP LINE ON 850 MILE FRONT

CHUNGKING, May 28 (AP)—Chinese battle groups ground into Japan's trans-China lifeline to southeast Asia at five points along an 850 mile front tonight amid indications the Japanese might be preparing to quit south China.

The indications appeared in the tendency of Japanese forces in Kwangsi province to contract their lines at the expense of disrupting the Indo-China corridor and cutting off a retreat from Indo-China, Thailand [Siam], Burma, and Malaya.

Fear Russian War?

Some Chungking quarters attributed signs of a large scale Japanese withdrawal northward toward the Yangtze river to a Japanese fear that Russia may enter the war. Important changes in Japanese strategy in China were expected within a month.

The comment followed the greatest Chinese victory in months, the recapture of Yungning [Nanning], one of the major Japanese strongholds in south China.

Mop Up Japanese

Fanning out from Yungning, Chinese forces began to mop up enemy remnants, 470 miles south of Chungking and 78 miles from Indo-China, and had cleared the north bank of the Si [West] river.

Ninety miles north of Yungning, the Chinese were attacking along the west wall of the Japanese corridor—and were striking eastward toward the former big United States air base of Liuchow, which was heavily strafed by American 14th air force fighter-bombers.

LLOYD GEORGE LEAVES NOTHING TO SON IN WILL

LONDON, May 29 [Reuters]—Lloyd George, Britain's World War I. premier who died recently, and who at one time was reputed to have made more than four million dollars thru his war memoirs and other writings, has left his son nothing, the Daily Mail reported this morning.

This was disclosed by Maj. Richard Lloyd George who, discussing his father's will, told the Daily Mail last night, "I am left nothing at all. My father was always very disappointed because I would not follow in his footsteps as a politician. I never did want to go into politics and I never shall. But it was something my father could never understand. That is why he has not left me a bean in his will."

The son, who succeeded his father in an earldom, said he would have to get back to his job as a civil engineer if he was going to have any money.

[There are three other children—a son, Gwilym, who is minister of fuel in the Churchill cabinet, and two daughters, Megan Lloyd George and Olwen Carey Evans.]

MORE U. S. SHIPS TO GET WOUNDED SOLDIERS HOME

Army and Navy Add to Mercy Fleet

Washington, D. C., May 28 [Special]—Hospital ships scheduled to be placed in service by the army and navy by midsummer will assure completion within the next three months of the job of bringing home all transportable sick and wounded from Europe.

This was announced in a special report on the nation's mercy fleet issued today by the office of war information.

The report disclosed the army now has 25 and the navy eight hospital ships, with a total carrying capacity of 20,000, and four new ships for the army and three for the navy will be in service within two months. The new ships, it was said, will increase the carrying capacity of the mercy fleet to 30,500.

Convert Italian Liner

Among army hospital ships due for commissioning is the Francis Y. Slanger, formerly the Italian luxury liner Saturnia, which will be the largest and fastest hospital ship in allied service, with a capacity of 1,700, it was said.

Others are the Republic, a former German liner; the Howard A. McCurdy, formerly the President Tyler, and the Armin W. Leuschner, formerly the Willard A. Holbrook.

The new navy ships, the report said, are the Consolation, which was commissioned last week; the Repose and the Sanctuary. These carry 800 patients each. They are completely air conditioned and have equipment "equal to that in the finest metropolitan hospital."

The report said the navy has borne the brunt of hospital transportation in the Pacific. The army now operating 20 ships in the Atlantic, will send these craft to the Pacific as soon as the wounded in Europe are back.

The army hospital ship Dogwood is already Pacific bound, the report said, to be followed shortly by the St. Olaf and in June by the St. Mihiel, the Chateau Thierry, and the Stafford.

YANK CATCHES JAP SHELL AND HURLS IT BACK

BY THOMAS MORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NAHA, Okinawa, May 27 [Delayed]—Patrol reports have convinced 7th division officers that 1,500 to 2,000 Japanese had been killed in the last four days' fighting.

Marine Corp. Dick Travis, McComb, Miss., ran into trouble during the day when a Jap knee mortar shell lit in his mortar platoon. He seized the sputtering shell and threw it back at the Japanese. It exploded harmlessly in midair and Travis cleaned out the mortar position.

In front of Shuri Capt. Layerd C. Watrud, Barnesville, Wis., solved the food and ammunition problem for the 77th division. He set up a line of men 1,000 yards long to pass from hand to hand the necessary supplies.

BRITISH FILL 310,000 JOBS WITH PRISONERS

Likely to Use Many More; Labor Rules Provided

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—Approximately 150,000 German and 160,000 Italian prisoners of war are being employed on agricultural and other jobs in Britain, the war office revealed today.

Discussions are being held between the war office and the ministry of labor, the ministry of agriculture, and the ministry of works to determine the number of Germans that will be needed to bring in the harvest and do other work. It is considered likely that many more thousands will be used.

There are a quarter of a million German prisoners in Britain now. If more are needed they will be sent here from the continent.

Some to Replace Italians

Some Germans will replace Italian "coöperators," as it is believed that a number of these will be sent back to Italy, the war office said.

In addition to tilling the soil, the Germans are being used in drainage work, hedge trimming, road making, and the preparation of building sites in London.

The Germans are to be paid 60 cents to $1.20 weekly. Their employers will be obliged to pay current civilian wages, but the difference between those wages and what the Germans get will go to the government to pay for their keep and to provide the usual prisoner of war articles, such as cigarets, the war office explained.

On Six Day Week

They will work an eight hour day and a six day week, and will be fed rations similar to those of the army which captured them. Since most of the Germans were captured by American troops, they will get rations similar to that of the United States army, with the proviso that they do not eat better than British civilians.

The war office explained that under the Geneva convention German prisoners may be used until their eventual disposition is decided at the peace conference.

LABOR CONTROLS WILL RELAX IN BRITAIN MONDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—Relaxation of labor controls along the lines announced in the house of commons by former Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin will be enforced beginning next Monday, it was revealed today.

The government's powers to direct workers into jobs generally will be limited to men 18 to 50, and women, 18 to 40. Except those still in essential jobs, older and younger workers will be freed from control, as will be women with children under 14, ex-service men and women returning to pre-war jobs, part time workers working less than 30 hours a week, and professional, administrative or executive employes, and certain other grades of workers.

Despite the relaxation millions of British workers still will be drafted into jobs by the ministry of labor. A ministry spokesman promised, however, the compulsion wou. be limited. He added that munitions for the Jap war will be the number one priority, followed by housing, and civilian home and export industries.

30,000 OF 87,000 FREED YANKS EN ROUTE HOME

PARIS, May 28 (AP)—More than 30,000 American troops released from German prison camps are en route to the United States in 41 ships, communications zone headquarters announced today.

In all, 87,000 liberated Americans have been evacuated to reception centers in France and England since the war ended, mainly by plane. Only a comparatively few being held by the Russians for repatriation and an unknown number of stragglers remain to be accounted for.

Since April 1, more than 500,000 allied prisoners of war and displaced French civilians have been brought out of Germany by the United States army transportation corps and the transport command. The mass air evacuation reached a peak May 10, when 36,224 were moved out.

1,000 Nazis Believed Lost in Sinking of Tirpitz

A mission which returned from Tromso, Norway, found that the starboard side of the Tirpitz was blown out for 120 feet from deck to keel.

G I Joe in the Pacific

By ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SOMEWHERE IN CHINA—In November of 1943, a colonel called in Capt. William Watson, Seattle, Wash., and Sgt. Pette Beevers, Cleveland, Miss., and told them to pack up a radio and go as far as they could toward the China coast and set up a station. Their job was to report weather or whatever else they found of interest to the American army.

The captain and Pette made the rounds saying good-by, then headed down the cobblestone path that, on maps, is shown as a first class highway.

The Japs were pretty careless about patrolling China 16 months ago and the captain and Pette got quite a way. The American air forces built fields. Things were humming. Then came the first B-29 raids on Tokyo. The Japs swept over the fields, the air corps barely pulling out in time.

Pick Up a Picker Upper

The captain and Pette put their radio on an old Chinese truck and became rovers. They are still roving. One day they ran across another truck. Its driver, Corp. George Fisher, Brooklyn, N. Y., was lost. So they promoted him to sergeant and added him and his truck. Later they picked up Roughhouse.

Roughhouse is a Chinese with even a bigger grin and longer fingers than most Chinese. His habit of procuring things he thinks the captain might like causes the captain no end of embarrassment.

"I take them back and say it was a mistake but nobody seems to believe me," he wails.

The captain and Pette and George have lived and set up their station in everything from a barn to a hotel. Because the pencil line on maps that marks the Jap-Chinese front changes pretty fast at times, the trio has to be mobile. To keep their two trucks running they acquire alcohol made from pine tree roots.

They're Fed for 50.

They are their own doctors. "We just go to bed and stay there," the captain said. They eat Chinese food. Once they had American rations.

"We settled down that time at an old air strip and when we notified headquarters, they loaded up some planes and sent us stuff. They didn't know how many we were but they figured a base would have 50 men at least so they sent stuff for 50. We lived like kings, then," the captain said.

Traveling in remote China, the captain and his boys had to worry not only about Japs but also about bandits. One day an American officer came driving down a road past their current home in a jeep, alone except for a Chinese interpreter. The captain warned him it was dangerous. The traveler poohpoohed and went on.

Jeep Bounces Back

It wasn't long before the jeep came bouncing back, hitting only every other stone. "You're right," the lone traveler said. "They tried to waylay me. I think they got Charley."

The captain started to lift Charley—Americans call almost all Chinese Charley—from the jeep. The interpreter fell limp. He had been shot squarely thru the heart.

TRAIN KILLS RAILWAY WORKER

John W. Peck, 65, a carpenter employed by the North Western railway, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a North Western passenger train between Forest and Park avs. in River Forest, while crossing the track. He lived in a freight car construction shack in the railroad's Proviso yards west of Melrose Park.

ROMAN PRICES CALLED BEYOND LEGAL CONTROL

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ROME, Italy, May 28—The black market and general exorbitant prices in Rome prompted one American to rhyme: "The costs are quite infernal in the city eternal."

Revisiting Rome after nine months' absence, one is charmed again by the historical aura and the classic vistas, but is astounded at the way prices have run out of control and how little seems to have been done to break up illegal transactions.

In the Sicilian restaurants, which have reopened, an ordinary repast with wine costs about $10. In the super black market eating places the price is double that. A typical menu in one of the "behind closed shutters" establishments lists hors d'oeuvres, spaghetti, fish, beef, pastry, ices, and coffee. The wines offered are chianti, orvieto, and frascati and are good, but the champagne is sickly sweet.

Prefer Black Markets

The bread ration is 250 grams per day and the weekly ration of pasta [generic term for spaghetti, macaroni, etc.] is 2,200 grams. Actually there is more food in Italy now than last year, but many farmers and other producers prefer to deal with black marketeers rather than move their edibles thru legitimate channels.

The fall harvest in the north is expected to be good. This may drive prices down somewhat and reduce the amount of grain the allies have to ship into Italy.

When the allies liberated Rome last year women's silk stockings of excellent quality could be bought the first few days for 60 or 70 cents a pair. Now those of inferior quality when available cost $15 and up. Many Italian women go bare legged.

Clothing Costs Soar

A woman's cotton blouse costs $40. So does a pair of leather sandals. The price of men's clothing is "out of sight." A serge suit, which could be had for $35 in Chicago, would fetch $200 here.

A pack of American cigarets is still the choicest barter item in Rome. Shopkeepers and restaurants are eager to accept cigarets in part payment from customers. Romans stop Americans on the street and offer them $2 and more for a pack of smokes. Some of our soldiers sell.

Civilians in Rome, excluding of course the poorest classes, have plenty of lire. They are eager to get American dollars for them and will give 300 lire [$3 on the authorized pegged rate] to the dollar.

GEN. BOR TAKES COMMAND OF POLISH FORCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28.—Gen. Thadeus Komorowski [Bor], commander of the Polish underground army in the Warsaw rising, has taken over the functions of commander in chief of the Polish armed forces owing allegiance to the exiled regime, it was announced by the Polish president, Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, in London today.

Bor was appointed commander in chief on the resignation of Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, Sept. 30, 1944. After the 63 day battle of Warsaw Bor was taken prisoner by the Germans. While a captive his functions were carried on by the president in conjunction with the minister of war and the chief of staff.

In February the president appointed Gen. Wladislaw Anders as acting commander in chief. Now that Bor has arrived in London after liberation from a prisoner of war camp by allied forces, he automatically takes over from Anders.

BABIES DUMPED ON DOORSTEP OF YANK HOSPITAL

Children Wander in a No Man's Land

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, May 28 (AP)—Sick, undernourished and homeless, 25 eight week old babies were left today on the doorstep of the 134th medical group at Pilsen in Czechoslovakia.

The pitiful war waifs were suffering from tuberculosis, ear infections, or enteritis—inflammation of the intestines. It was believed that they were brought thru the Russian lines from Prague by nurses.

There was no information on the parentage or nationality of the babies. One died soon after reaching Pilsen. The others were in a serious condition.

Hundreds of older homeless children are believed to be wandering between the American and Russian lines.

Yet babies and children are only one of the many problems facing the 134th medical group, which is administering civilian and military hospitals thruout American occupied Czechoslovakia.

Personnel Is Meager

With the personnel equivalent of only one general hospital, the 134th is administering what amounts to 26 general hospitals, or 26,630 patients. German, Czech, French, Belgian, and Russian medical personnel has been drafted to aid in the task.

"It is beyond imagination," said Col. Lee Wilhite, Perkins, Okla., group commander. "There have been times when we had to establish 1,000 bed hospitals overnight."

He said the group's hospitals were all filled to well over capacity, "some as much as 300 per cent."

Hospital trains coming thru the Russian lines into the American zone constitute a major problem. To date the group has handled more than 150,000 patients. Of these 18,000 German casualties have been released, while others are being moved into Bavaria, where conditions are less crowded.

Many Nazi Amputations

Wilhite said that German physicians apparently amputate more freely than allied medical men. He found more than 1,000 amputation cases in one hospital.

Russian prisoners suffered the worst treatment of any in German hands, Wilhite declared.

"In some places conditions were so bad people died as we walked into the rooms," he said. "The buildings were all filthy. In one place what I thought was a spilled package of tobacco on a patient's blanket turned out to be a pile of lice."

36,000 REFUGEES IN BRITAIN WAIT PLANES, SHIPS

Allied Headquarters Blamed for Delay

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—The failure of supreme headquarters, allied expeditionary force, to allocate shipping or aircraft for the return of refugees to continental Europe was blamed today for the enforced stay in Britain of 36,000 homesick Danes, Dutch, Belgians, and Norwegians.

The departments set up by these governments to repatriate their nationals are being besieged by thousands of persons daily, demanding to know why they cannot go home now that the war in Europe is over.

Refugees ready to leave as soon as transportation is available include 15,000 Belgians, 10,000 Dutch, 8,000 Norwegians and 3,000 Danes, spokesmen of the four governments said.

In Allied Pool

Each of these countries owns sufficient shipping to transport its people, but it is all in the allied nations maritime pools and its disposition is in the hands of SHAEF.

"We are waiting for SHAEF to place shipping at our disposal," the Belgian repatriation office said. The Dutch told the same story.

The Norwegians dispatched 700 officials and members of their families to Liverpool yesterday on the first stage of their journey home, but the ship promised by SHAEF to carry nongovernment civilians has been requisitioned, the Norwegian repatriation office said today.

Question of Priority

"It is still a question of military priority," an official said, "and does not look very promising for the immediate future."

Many refugees are blaming the British foreign office for the delay on foreign exit permits. The end of the war in Europe brought thousands of applications for exit visas to the passport control office, but repatriation bureaus report they are coming thru in two weeks to a month.

BRITAIN DENIES AIR RESCUE OF MIHAILOVITCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—As far as is known here, Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, former Yugoslav war minister and leader of the Chetniks, has not been flown from Yugoslavia by the British, the foreign office said today.

"He is still around somewhere," a spokesman said, adding, "We haven't any recent information on him."

The official Yugoslav information center said it couldn't confirm or deny that Mihailovitch had been flown out. "We don't know where he is or what's happened to him," a spokesman said.

TRUMAN HEARS HOOVER'S IDEAS ON WORLD'S FOOD

Dewey, Landon Invited to White House

CIO Is Alarmed

Milwaukee, Wis., May 28 (AP)—The Wisconsin Industrial Union council, CIO, which includes representatives of all CIO unions in the state, went on record last night in opposition to President Truman's invitation to former President Hoover to consult on world food problems. At a meeting of state CIO union representatives, called to discuss the future of the political action committee in Wisconsin, a resolution over the signature of Mel J. Heinritz, secretary of the state CIO council and secretary of the state PAC, was adopted, stating: "We are greatly alarmed at the trend away from the policies of President Roosevelt. This trend seems to be strengthened by the invitation to consult with Herbert Hoover on world food problems."

Washington, D. C., May 28.—The era of good feeling on which President Truman launched his administration was featured by a 45 minute conference with former President Herbert Hoover today and the announcement that White House invitations have been issued to Alf M. Landon and Thomas E. Dewey, two unsuccessful Republican Presidential candidates.

Mr. Hoover, the only living ex-President, came to the White House for the first time since he moved out on March 4, 1933. His mission was to discuss the problem of feeding Europe.

A White House announcement described the meeting as "very pleasant" and said "very constructive ideas" had been received from the man who achieved a world wide reputation as a humanitarian for his relief work in Europe during and after the last war.

As Hoover arrived promptly at the executive mansion, it was announced that former Gov. Landon of Kansas, who opposed Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936 and Gov. Dewey of New York, who ran last fall, had been invited to call on the President. Wendell Willkie, who ran against Roosevelt in 1940, died last fall.

End of Personalized Rule

No specific topics for discussion were mentioned for the Landon and Dewey visits. The invitations served to give notice that the days of personalized government symbolized by Roosevelt are at an end.

There was no indication from the White House that Hoover had been offered a post in connection with relief for liberated Europe.

Hoover arrived five minutes before his 10:30 a. m. appointment in a car driven by Capt. Lewis Strauss, U. S. N., who served with him in World War I. relief operations. The 70 year old former President looked fit.

As he left the White House he waved aside questions by stating, "I'm sorry to disappoint you, but you realize that I've a little experience about these interviews.

"That experience is that the President of the United States has the right to make a statement about what he says to visitors and what visitors say to him. A visitor has no right to say anything. I'm afraid that's all you'll get."

Commended in Congress

The Truman conference with Hoover was applauded on Capitol Hill. Sen. Thomas [D., Okla.], chairman of the senate agriculture committee, said Hoover's record as food administrator and relief director 25 years ago merited his being considered for such a post now. Republicans have frequently urged Hoover's appointment to such a post.

The invitations to Landon and Dewey were announced by White House Press Secretary Ross, who said Mr. Truman has asked both the Republican candidates "to drop in on him for a talk any time they happened to be in Washington."

At Topeka, Kas., Landon issued a statement saying:

"Of course I am delighted to have the opportunity to talk over with the President any question he cares to discuss. I am advising him today that I will be glad to have him fix the time to suit his own convenience."

DREAM FLIVVER OF HITLER WINDS UP ON SCRAP PILE

City of Volkswagons Now a Rubble Heap

FALLERSLEBEN, Germany, May 28 (AP)—Hitler's "Strength Thru Joy Automobile City," a mile from Fallersleben, now is a picture of a vast dream shattered.

Here Hitler started what he boasted would become the world's largest automobile plant, and he made the new city an experiment in attempting to eradicate Christianity.

The cornerstone for the Strength Thru Joy Automobile City [Stadt Des Kraft Durch Freude Volkswagons] was laid May 26, 1938. The community was built with amazing rapidity in a few months.

Promised Cars for All

Hitler promised that every worker would be in a position to become the owner of an air cooled, four cylinder, 24 horsepower, five seater flivver, beginning in the last months of 1939. The price for this people's car was fixed at 990 marks, the equal to $396, and a special volkswagon savings bank was started into which workers could pay as low as five marks monthly.

Hitler secretly was building Germany's counterpart to the jeep, even while Robert Ley's Strength Thru Joy movement was exhibiting samples of the alleged volkswagon in German cities. The 30,000 workers in the factory were sworn to secrecy.

War broke out at the time fixed by Hitler for delivery of the first cars. No worker received his promised car, and his savings account was credited to the war loan.

No Churches Permitted

Only a few production units are intact enough to make a few cars daily for allied military purposes.

Germany's youngest city also is doomed. Here Hitler was determined that citizens and especially children should be reared in nazi paganism. No churches were permitted, but instead a community house was erected as the city's center of "religious activities."

There, for instance, the ceremony of "name giving" as a substitute for Christian baptism was held. The child's father swore that his offspring was of pure Aryan descent, and promised to rear the child in obedience to Adolf Hitler and in consciousness of a solemn duty to perpetuate a race of pure Aryans.

That experiment also is ended.

SENT TO PRISON FARM FOR THEFTS

Sidney Slater, 41, of 685 Forest av., Lake Forest, was sentenced yesterday by Lake County Judge Perry L. Persons to eight months on the state prison farm at Vandalia for stealing four radios and a watch from Ferry Hall, Lake Forest, a girls' school, while employed there as a laborer.

GEN. M'COACH PLANS TO SPEED MEN AND ARMS AGAINST JAPS

Maj. Gen. David McCoach Jr. of Philadelphia, commanding general of the 6th service command, said at a press conference yesterday that the most important function of the command will be to expedite troops and supplies to prosecute the war against Japan. The general, who succeeded Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds last week, came here from the Mediterranean theater, where he was chief engineer.

Maj. Gen. McCoach

"Next in line of importance," said the general, "is our obligation to our sick and wounded service men in the hospitals."

Camp McCoy, Wis., Gen. McCoach explained, will serve as the principal center in this area for retraining of soldiers for the Pacific theater. Other troops probably will be trained at Camp Grant. Fort Sheridan will continue as a separation center for discharged soldiers. German prisoners of war in this command will be returned home when, and if, they no longer are needed.

5 TRUCK LOADS OF FOOD SENT TO TRIESTE BY POPE

TRIESTE, May 28 (AP)—Five large Vatican trucks with trailers, loaded to the tops with food supplies, rolled into Trieste today bringing food for its citizens now experiencing some of their leanest days since the start of the war.

Pope Pius XII. arranged the shipment for distribution by Catholic institutions in Trieste.

The Yugoslav administration has been trying to improve the food situation, and considerable shipments of grain and flour have resulted in a bettering of the quality of the bread.

Marshal Tito's recent note to London and Washington in which he indicated his approval of allied administration of the city and made proposals for Yugoslav participation, appears to have convinced citizens of Trieste that their period of tenseness has vanished for good.

SYRIANS BATTLE FRENCH TROOPS IN TWO CITIES

anese were incensed when the first French cruiser arrived May 6 followed by a second on May 17. When the French delegate general presented to the Levant government the next day an aide memoir outlining details of a proposed treaty, feeling reached a high pitch and stayed there since.

Called for Concessions

The French asked for economic rights, which would give them certain concessions of a favored nation type; strategic rights, which included control of certain air bases plus port facilities in Lebanon, and certain cultural rights. In return, France would transfer the Troupes Speciales to Levant state control but at such time as France deemed right. The Levant governments refused to open negotiations on such terms.

Altho the French militarily are far superior in the Levant as far as troops and equipment are concerned, their situation is worsening. This was caused by desertion in the ranks of the French controled Levant Troupes Speciales. These troops, numbering about 25,000, are largely composed of men from minority groups in Syria and Lebanon.

A sharp flurry broke out in Damascus last night when 30 Troupes Speciales attempted desertion from the garrison there. Senegalese troops chased them and for 15 minutes it was a pitched battle. Three Troupes Speciales were killed and several wounded.

Asked what had happened, Gen. Oliva Roget, French delegate general and military commander, said: "There was nothing to it. Just Syrians scrapping among themselves."

Admit Nations Are Free

This is typical of the French stand on the whole question. They express amazement when a British or American observer asks about their intentions here. They cheerfully acknowledge that France gave Syria and Lebanon full independence in 1941 but maintain they must have a treaty giving them military, economic, and cultural concessions here "to protect the Levant from ambitions of other powers."

They insist that the Levant's future lies with France and seem astounded when the little nations insist equally strongly that they are fully fit to govern themselves and deal with big powers on an equal basis without favoring the French.

Brands France as Aggressor

San Francisco, Cal., May 28 (AP)—Prince Faisal of Saudi Arabia said today there is "no question that France has committed aggression in Syria." The hooded, robed foreign minister, who is the son of King Ibn Saud, told reporters that all the Arab states sympathize with Syria. He indicated they may move jointly in support of the Levantine country if the conflict with France grows.

POLAND MUST BE SOVIET'S FRIEND, SAYS PROFESSOR

Valcaw Szymanowski, professor of physics at the University of Pittsburgh and a Polish citizen, told a news conference yesterday that he believes Poland must be friendly with Russia, Czechoslovakia, and other neighboring countries thru treaties of mutual assistance. Prof. Szymanowski, who returned to the United States in 1939 after seven years in Warsaw, was in Chicago for an address he made Sunday to the Polonia society, a Polish fraternal organization.

He said he had known two of the 16 Poles whom the Russians "spirited away" after they had been chosen by the allies for a mission to Russia. The two he knew belonged to the National Democratic party, which he described as "near fascist and anti-Semitic, advocating a revolution to gain power in a totalitarian government."

Prof. Szymanowski declared himself opposed to any government in Poland with traces of the former regime, and said he also was against the Polish government in exile in London because he did not believe it stands for a Poland that would be friendly with Russia.

MORE MINERS, BUT LESS COAL IN BRITAIN IN '44

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28—Altho the number of miners increased last year by more than 2,000 to a total of 710,000, Britain's output of coal dropped more than 5 million tons compared with 1943, the ministry of fuel reported tonight. Last year's deep mine output was 184,098,400 tons, compared with 194,493,000 tons in 1943. Surface coal production doubled, but this offset only half of the fall in deep mined coal.

The increase in man power is attributed in the report to the abnormal recruitment of men who preferred mining to service in the armed forces, and the intake of boy conscripts. Absenteeism was 13.6 per cent, compared with 12.4 per cent in the previous year.

NEW 'CARETAKER' CABINET TAKES OVER IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, May 28.—Prime Minister Churchill's "caretaker" cabinet formally took over this evening, when the newly appointed ministers went to Buckingham palace for the privy council meeting, recited the oath, and kissed the king's hand, as preliminaries to receiving their seals of office.

Probably the first meeting of the new cabinet will be held tomorrow before it faces the house of commons, freed from the restrictions of the coalition, and back to the cut and thrust of party politics for the first time since May, 1940.

Hand Back Seals

The palace ceremony climaxed a busy day, during which Churchill announced 20 minor government appointments, and the outgoing ministers, headed by laborite Clement Attlee, now once more official leader of the opposition, handed back their seals of office to the king.

The old and new ministers said farewell or got acquainted with their departmental staffs, and later congregated at a tea and cocktail party given by Churchill at 10 Downing st. Appropriately enough, renovators and decorators were busy at No. 10 when the members of the new cabinet appeared.

Tomorrow the amenities will be shelved, and the former labor ministers, including Attlee, Herbert Morrison, and Ernest Bevin, whose last official job today was to announce relaxation of labor controls, will be packed on the opposition front bench, prepared to challenge the government on all points for the 11 remaining days of this parliament's life.

Approximately 1,400 candidates have been chosen so far by the three main political parties to contest the election, and new selections are being announced daily.

Fight to Keep Seats

Three of the four M. P.s holding paid government jobs outside Britain are expected to join the fight personally to retain their seats.

Capt. Harold Balfour, minister resident in West Africa since last November, is already back. Both Edward Grigg, minister resident in the middle east, and Ronald Cross, high commissioner to Australia, will seek reelection to parliament, it is said. Malcolm MacDonald, who has been high commissioner to Canada since 1941, has decided to give up his commons seat.

Appointment of M. P.s to jobs outside Britain, tho a temporary war time measure, has aroused bitter criticism on the ground that it virtually disfranchises their constituencies.

Before taking over his new job as first lord of the admiralty, Brendan Bracken, former minister of information, in a farewell speech, said he is convinced that the voice of the free press will in the end "persuade the governments of all countries that in the freedom of the press democracy has one of its best assets."

BIG PROPAGANDA DRIVE BY REDS IN WEST UKRAINE

MOSCOW, May 28 [Reuters]—A big propaganda drive has begun in the western Ukraine, where 38,000 propagandists and agitators are traveling thru villages and townships. They give commentaries on the news and stimulate study circles, with the soviet union as the chief subject. A total of 13,000 teachers and 4,000,000 text books also have been dispatched to this region from the eastern Ukraine.

DETAILS DELAY MAIN NAZI WAR CRIMINAL TRIALS

Courts Martial to Try Battle Atrocities

PARIS, May 28 (AP) — Germany's principal war criminals cannot be brought to trial for "some time," pending the ironing out of certain details of the international military tribunal which will try the accused, Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States counsel for war crimes, said today.

Jackson and his chief assistant, Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, reached London later in the day, to meet with the united nations war crimes commission.

He told newsmen here that the sites of the trials had not been selected, nor the manner of carrying out death sentences.

Formation Takes Time

"The formation of such a body [the military tribunal] necessarily takes some time, and until it has been concluded we naturally cannot fix any exact date for commencement of these trials," said the American representative.

"As to the United States, however, we are proceeding with the preparation of our part of the international case, and that has been largely my mission here."

Jackson emphasized that the delay pertained only to the trials of prominent Nazis. German soldiers who were involved in battlefield atrocities against Americans, such as the massacre at Malmedy in Belgium, face swift justice in a matter of weeks, he said. Their trials will be equivalent to courts martial, with the international tribunal not concerned.

Jackson said he foresaw no difficulty in establishing a war crimes court, tho the United States, Britain, Russia, and France had yet to agree on certain details. He said that Russia, tho not a member of the war crimes commission, has shown a willingness to "go along with us."

"We have every reason to believe the four countries will come together as to the tribunal method and procedures of prosecution," he told correspondents.

May Try Hitler

Jackson said he would establish offices in Paris, London, and at the seat of government in the American occupation zone of Germany. Associated with him as counsel for the United States will be Gen. Donovan, Sidney S. Alderman of Washington, D. C., Francis M. Shea, assistant United States attorney general, and Gordon Dean and Col. John Amen, both former special assistants to the attorney general.

There was a feeling in some quarters here that Adolf Hitler—unless definitely proved to be dead—might be tried in absentia as a war criminal. If such a trial were ordered, Hitler would be given notice to appear.

Report Bohle's Capture

Won't Hand Over Degrelle

MADRID, Spain, May 28 (AP)—Official Spanish sources said tonight that Spain was not prepared to hand Leon Degrelle, leader of the pro-Nazi Rexist organization, over to Belgian authorities directly.

These sources said that Degrelle's position was considered similar to that of Pierre Laval, and that Spain was prepared to negotiate surrender of both men to an allied commission.

BROWDER SEEKS PRESSURE TO PUT TRUMAN IN LINE

New York, May 28 [Special]—Earl Browder, head of the Communist Political association, has demanded a mass pressure movement be directed at President Truman to bring America's foreign policy more closely in line with Russia's.

Browder, who only last week was rebuked by Jacques Duclos, French Communist leader, for this dissolution of the Communist party in the United States during the war in Europe and supplanting it with the political association, charged in an article in the Sunday Worker, communist publication, that Mr. Truman and his administration are abandoning and betraying the policies of the late President Roosevelt.

Wants Shifts Canceled

Browder urged "an awakened American people" to send "resolutions, letters, and declarations from mass meetings" so that President Truman would "know that he must take up the fight where Roosevelt left off, and only in Roosevelt's manner."

"Only the actions of the masses can cancel out the shifts in the ruling class," he said.

After publication last week of Duclos' 8,000 word attack on Browder's policies, Browder engaged in a series of speeches, editorials, and declarations. Prime Minister Churchill bore the brunt of the assault as "the representative of the British tories."

Thus far in their new shifts, the Communists have gone lightly on President Truman, contending that he came to the Presidency "without adequate preparation."

Reactionary Trend Feared

"But," Browder declared in the Sunday Worker, "history is moving ahead with great speed and Churchill is making a powerful effort to shape that future in a reactionary direction — and is pulling America in his wake in default of an American leadership to resist it."

Meanwhile, two communist led union groups, always prone to follow the shifting official Communist policy, already have started the pressure movement "to restore Roosevelt policies" that have "apparently been seriously compromised if not abandoned. They are the CIO United Office and Professional Workers union and the Greater New York CIO council.

Today's Daily Worker condemned President Truman's White House invitation to Herbert Hoover as "a danger to the world."

RUSSIA EXILES OR KILLS FOES, MRS. LUCE SAYS

New York, May 28 [Special]—Russia is following a policy of exile or death to everybody in every Russian occupied country of Europe who refuses to follow the soviet program, Rep. Luce [R., Conn.] said in an address at the Columbia university Men's club.

Conversely, she said, it is Russian policy to put guns and weapons into the hands of any discontented minority, regardless of their previous political beliefs, provided they follow the soviet program. She said Russian ideas are rushing over Europe and Asia at a greater speed than nazi ideas did 10 years ago.

Russian communism has "incorporated the nazi technique of murder," she charged, and is using murder as an instrument of political policy. She said 13 nations in central Europe are "directly controled by local Communists or indirectly by Communists in Moscow."

Mrs. Luce said that to counteract communism, the United States should support every European statesman who is not a Communist or a Fascist.

ASSERTS POLAND IS TEST TUBE OF RED EXPERIMENT

There can be no settlement of the Russia-Poland controversy as long as the soviet pursues its imperialistic designs and Poles face only a future of slavery, Dr. Gaither P. Warfield, Methodist missionary repatriated from Poland in 1942, told the Illinois district of the Polish-American congress in Thorne hall last night.

Dr. Warfield termed Poland a "test tube" experiment to determine whether justice will prevail in future international relationships. While a prisoner of the Germans, Dr. Warfield said, he saw Nazis machine gun 106 Boy Scouts in a public square in Bydgoszcz.

FRANCE TO TAKE OVER ELECTRIC POWER CONTROL

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, May 28—The provisional French government has nationalized the coal industry of the north since it came into power last September, and it also has taken over the Renault automobile works, and the Gnome and Rhone airplane motor factories.

Gen. de Gaulle announced a few days ago that before the end of the year electric power production and credit institutions also would come under state control.

The left parties, which are demanding sweeping economic and social reforms, want to nationalize practically all industry in France, and the political tendencies of the country are pointing that way.

Operated by the State

The Renault factories and the Gnome and Rhone works under operation by the state are turning out motors and other machinery and equipment, but not on their pre-war scale, due to lack of materials.

The Renault factories in Paris were damaged by the allied bombardment. The Gnome and Rhone factories in the last 10 days have been hampered in their operations by mysterious explosions which have caused casualties and damaged the plants. Investigations have failed to reveal whether the explosions were caused by accident or sabotage.

During the German occupation Gnome and Rhone worked for the Germans, as did Renault. The fact that these two concerns were accused of collaboration is largely responsible for their confiscation and nationalization. Both have been working on allied orders.

Coal Production Low

The French mine owners are to be compensated for their nationalized property thru a long drawn out scheme.

Coal production has been very low in recent months. The industry recently has been tied up by the miners' strike for better food supplies and higher pay. The strike occurred despite the fact that the mines are nationalized.

The French government is seeking to increase its coal supply by claiming the Saar basin mines. It is said that unless coal can be obtained from the Saar the country will be as bad off this winter as it was last.

...the city's THIRSTY people

If it were not for the fact that you are over-burdened with statistics—we would quote you some rather amazing figures on the number of ice cream sodas we serve on a summer's day. We could draw some impressive charts showing the correlation between temperature and ice cream soda intake of Chicagoans.

But, the boys who write advertisements tell us that this scientific stuff is off the beam. No. The thing to do is to stress appetite appeal—to make your mouth water. We think it's dirty pool to do that to you.

—but there's no denying that you'll get a lot of refreshment from a cool, satisfying, frosty chocolate ice cream soda. There's no denying that a bubbling symphony of Hydrox ice cream, delicious chocolate flavor and a geyser of lively soda is a glassful of refreshment that makes you feel good inside and out. There's no denying that the Stineway insistence for quality ingredients attracts more than our normal share of the city's thirsty people.

VETO PROVISION KEEPS PARLEY IN TANGLED STATE

Big Five Try to Pacify Small Nations

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 28—The international security conference is all tangled up tonight in the veto question and conference leaders are wondering whether it can be untangled in time for President Truman's launching of the world peace ship at a final session planned for June 6.

The majority of the 44 small countries are denouncing the provision that would allow one of the Big Five powers—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, and China—to veto even pacific measures for settling an international dispute.

The big powers are trying to pacify the little countries with assurances that the veto will be used very sparingly and will not hurt anybody very much.

Await Capitals' Reaction

Legal experts for the Big Five have evolved an interpretation that any dispute could be brought before the league's security council and discussed but the invocation of arbitration or other peaceful measures to settle it could be blocked by a veto of a single power.

The phraseology of the interpretation has been sent to Moscow, London, Paris, and Chungking for advice and instructions which may delay proceedings several days.

The controversy waxed hotter when Australian Foreign Minister Evatt, a leader of the small nations in this battle, called a press conference and uttered a warning that ratification of the peace league charter will be exceedingly difficult if the veto of Pacific settlements is retained.

"Conciliation is, in our view," said Evatt, "not so much a right or power of the security council as its bounden duty. If that is so, there is no possible justification for this veto. It would be preposterous if, altho 10 of the 11 members of the security council might anxiously desire to attempt conciliation, one single great power could, by exercising its veto, insist that a dispute between two other nations shall drag on indefinitely.

Claims Majority Support

"Our sole object is to remove from the charter a dangerous blot. It will be extremely difficult for any delegate seeking ratification of the charter to justify a special prerogative by which each big power could prohibit the security council from conciliating between disputants."

Evatt claimed support of a majority of the 49 nations. A two-thirds majority—33—would be required, however, to beat the veto. He was asked why he did not oppose also the veto of the use of force.

Another vexatious question is the method of supplying contingents to the international police force. The peace league plan evolved at Dumbarton Oaks provides that forces shall be furnished by nations in accord with special agreements among themselves. Australia proposes that the agreements be made with the security council.

New Zealand Delegate Berendsen supported the amendment, saying it would take years otherwise to provide the international police force required to enforce peace. When in the course of ages, he went on, a police force is organized, some nations will not have engaged to furnish any units and will be happily entrenched on the side lines, leaving to others the work of keeping the peace.

Veto Biggest Issue

The veto question has given many a delegate a severe headache and the American delegation a most trying week-end.

Ambassador Gromyko and his fellow Russian delegates were solemnly inveighing against any softening of the veto descanting upon the imperative need of unity and unanimity of the great powers, if peace is to be preserved, and warning that if a great power should be unable to veto any proposed action to maintain peace and thereby demonstrate the lack of unity there was no telling what would happen to the world.

Not every one was able to follow Gromyko's logic but he was most impressive in manner and even alarming, with mysterious hints that he would not be able to answer for what Marshal Stalin will think and do if he should find that the veto power had been shaved down the tiniest bit at San Francisco. Darkly and ominously he seemed to be suggesting that if anybody lays profane hands upon that veto power, which Mr. Stalin himself invented and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill accepted, Mr. Stalin will refuse to join the world peace league and will order Gromyko and company to pick up their doll rags and come home from San Francisco.

Gromyko even contributed a refinement of the interpretation of the veto power that not even the numerous Philadelphia lawyers on the scene had ever thought of. Under Mr. Roosevelt's so-called voting procedure compromise the league's security council is to decide procedure questions, like a motion to adjourn, by an affirmative vote of any seven of the 11 members. None of the Big Five would be able to veto a procedural decision.

But, ah, one moment, said Gromyko, it first will be necessary to decide what is a procedural question and what is a substantive question. And in deciding that question any one of the Big Five would have the power to veto. The big power could veto a decision that a motion to adjourn was procedural. Therefore, it would be a substantive question and would require the affirmative votes of seven members, including all five big powers, and one power could veto adjournment.

Effort Is Depressing

It was apparent that one power could keep the security council in session day and night indefinitely, with meals sent in and cots provided, but Gromyko said the point was most important, that there might be occasions when the fate of civilization would turn on a motion to adjourn.

All this taken together with the clamor of the small nations commanding a lot of votes against the veto had a most depressing effect on the American delegates. They gathered and they debated and viewed with alarm. Some of the stoutest hearted among them, like State Secretary Stettinius and Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.], feared for the worst if Russia should find that the sacred commitment Mr. Roosevelt made at Yalta had been flouted at San Francisco. Besides, how could we demand that Stalin live up to his Yalta agreement on Poland if we repudiate Mr. Roosevelt's Yalta agreement on the veto power?

Not Bluffing—Connally

Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], out of a long experience in calling bluffs, gave it as his opinion that Mr. Stalin is not bluffing. That gave his colleagues gooseflesh. What if the small nations should knock out or water down the veto and Stalin should quit cold? Why, the whole peace league structure on which the hopes of humanity are pinned would fall like a house of cards. There could not be a peace league without all the big three—America, Britain, and Russia. And, of course, every one knows that Stalin is more interested in building Russian security with puppet states on his borders than in collective security schemes.

All this time Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] was rampaging around like the bull of Bashan, denouncing as indefensible the provision permitting a veto of peaceful settlement of international disputes. The Russians were calling Vandenberg anti-soviet but his colleagues were uninfluenced by such name calling and some of them secretly sympathized with his position.

Scene of Death

James D. Dugan, facing manslaughter charge, after his arrest following Plozay's death.

James Desmond Dugan, 45, owner of the Candy Nut Packing company, will be arraigned in Felony court today on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of John J. Plozay, 40, of 1136 Barry av. Plozay's body was found yesterday beneath a window of Dugan's third story apartment at 3336 Cortland st.

Capt. John T. O'Malley of Shakespeare Avenue station said Dugan's flat showed a fight had taken place and said he believed Plozay might have been pushed out of the window. Neighbors said they saw him clinging to the ledge.

Dugan, who was found unconscious in the apartment, later told police he had surprised his guest ransacking the place and had been struck by him. The inquest was continued until June 7.

DUTCH ADAMANT ON TRUSTEESHIP FOR EAST INDIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 28—With the parting admonition that the Dutch empire will never accept trusteeship arrangements for the Netherlands East Indies under the new league of nations, Hubertus J. Van Mook, lieutenant governor general of the islands, left the world security conference tonight to resume his duties at temporary headquarters in Australia.

"The trusteeship system is a good idea for a number of mandated territories and for new territories to be taken away from Japan, but it would be regarded as a backward step for the Netherlands East Indies," asserted Van Mook. "They are well on the way to full self-government and would not consent to trusteeship. The Dutch can work out this problem very well."

There remains, of course, Van Mook conceded, the job of regaining the Indies, a task which has devolved mainly upon the United States. He said Holland hopes to enlarge its participation in the war. If given the equipment, it has the personnel to build up a navy and air force, he declared.

PEARL HARBOR TRIAL DELAY IS APPROVED

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Legislation further deferring courts-martial for any negligence of duty in the Pearl Harbor disaster of Dec. 7, 1941, was approved today by the senate judiciary committee.

The resolution by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] postpones until six months after defeat of Japan the statute of limitations for any prosecutions.

The statute would expire June 7. It has been advanced several times by congress beyond the ordinary two year expiration. The military forces asked for deferment, the navy particularly contending any information made public might be of benefit to the Japanese.

War Secretary Stimson and Navy Secretary Forrestal announced last Dec. 1 that army and navy boards of inquiry had discovered no grounds for any court-martial proceedings. But each said he intended to continue a personal investigation of the disaster.

THE QUESTION

At what age was your first public performance and what did you do?

WHERE ASKED

Various places.

THE ANSWERS

Frank Sinatra, North Hollywood, Cal.—I was about 5 and was asked to dance for some company at home. Every one was drinking cokes and I refused to dance until they gave me some. I was dancing with the glass in my hand and fell. That's how I got this scar on my face. What a performance!

Comdr. Jack Dempsey, U. S. Coast Guard, 610 S. Canal st.—Back in 1908, when I was about 12, I sang on the stage in a little town in Colorado. It was amateur night at the theater. I had burnt cork on my face and impersonated a little colored boy. I won second place in the contest. The prize was $2.00.

Connee Boswell, New York City—When I was 4 I started taking lessons on the cello. I gave my first concert when I was 5. I guess it was just a recital, but it seemed pretty important to me. Later I started singing popular songs. It certainly was a change from my classical music and the cello.

Jay Jostyn, [Mr. District Attorney], The Lambs club, New York City—I went to St. Joseph's Parochial school in Milwaukee. In the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades we had declamatory contests. I won first place in my first contest while in the 6th grade. That's what started me toward my present profession.

Ted Lewis, band leader, Ambassador Hotel—In Circleville, O., in 1902 I played a clarinet in the band. I was 9 at the time. The band consisted of a group of boys who gave what they liked to call public concerts to obtain experience. I've been playing a clarinet ever since.

ICKES' SON PUT ON STAFF TO TRY WAR CRIMINALS

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Second Lt. Raymond W. Ickes, son of Interior Secretary Ickes, and Ensign William E. Jackson, son of Supreme Court Justice Jackson, were disclosed today as being recent additions to the United States staff for prosecution of axis war criminals.

In the senate today Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] declared the American people want axis leaders tried for war guilt "without dilatory tactics" and without "indulging in high technical procedure."

STETTINIUS PUTS U. S. IN ROLE OF WORLD MEDIATOR

San Francisco, Cal., May 28 (AP).—State Secretary Stettinius chose for the United States tonight the role of mediator among the major nations, in a five-point declaration of foreign policy which climaxed a report on the allied nations conference.

In an address punctuated by a warning to Argentina to put democratic principles into practice at home, Stettinius called on Russia, Britain, France and China to join with the United States in reaching an early "common understanding" on such vexing problems as the establishment of a new Polish government.

The speech by the chairman of the United States delegation was broadcast from his penthouse apartment atop a San Francisco hotel.

Outlines Foreign Policy

In it, the secretary laid down these tenets of a foreign policy which, he said, must attain the strength and continuity that has been "so difficult to achieve in the past history of our country":

1. The capping of final military victory with measures to prevent Germany and Japan from ever again waging war.

2. Extension of wartime "collaboration and community of purpose," with the United States serving as mediator among the great powers when their interests conflict.

3. Application to world affairs of the principle of "fair dealing for all peoples and states, large and small."

4. Advancement of world-wide social and economic conditions which "create a climate for peace."

5. Realization that we live in a world where the sovereignty of even the most powerful nations is not absolute and "there is no such thing as complete freedom of decision for any nation."

Interprets Yalta Accord

Touching on one of the conference's most vital problems, Stettinius gave an American interpretation of the Yalta voting agreement reached by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Marshal Stalin. He said the Crimea proposals required that the Big Five must agree on any enforcement action taken by the proposed world security council.

"There would be a similar requirement on action for the peaceful settlement of disputes, except that a party to a dispute must refrain from voting," Stettinius said.

Reviewing the events of the conference, Stettinius said that in supporting Argentina's admission, the United States did not give a "blanket endorsement of policies" of the Buenos Aires government.

Other Objectives

On other conference problems, Stettinius made these points:

TRUSTEESHIP — The United States stood for a system fostering progress by dependent peoples toward higher living standards and human rights, "including the right to independence or other form of self government, such as federation—whichever the people of the area may choose."

PEACE AIMS—Continued collaboration with major allies to achieve "the utter destruction of German militarism and nazism; and second, the absolute assurance that Germany shall never again be able to threaten its neighbors or disturb the peace of the world. Policy toward Japan is directed to the same end."

ECONOMIC GOALS—Preparation of the economic and social basis for peace to help eliminate in advance the causes of another world war a generation hence.

HUMAN RIGHTS—Provision for a commission to work out an international bill of rights based on the four freedoms.

BILL SIGNED; BRAZIL WILL VOTE ON DEC. 2

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 28 (AP)—President Getulio Vargas today signed an election law setting Dec. 2 for Brazil's first presidential election since 1929 and the first congressional elections since 1934. The law sets up rules governing elections, including the secret ballot and mandatory suffrage for all persons of both sexes more than 18 years of age. It also sets the date for gubernatorial elections throughout Brazil's 20 state for May 6, 1946.

SHACKLED INDIA CALLED BAR TO LASTING PEACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., May 28—There is no possibility of lasting peace in Asia or in the world so long as India, which has one-fifth of the world's population, remains shackled, Mrs. Vijaya Pandit, a leader in the Indian national movement, told a capacity crowd tonight at the Scottish Rite auditorium here.

Mrs. Pandit, who has been arguing for Indian independence on the fringes of the allied nations security conference here, accused Great Britain of perpetuating "a discredited and antiquated system of exploitation which has brought untold human suffering and degradation, which breeds war, denies justice, and makes international cooperation impossible."

TRUMAN URGES HIKE IN BENEFITS TO UNEMPLOYED

$25 a Week for 26 Weeks Asked as Minimum

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 28—President Truman asked congress today to pass emergency legislation boosting benefit payments to unemployed and adding some 13 million workers to those now covered by unemployment compensation.

In a special message to congress, the President declared these changes, which he said are needed to help tide the nation over the reconversion period, should be financed from the federal treasury.

$25 Minimum Proposed

His message carried these specific recommendations:

1. Raise the jobless pay benefits to a minimum of $25 a week, "at least for the worker who has dependents." At present, the maximum varies among states, but Mr. Truman said the maximum is $15 to $18 a week in most states.

2. Increase the length of time to 26 weeks in any one year in which jobless persons may draw benefits. This compares with present varying schedules ranging from a few weeks up to 26 weeks. The message said the time is 16 weeks or less in nearly a third of the states.

Federal Workers Included

3. Extend the coverage of jobless compensation to include all federal workers, totaling about 3 million merchant seamen and other workers not now insured. Under present law, about 30 million of the nation's 43 million nonfarm workers are covered by unemployment insurance.

Those now exempt, aside from farmers, federal employes, and seamen, include domestic help, state and local government workers, self-employed persons, and hired employes in establishments with seven or less workers.

Mr. Truman's message was interpreted as advocating that virtually all exempt classes, with the possible exception of farmers, be brought under the jobless pay program.

The President proposed that the new benefit payments, as at present, be made thru state channels but be financed by federal funds.

Big Reserves Cited

He said the 48 states now have large reserves in unemployment funds, but declared the federal government should undertake to finance the higher benefits because "changes in state laws cannot be effected overnight."

The message was received with little enthusiasm by leaders in congress, which last year rejected almost identical proposals when some members sought to have them included in reconversion legislation.

Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee, to which the message was referred, said he has no immediate plans for pushing the proposed changes.

"I don't like to take issue with the President," Doughton told reporters, "but I don't see any rush of unemployment coming in the near future."

Leaders Taken by Surprise

House leaders said the President did not discuss today's message with them before sending it to Capitol hill and that it took them by surprise. Doughton said his committee is currently making an over-all study of the social security program, including unemployment pay, and may wait until this is completed before considering a new bill. He declined to say when the survey will be finished.

JANITOR AVOIDS JAIL; PAYS $1,500 FOR HITTING BOY

Peter Bruggan, janitor of the building at 1315 Leland av., yesterday made full payment on a judgment of $1,500 returned by a Circuit court jury April 24 in favor of Marion Nelson, 14, of 1360 Wilson av. Nelson, thru his attorney, Arnold Berger, had charged the janitor with assaulting him last winter when he and four other boys were throwing snowballs outside the Leland av. building. The verdict carried a malice count which would have jailed Bruggan if he failed to pay the judgment. Payment was made before Judge Harry M. Fisher in Circuit court, where Bruggan was brought on an attachment.

The voting will continue until June 30 and the results will be made known by the NLRB in Chicago July 9.

An inquest into the murder of James [Red] Fawcett, south side gunman, who was slain by a shotgun assassin in a tavern at 2462 E. 75th st. last Friday night, was continued yesterday to June 20 to give police further time to investigate.

Principal witness at yesterday's inquest was Fawcett's black garbed widow, Genevieve, 37, who sobbed as she testified. Coroner Brodie presided, assisted by his deputy, James Whalen. The jurors were Leo Madigan, regional vice president of McKesson & Robbins; Richard M. Lenihan, vice president of the South Shore National bank; Michael A. Dwyer, editor of the Auburn Parker; E. J. Teply, a gasoline station owner; Warren T. Bulla, communications superintendent for the Natural Gas Pipe Line company, and Robert C. Van Kampen, president of the Hitchcock Publishing company.

Mrs. Fawcett was sitting at the bar in the 75th st. tavern when her husband was shot down a few feet away by a gunman hiding at the rear door. Several of the jurors questioned her.

APPROVE WEAR FOR MILLIGAN'S MISSOURI POST

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP).—The senate judiciary committee today approved without debate President Truman's nomination of Sam Wear of Springfield, Mo., as United States district attorney for western Missouri.

Wear, Missouri Democratic chairmar, was recommended for the job by Sen. Briggs [D., Mo.]. He will succeed Maurice Milligan, Kansas City, whose term expired last September.

Atty. Gen. Biddle, whose resignation recently was accepted by Truman, had favored reappointment of Milligan. Mr. Truman, before becoming President, had said he did not want Milligan reappointed. Milligan had prosecuted the late Tom Pendergast, Kansas City political leader, for violation of the income tax law.

Army Ordered to Seize Plant in South Carolina

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—President Truman today directed War Secretary Stimson to seize and operate the Gaffney Manufacturing company plants at Gaffney, S. 'ROMEO' MEDLEY PUT ON TRIAL AS WOMAN SLAYER

Washington, D. C., May 28 [Special]—Twelve jurors and one alternate had been accepted when the murder trial of dapper John Medley, 43, nemesis of red haired women, was adjourned tonight. One more alternate is required.

Medley went on trial today for the slaying of Mrs. Nancy Boyer, 45, who was shot to death in the kitchen of her fashionable apartment last March 6. She was one of three red haired women whom Medley had left dead behind him during a four month orgy of crime and romance which began when he escaped from the Michigan state prison at Jackson Nov. 27.

Chicago Woman on List

The others were Mrs. Blanche Zimmerman, 38, whose body was found in a hotel bathtub in Chicago Feb. 17, and Laura Fischer, 28, whose body was found Christmas eve in a bathtub in a New Orleans hotel. In each instance Medley had registered as the woman's husband and fled shortly before the body was discovered. The Chicago death was ascribed to natural causes, but he is under indictment for murder in the New Orleans case.

A jury might have been completed today except that attorneys for both sides showed an aversion for red haired women jurors. Two attractive women were excused from service for no apparent reason except their red hair.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough told accepted jurors when he adjourned court that he had decided against locking them up, but asked them not to read newspaper accounts of the trial. He then gave an unprecedented "suggestion" to newspaper men covering the trial that their stories be uncolored and judicial and contain no opinions.

116 Witnesses on Call

The government has 116 witnesses under subpena for the trial, including some from St. Louis, where Medley was captured by the federal bureau of investigation last March 18.

The first government witness is expected to be Mrs. Ida H. Soelter, manager of the apartment house where Mrs. Boyer lived. Mrs. Soelter found the body two days after the slaying, which took place after an all night poker game in which Medley participated.

Mrs. Boyer was a well to do divorcee. The government will attempt to show that a silver fox jacket found in Medley's possession in St. Louis was the property of Mrs. Boyer. A Pittsburgh pawnbroker will be called to identify Medley as a man who pawned Mrs. Boyer's emerald and diamond ring for $250 a week after the slaying.

When Medley escaped from the Michigan prison he was serving a 30 to 60 year sentence for kidnaping and robbery.

HIGH COURT PUTS OFF ITS RECESS UNTIL JUNE 11

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—The Supreme court, scheduled to adjourn today, postponed the start of its summer recess for at least two weeks.

Nearly two score appeals still awaited decision after today's sitting and the tribunal arranged to hold two additional opinion days, next Monday and the following Monday. An announcement said adjournment for the summer would be taken June 11 "unless otherwise ordered."

The court today refused to review a decision that an American citizen of Japanese descent may not refuse to obey his draft board orders on the ground he is detained in a relocation center. The review was asked by Minola Tamesa, who refused to report for a physical examination ordered by his draft board.

It refused for a second time to reconsider its decision affirming the death sentence imposed on Thomas H. Robinson Jr., for the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll.

Accused by Pupils

Mrs. Gertrude F. Casey, former Ridge school teacher in Lyons township, at trial yesterday of her suit against school board official.

The $10,000 false arrest suit brought by Mrs. Gertrude Fitzgerald Casey, former teacher in the Chicago Ridge school in Lyons township, against Henry W. Trapp, former clerk of the school board, will go to a jury in Judge Francis B. Allegretti's division of Superior court today.

Trapp testified yesterday that he and William Walsh, board president, obtained a warrant charging Mrs. Casey with disorderly conduct after she had refused to resign her position. The action was taken, he said, as a result of complaints by parents that pupils in her room were whipped and slapped, and that she joined them in their daily salute to the flag only twice a week.

Appearing as rebuttal witness yesterday, Mrs. Casey denied that she mistreated children in her class. The disorderly conduct charge against her was dismissed when she appeared before Justice of the Peace Henry Pendl, and her false arrest suit followed.

SET $22,500 BOND ON SUSPECT, 17, IN MURDER CASE

Three prisoners, each 17, arrested in connection with the murder last week of Howard Canty, 16, Negro, of 224 E. 60th st. in a street fight, were arraigned yesterday in Boys' court on charges of murder and conspiracy to murder. The hearing was ordered continued until June 5 because police requested time to make other arrests.

Those arraigned are John Ricci, 1114 Vernon Park pl., who confessed firing the shot; Fred Bartuch, 848 Lytle st., and Patsy Gallo, 3336 Polk st.

The bond set for Ricci was $22,500; bail for the others at $12,500 each. Patsy Cardi, 18, of 1032 Polk st., arraigned Saturday on similar charges, is being held under bond of $7,500.

WOMAN DOOMED TO DIE FOR HER SECOND MURDER

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28 [Special]—Mrs. Louise Peete Judson, 63, who was convicted of one murder in 1921, was found guilty of a second murder today by a Superior court jury which withheld a recommendation for leniency and thereby made a death sentence mandatory.

Mrs. Louise Judson

Judge Harold B. Landreth said he would hear motions of attorneys and impose sentence June 1. Mrs. Judson received the verdict calmly and told a matron, "Don't weep for me." While waiting for the jury to report she spent her time reading "The Importance of Living."

The slaying which led to the present trial was that of Mrs. Margaret Logan, whose body was found buried in her flower garden last Dec. 20.

Benefactor Slain

Mrs. Logan, a long time friend of Mrs. Judson, was instrumental in 1943 in obtaining a parole for her from San Quentin penitentiary, where she was then serving a life sentence for the murder in 1920 of Jacob C. Denton, a wealthy mining operator.

Mrs. Judson was paroled to Mrs. Logan and was taken by her into her Pacific Palisades home.

The state charged that the slaying of Mrs. Logan took place last May, and that Mrs. Judson concealed the disappearance of her benefactor by forging monthly parole reports which were sent to authorities regularly in Mrs. Logan's name.

Mrs. Judson got rid of Mrs. Logan's husband after the slaying, the state said, by accusing him of insanity and appearing against him in the role of a foster sister. He was committed to an asylum and died there recently.

Husband Kills Self

Mrs. Judson then took control of Mrs. Logan's home and property, the state said. She met and married Lee Jordan Judson, a Los Angeles business man, who was questioned by police in the early phases of the investigation and committed suicide after the police exonerated him.

In her trial, Mrs. Judson admitted burying the body of Mrs. Logan but said the woman had been slain by her husband.

The Denton slaying in 1920 was similar in many respects to that of Mrs. Logan. His body was found several months after the crime, buried in quicklime under cellar stairs of a home he owned and had rented to the then Mrs. Louise Peete.

READY TO INDICT JANITOR FOR FURNACE DEATH

An indictment charging Joseph Nischt, 30, former janitor at an apartment building at 6855 Clyde av., with the furnace murder of Mrs. Rose Michaelis, 58, of that address, is scheduled to be returned by the grand jury today. At the same time, Prof. W. M. Krogman, University of Chicago anthropologist, will submit to State's Atty. Tuohy a report on a microscopic examination of ashes from the apartment house furnace in which a cadaver was cremated.

Nischt, after his arrest, confessed that he hit Mrs. Michaelis on the head in the alley in back of the apartment house on Feb. 28 and stuffed her body into the furnace. Examination of the ashes failed to reveal any trace of her body.

Nischt subsequently repudiated his confession, and James M. Burke, defense attorney, contends that unless the state can produce proof of Mrs. Michaelis' death, or the corpus delicti, Nischt cannot be tried.

To determine whether a body can be destroyed in a furnace without a trace being left, the state undertook the cremation experiment.

LIFE WAS SHORT IN NAZI PRISON, CORPORAL SAYS

The highest life expectancy in the Buchenwald concentration camp in Germany was six months, Corp. Fred Popham, 28, wrote to his sister, Mrs. Marian Murphy of 2054 Lincoln av., after a recent visit to the horror camp.

Corp. Fred Popham

"The hospital there for 1,200 men was no bigger than a barracks for 60 men in the United States," he wrote. "The death rate must have kept around the 400 mark, which was the capacity of the crematory. I wouldn't have thought it possible for a man to get down to 70 or 75 pounds and live, but I know some of those living skeletons wouldn't weigh more than that.

"After being told what they had been living on and working 16 hours a day and then remembering some of the articles about German prisoners of war at home striking because they were fed 'C' rations too often, I thought that we were the wrong people to be taking care of the master race," he wrote. Popham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Popham, live in Charleston, Coles county.

FOUR SUSPECTS HELD FOR JURY ON RAPE CHARGE

Judge Jacob M. Braude in Boys' court yesterday ordered four young men held to the grand jury in bonds of $5,000 each for the alleged raping May 21 of an 18 year old girl.

The four are Raymond Franco, 18, of 9710 Ewing av.; Nick R. Masciotra, 18, of 10035 Avenue L; Joseph Francisco, 28, of 10855 Avenue H, and Frank Esposita, 17, of 9825 Ewing av.

The girl, a clerical worker, testified that she had been driven by the four to a private garage at 97th st. and Ewing av. where the attack took place. The prisoners admitted having relations with the girl but said she had not resisted their advances.

THE FATE OF CITIES IN THE NEXT WAR

Tokyo, if the statements of the Jap radio announcers bear even a faint resemblance to the truth, is in a bad way. In the two heavy B-29 raids of last week the central business area was burned out and the mansions and palaces of numerous subordinate members of the royal family went up along with universities, airplane plants, and the home workshops that make Japanese industrial slums a military target.

American air bases are moving closer and American planes freed of duties in Europe are winging their way across the Pacific. The only thing that can save the flimsy Japanese cities is surrender.

This process cannot be viewed without foreboding for the future of our own cities in another war. Every war starts where the last one left off. This war started with cities in countries undefended by aircraft at the mercy of their enemy in the air. It was a simple thing for the luftwaffe of 1939 and 1940 to devastate undefended Warsaw and Rotterdam from near-by fields. When the same bombers attacked London and encountered the desperate courage of the British air force they damaged the city but could not destroy it, and eventually were forced by their own losses to suspend their attacks.

American mass production took the terror generated in Europe and made it irresistible. Before the end of the war our air force had driven the nazi air force from the sky and, in spite of the world's greatest concentration of ground defenses, had shattered every important city of Germany. Into the destruction of Japan we can put all the resources, all the experience gained in Europe.

When Mr. Roosevelt, before Pearl Harbor, was seeking to lead this country into the European war, he spoke one day of the danger of air attack on Topeka or Emporia. He knew and every one else knew that there was then no airplane capable of delivering any such attack on a scale of military importance. There is no such airplane today, but there may be one before the next war is launched.

We are attacking Japan because the United States fleet, which is more powerful than all of the other navies of the world together, has carried our forces some 7,000 miles across the Pacific to points from which the attack can be launched. Our air force is able to bomb the Japanese cities with increasing impunity because it has already destroyed most of the Japanese air force.

The day will come, perhaps not too far in the future, when planes will be built which from overseas bases can attack not only New York and San Francisco but Chicago or Denver. Whether they are able to execute those attacks will depend on whether we maintain a navy and off-shore bases to keep the attacker away from our doorstep. Savagery is increasing in the world, not declining. Totalitarian nations have shown their contempt for the nice formalities of diplomacy. The next war can start, not by an attack on Pearl Harbor, but by an attack on New York or Washington.

The wishful thinking which always comes as a result of the tragedy of war has caused millions of Americans to think that there never will be another war merely because they say there must never be another war. Wars have been going on for thousands of years and they always have been terrible.

If the millennium has arrived, San Francisco hardly gives notice of it. What has been produced there is an alliance between three world powers and two pretenders to that status, under which any nation strong enough to menace the peace of the world can veto any check on its aggressions.

We shall come out of this war with the greatest navy and the greatest air force in the world. Our strength will be a source of apprehension to aggressors, whether they have designs on the wealth of America or upon their weaker neighbors. It can be depended upon that the so-called world organization now being discussed will be made an agency to strip this country of its defenses in the name of world peace.

Do the people in the eastern states, who are so avid for Dumbarton Oaks, want to trust a world organization to protect their cities from the fate of Berlin or Tokyo? Are they willing to sink our navy and ground our air force and trust to the promised security of such an organization? It is they, after all, who are most likely to receive the first blow of the next war.

ONCE UPON A TIME THERE WAS A COW

Swift & Co., the Chicago packing house, is observing its 60th anniversary, and the commemorative note states that the enterprise started with a single heifer. That is probably as much meat as could be found now in the collective butcher shops of the city, and the citizen may involuntarily find himself observing a moment of silent tribute in contemplation of Gustavus Swift's heifer of 1885. If the founder were going into business under the beneficent auspices of OPA these days, he would be lucky to assemble enough neck bones for a thin broth. Swift & Co., as they say in the books, has come full cycle. All that's missing is the cow.

FOR BRIGHTER BASEBALL

Mr. Happy Chandler, the baseball commissioner, would endear himself to the fans by bringing about the adoption of a rule intended to prevent pitchers from stalling.

The pitcher stands motionless on the mound, facing the batter. The idea is to jangle the batter's nerves and get him off balance. In retaliation, when the pitcher is about ready to throw, the batter steps out of the box and the whole business then has to start over again. Sometimes this act or, rather, this inaction lasts for several minutes, to be repeated again and again.

The practice may be defended, perhaps, on the ground that baseball is a war of nerves and that stalling is therefore in the spirit of the game. The answer is that baseball is a war of nerves conducted according to rules, whose purpose, among other things, is to keep the game moving. Stalling by the pitchers tends to make an otherwise brisk spectacle dull and stupid. The same reasons which a generation or more ago dictated that the first two fouls be counted as strikes in order to prevent the show from bogging down require that something be done now about stalling on the mound.

Nobody would favor a rule requiring the pitcher to deliver the ball immediately after it reached his hands. He ought to have time to collect himself and get well set. Beyond that, he oughtn't to be indulged. He will still have the advantage of varying the length of time between pitches, tho within narrower limits, and he will still have his change of pace to get the batter off balance. These are all he is legitimately entitled to.

AMERICA AS TRUSTEE

During a long debate at the San Francisco conference, Britain, which has a sordid record of colonial exploitation, and Russia, which enforces political orthodoxy thru terror, seemed to doubt that the United States could be trusted to govern the native populations of conquered Japanese islands with justice. Proposals for an American trusteeship over these bases encountered endless objections.

In view of our clear record in the Philippines the argument seems in retrospect to have been highly artificial. The most eloquent evidence of the fairness of our rule over outlying territories is not to be found in any formal exhibit submitted at the conference, but in the story of Radioman George R. Tweed's experience among the native Chamorros of Guam during the two and one-half years they sheltered him from the Japanese.

Tweed was a member of the Guam naval establishment when the island, defended by only a handful of marines, fell to the Japs on Dec. 13, 1941. Tweed was one of six Americans who took to the bush rather than submit to imprisonment in Japan. The other five men were captured and killed by the Japanese. Tweed, with a price on his head, hid from the Japs until the American invasion force appeared June 11, 1944, and he was finally rescued.

Guam had been under American control since 1898. Practically all of the 24,000 Chamorros spoke English. American sanitation had made their island healthy. Their relations with the American command were friendly. But the great test came with the Japanese occupation, when the Japs tried to win them over thru fear and to get them to collaborate because of the false argument that America was hopelessly beaten and Americans never would come back to the island.

As a lone fugitive among these people, Tweed might have feared betrayal, yet dozens of Chamorros, at the risk of torture and execution, hid him, fed him, and gave him little comforts for 30 months. For a time he possessed a radio and was able to get American news. He distributed a typewritten newspaper among his native friends, becoming, as he said, "a kind of office of war information for Guam. I operated on the principle that truth is the best propaganda."

This was his contribution to morale. The result was that the Chamorros never lost faith that America would return. Tweed's estimate is that no more than 200 Chamorros ever collaborated with the Japs. Confidence, he said, had been built up thru the years by what Americans had done for Guam.

Among Tweed's most devoted friends and protectors were men and women residents of the island of Japanese blood. When they came under suspicion and were beaten or threatened with death, they never uttered a word to jeopardize the American fugitive. The California terrorists who seek to bar the return of the Nisei might study the loyalty and devotion of these Japanese noncitizens with profit.

The Chamorros were touchingly concerned for Tweed's safety, with never a thought of repayment. When Tweed would have surrendered to spare them torture and death, they told him, "The people of Guam feel that as long as you hold out the Americans will come back. If you surrender, they will believe that you have lost your faith and think the Japs have won." To them Tweed was a symbol, the embodiment of their own utter belief in America.

They were bayoneted, hacked with swords, beaten day after day, and still they died with their lips sealed. Tweed's story is a long tribute to their faith and their loyalty—to "people as brave and loyal as any who ever lived under the American flag."

What other country, represented only in the person of a single hunted man, could command an allegiance like that? Month after black month might pass, but these people suffered and endured in the constancy of their belief in America. The trust of this far-off people is our answer to the powers which could not command the loyalty of their subject races and yet dared to impute that we would be faithless in our responsibilities. America is a proven trustee. Our statesmen would be improved if they could share a little of the fierce pride in this country that its sons and daughters harbor in lands far distant from our shores.

A MYTH FROM NIPPON

The prevalence of conflagrations in Japan this spring caused this column to wonder if there is a Fire God in the complex mythology which is blamed for many of the crazy notions in the Japanese mass mind. So we consulted the tomes of pre-war orientalism and found the creature without difficulty. His name is Kagu-tsuchi, and his birth caused the mother and father of the gods, Izanami and Izanagi ["Female Who Invites" and "Male Who Invites"], great distress.

It seems that Kagu-tsuchi was their fourth child. He had been preceded by the Sun Goddess [ancestress of Japan's emperors], the Moon God, and an ill-tempered wretch named Susa-no-o, who apparently represents the idea of evil to which the occident has given many names, starting with the devil.

The birth of the Fire God was an unfortunate event for Izamai, mother of the universe. She became desperately ill thereafter, to the acute distress of her husband, and presently slipped away to the Land of Yomi. In other words, she died. The attempts of her grieving spouse to bring her back from the underworld make a long story, which we shall skip.

To supplement the national policy of militarism and conquest, the state religion of Shintoism pounded such folklore, of which the above is characteristic, into the modern Japanese mind. One may doubt, however, if the plain people of Nippon ever had full comprehension of the terror of Kagu-tsuchi before the fire bombs began to fall by thousands upon their inflammable cities. They are now learning that Kagu-tsuchi is no respecter of the sacred halls and groves where descendants of the Sun Goddess, his elder sister, held imperial court. That old devil, Susa-no-o, is also on the loose.

BUILDING WITH GRIEF

Grief is a tool one must wield carefully:
An ax to clear each dark and timbered slope
Of doubt where vines, and thickets, and debris
Tangle and trip the pilgrimage toward Hope.
Grief is a grim and restless instrument:
O, never let it slip in nerveless hands,
Lest it should leave deep scars of discontent,
The flaming stigma of its mad demands.
Summon the strength to ply it in defense
Of years of loneliness, and fear, and care;
Erect a temple of indifference
And insulate your heart against despair,
So when grief comes to you—it shall in time—
Build on a hill no second growth can climb.

J. M. asks: "Does a soldier who fought in Germany get credit only for five points or does he get credit for each engagement fought on German soil? Please explain the regulation in detail."

Twelve battle stars have been authorized for battles in the European theater. These are Egypt-Libya, Tunisia, Algeria-French Morocco, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, Southern France, Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes, air offensive-Europe, and Germany. Each is a distinct phase of the war and the time element involved in each could have been anything from days to weeks. Each decoration, such as the soldier's medal, bronze star medal, and Purple Heart, count for five points, as do the battle stars. Decorations awarded by allied governments also count for five points. Each month in active service means another point, as does each month overseas. Twelve points are given for each child, with a maximum of 36 points allowable for children. No credit is given for infantryman badges, presidential unit citations, good conduct medals, or being a prisoner of war. Many men were in the enlisted reserve corps for months before being called to active duty, especially those who studied communications. This time does not count. Time served in the army or national guard before Sept. 16, 1940, the effective date of the selective service act, does not count, nor does any time since May 12, the day after the point system was announced.

TREMBLING FROM A NERVE DISORDER

GROWING old manifests itself in different ways. Some remain fairly vigorous and comfortable. In a few less fortunate individuals, certain centers of the brain are affected, with resulting stiffness and tremors of the hands. This condition was originally described by Parkinson in 1817 as "shaking palsy" but is better known today as "paralysis agitans."

The disorder shows no favoritism and the victim may be a banker, a lawyer, or a street vender. Altho the mind remains active and as keen as ever, physical symptoms may become so incapacitating that retirement is necessary.

The malady is associated with senility and rarely is encountered before the age of 40. An exception to this rule, however, is that it has been noted in younger persons who were afflicted with so-called sleeping sickness [encephalitis], especially in the epidemic of 1917. Worry and anxiety may hasten the onset and, in certain cases, it has followed severe psychic shock or injury to the skull.

One of the first reactions is tenseness of the fingers, causing difficulty in performing skilled motions. This may exhibit itself while typing, playing the piano, tying the shoelaces, or buttoning the coat. Trembling develops gradually. Altho it is usually seen in one hand, both sides become involved eventually.

At first the trouble is temporary and noticeable only after exertion or emotional upsets. The shaking movement is typical in that the thumb and index finger rub together as if in the act of rolling a pill. An up and down nodding of the head may be present which is exaggerated by excitement. But complete relaxation occurs during sleep or mental distraction. Osler states that some victims are even capable of threading a needle. In contrast, the writing may be zigzag and unreadable.

The face assumes a masklike expression that is pathetic. The movements of the lips are slow, the eyebrows are elevated, and winking is infrequent. When asked a question, there may be an initial hesitancy in answering but, once started, speech may be so rapid that the patient appears to be in a hurry. The voice is often shrill and piping.

Examination reveals that the stiffened extremities are weak. Any exertion calls for deliberation and changing position is a tedious process. Walking is somewhat similar to talking, leisurely at the start but almost running toward the end. Perhaps late in the disease mental alertness declines.

Cure is difficult but modern therapy affords such relief that comparative comfort may be maintained for years. The drugs used most frequently are hyoscine, belladonna, atropine, and stramonium. In the late stages benzedrine may combat drowsiness and lassitude. The victim must not become bedridden and should attempt to carry on an active life as long as possible. Occupational therapy will provide many interesting and happy days. Massage and exercise ar useful in preventing contractures and lessening rigidity. Surgical relief of this condition is still in the experimental stage.

CAN'T DROOL

F. W. writes: I wish I could drool like the correspondent who wrote you recently. My trouble is no saliva, which makes the chewing and swallowing of food difficult. How can this condition be corrected?

REPLY

Don't wish too hard, for the opposite condition may be just as bad. Your difficulty may be on a nervous basis or it may be associated with excessive smoking, inadequate fluid intake, or an aging process.

BLACK-OUT

A. J. writes: What could have caused an attack of amnesia, lasting about six hours?

REPLY

It may be of psychic origin—of the hysteria type. In certain mental conflicts it is convenient for such a state to exist. The condition may follow injury to the head or taking drugs.

POKY

M. N. writes: What causes a young girl to be so slow at everything—dressing, doing the dishes, etc. She just won't move fast.

REPLY

The love bug. Some individuals cannot be hurried.

The Merry-Go-Round

The war in Europe is over. The war in the Pacific soon may be. When we have peace again, what then? Will it be like that peace of 1919 which began to crumble so swiftly, altho we professed blindness to its crumbling until 1939? Some one has called that 20 year interval between world wars "the long week-end."

What did we do when that other war was over? Well, first we did the shimmy. At the same time we went in for Coué-ism and said aloud, 50 times each morning, 50 times each night, in a rash of auto-intoxication that swept the world, "Every day in every way I get better and better." The thought seemed to be that I got better, but you did not, for with this we sang, "There may be flies on some of you guys, but there ain't no flies on me."

The ladies bobbed their hair and their skirts and abandoned their corsets. Divorce, smaller [if any] families, and companionate marriage came in. Women were vampires, men sheiks. That was at first. Then women became flappers and men jelly beans. Then came a great confusion of the sexes where everything was Freudian and the libido always being freed. Every one prattled of "it," a characteristic of the heroines of Elinor Glyn, Cleopatra, and "most cats." All women honed after this until sex appeal replaced it.

We were disillusioned, and in an effort to forget it we debunked. No man was too great to have his life reduced to ribbons by a popular biography, and as there were few, if any, great men around, we reduced those of the past to our own "human" level by cheap, sleazy biographies. We reveled in what we were told was our stream-of-consciousness, but in reality was our ability to think in gutter terms. Since no man was worthy of our respect, we made heroes of an ape known as Tarzan, a dog known as Rin-Tin-Tin, and an animated paper mouse known as Mickey.

We had time ["on our hands" the song said], and we did our best to destroy it. We played a Chinese game known as mah-jongg. We sat on poles. We ran a little wooden ball up and down a string for hours on end. We called it yo-yo and held national contests to see who could do this most magnificently. We pieced together jigsaw pieces of cardboard until we made them into pictures we already knew. We worked crossword puzzles by day and by night and when the great passion for this dropped, every adult in the country knew that ait was a little island or a hearty meal, and Ra an Egyptian god.

We created the beauty parlor, the "permanent," colored nail polish, the crooner, nylon, the moving jaw of chewing gum, rayon, cellophane, and the instalment plan. The latter was applied to everything except marriage. We had fought a war "for democracy" so we revived the Ku Klux Klan. We went in for Bohemianism, a cult remarkable for bad manners, greasy hair, no painting, and the raising of rents on garrets to such a prohibitive state that true artists had to move out.

We tried to climb the highest mountains, fly the longest flights, build the biggest tombs, and write the longest books. In the latter category it was a tie between one about going with the wind and one about Ulysses; few finished the former and none could understand the latter. We devoured a book about how to make friends and influence people, but it came too late in the period to do any good.

New words came into the language—leftism, directive, totalitarianism, functionalism [but never humanism] psychoanalysis. Every one thought every one else needed the latter, but never himself. In the meantime the bronze statue of the charging doughboy, which had been erected in every town square as its war memorial, became as disregarded as the pile of old Civil war cannon balls alongside it, and the orchestras played dance, dance, dance, little lady. Then we took bets on war. The odds were inordinately against it. It was wholly by accident that we were then singing a song called "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down."

POLITICS IN CHICAGO SCHOOLS

Marquette, Mich., May 22—Your editorial today, "What's Wrong with Our Schools?" was interesting and constructive. Because I have been a public school teacher all of my long life, and, too, because I am pretty well acquainted with the Chicago schools, knowing a number of the older teachers, and was once a candidate for a principalship of one of the grammar schools in your city, I think I can tell you what's wrong: POLITICS, in capital letters.

The schools of Chicago are run for the Kelly machine, not for the boys and girls of Chicago. The teachers are often hired not for their ability to teach, but because they can be made useful to further the ambitions of selfish politics. This is not universally true. There are many good, efficient, and honest teachers in the Chicago system. But the kind of teaching used in Chicago reduces the possibilities to a minimum.

What a crime upon civilization to inflict such injustice upon the boys and girls—the future builders of Chicago.

ARTHUR J. RICHARDSON

WE'LL JUST HAVE TO BROOK IT

Glen Ellyn, Ill., May 22—Your editorial of this date on "Brookish Men" inspires me to do a little nonbrooking of my own.

I will not brook the grammatical lapse in the caption over today's cartoon which says that the "Spoils Belongs" to the victor.

Nor will I brook the statement on page 10, column 6, of today's Tribune that "the dead boy attended Englewood High."

Such things I refuse to brook. What are you going to do about it?

THE BLIND SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Chicago, May 24—We wish to express to The Tribune and the members of its staff our sincere thanks for the inestimable assistance you have given our organization in publishing the notices of its work for the blind thruout the 1944-'45 program. The stories in your columns covering Blind Service association activities have enlisted the constructive public interest of numbers of persons who would otherwise have been uninformed of the many services we render free to Chicago's blind and near blind persons.

HOLDING OUT ON BABY

Chicago, May 23—I have a new son 10 weeks old. I went to the ration board, No. 40-5, to apply for his books. I received them in two days, but every stamp, red and blue, was torn out, until Aug. 31. Also number 1 and 2 shoe stamps.

My baby is on a canned milk formula, requiring red points. It was hard to stretch our points for butter and meat, when I was lucky, and now milk, too. May I inquire what happened to the stamps that are good now?

MRS. DOROTHY KERNESS

HELP FROM FRANCE

Hines, Ill., May 19—That's great news we read about the generosity and helpfulness of our suddenly powerful ally, the Fighting French. It seems they are willing to put two whole divisions into the Pacific, explaining this action by the fact that their prime concern is to relieve our divisions in Europe of their job of occupation so that they [the Americans] can be sent to the Pacific to do the rest of the fighting and dying for La Belle France.

It doesn't take very long to train men for combat duty. Ask some of the boys who found themselves in France after four months in the army. Maybe with a little refresher course, there could be at least a partial rejuvenation of that great French army of 1939. What with all the jerries coming to France for reconstruction, and also the amazing number of healthy young French civilians loose and doing their 8 hour shift in local sidewalk cafes, it seems as tho they could find at least enough for two more combat divisions.

ROBIGO FROM THE E. T. O.

THE LAKE ST. "L"

Oak Park, Ill., May 18—What has happened to the Lake street elevated trains, why don't housewives leave the loop before the rush hour around 5 and 6 o'clock at night? The original eight car expresses going west at night were cut to seven cars some time ago and the six car expresses cut to 5 cars. That was bad enough during the rush hour, but the last few days the seven car expresses have been cut down to six cars and the five cars cut down to four. Are all the people who live on the west side who have the Lake st. "L" as their only means of transportation expected to pack into those few cars?

While waiting 45 minutes for an "L" last night that wasn't overflowing, I noticed other "L" trains with eight cars that were practically empty as they left the loop.

And, finally, one fairly has his clothes torn off by housewives with their arms full of bundles squeezing thru the cars when they should have been home hours ago, because they have all day to shop.

SENECA BUILDS 157 LST'S FOR YANK INVASIONS

Shipyard in a Cornfield Produces All on Time

BY CHARLES CHEADLE

Seneca, Ill., May 28 [Special]—The last of 200 million dollars worth of LST's [landing ship, tanks] to be built in Seneca's now famous corn field which sprouted ships will go down the launching ways here June 16. It will be No. 157 in a string of ships that would make a bridge of steel 10 miles long if tied end to end.

Long before the Fourth of July the navy or coast guard will take over No. 15" and it will go down the Illinois and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, La. That will leave only 6 million dollars worth of temporary buildings, ways, tools, equipment, and machinery to be sold, shipped to other yards, or abandoned if no longer serviceable.

Over 7,000 Workers Depart

All but 3,400 of the 10,900 workers who were here at the peak of employment have gone home—scattered to the four winds. Mechanics, dentists, clerks, housewives, farmers, plumbers, persons from near and far, have gone back to their old jobs, or have found new ones.

The company which conceived the corn field ship yard is the Chicago Bridge & Iron company, which set up a shipbuilding division to handle this special job. The original contract was for 40 LST's, and the first keel was laid June 15, 1942. A rigid production schedule was established which called for a new keel to be laid every four days.

If you will multiply 157 by four and count back a couple of years, you will find that the keel laying schedule was met, and company records show that every ship has been delivered the day, hour, and minute it was due.

Win 5 "E" Awards

The navy is pretty proud of the Seneca operation. Relations with workers have been almost perfect. Five "E" awards have gone to the yard for excellence in production, and low absenteeism and turnover rates. There has been but one minor work stoppage, because of a misunderstanding.

The craft system, a company spokesman said, made possible the meeting of all schedules. The ships are built close to each other, and the separate crafts and task crews move from hull to hull.

The yard swung into efficient operation soon after it was started. The 40th ship, completing the first contract, was delivered to the navy Jan. 20, 1943, which was 21 days ahead of schedule. Construction time later was cut in half, and then still further reduced. Because Seneca had only 1,235 population, and there was bound to be a worker shortage, a two-shift day of nine hours, giving employes 54 hours a week, was adopted and maintained. Workers thus are paid time and one-half for 14 hours each week.

Their Holds Carry Anything

The LST's — workhorses of the navy—have proved the most versatile and adaptable of all naval vessels. The secret of their versatility is a long, clear hold, 30 feet wide and 200 long, two decks in height, which can be packed with tanks, men, equipment, ammunition, hospital beds, planes, or any other cargo or personnel.

An ingenious system of ramps makes loading and unloading a matter of hours instead of days. Electrical power, steam, and air lines are at hand all over the ship to aid in quick transfer of cargo. There is fire protection equipment everywhere, with the most modern, if compact, quarters and facilities for officers and crewmen.

The LST is a flat bottomed ship, 326 feet long, four decks high, and powered with two diesel electric units made by the Electro-Motive corporation of La Grange.

It is unique in hull construction, being made of scores of watertight boxlike compartments, built in other parts of the country and welded together here. It is as nearly unsinkable as any ship, and few have gone down, altho they have taken terrific beatings.

The LST's cost roughly 1½ million dollars each, which is paid to the contractor, plus enough more in equipment, engines, stores, and other items to bring the total cost to 2 millions.

Thieves Crack Safe, Get Narcotics Worth $1,000

Narcotics valued at more than $1,000 were stolen yesterday from the Belmont Medical Supply company, 820 Belmont av. To get the drugs, mostly morphine and cocaine, the thieves cracked a heavy safe.

"Can't you come down, dear? Just long enough to take out this accident policy?"

BOY DUPES CLUB; WINES AND DINES GI'S FOR 20 DAYS

Hoax Discovered as Bill Reaches $620

For 20 days this month GIs who became acquainted with Paul Jones Jr., 17, of 1468 Elmdale av., had the best of everything at the Lake Shore club, 850 Lake Shore dr.

He wined and dined them at steep prices, and bought them expensive hunting knives and rings, and whisky by the bottle as going away presents. Jones charged everything to the account of Adelbert Helmer, 5642 Wayne av., a junior member of the club whose card fell into Jones' possession.

Mistaken for a GI

Jones' lavish entertaining continued until about a week ago when the bill totaled $620. Even then the club had no complaint to make. The management, taking note of Jones' GI haircut, his habit of lounging about in what looked like a soldier's fatigue uniform, and his jovial manner, thought he was a junior member—perhaps just a GI home on leave, with a pocket full of credit.

Jones might have continued his splurge until the club presented its bill at the end of the month, had he observed one of the club's inviolate rules. He was kicked out peremptorily after he bought a couple of beers for gymnasium attendants.

"Sucker," He Writes

Jones was aggrieved. He returned by mail Helmer's membership card with the notation "sucker." After he found Jones was not Helmer, Manager Byford E. Troutt called in military police to search for the supposed GI.

Last night Jones was found and locked up. The MPs traced him thru the smallest item he charged to Helmer's account—a 10 cent telephone call to a north side girl. Jones said Helmer, whom he knew at Senn High school, gave him his membership card to use. Helmer couldn't be found to tell police how he meant Jones to use it.

ASSERTS 60 PCT. OF GI'S PLAN TO IGNORE OLD JOBS

Sixty per cent of the men in the army do not intend to return to their old jobs after the war, Maj. Gen. William F. Tompkins of the army special services division told veterans' employment representatives of the United States employment service from 48 states in the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday.

The conference, called to formulate policies for reemployment of veterans, will hear Maj. Gen. Hershey, national selective service director, and Paul V. McNutt, national war man power director, today.

Gen. Tompkins said that an army survey revealed that only two-fifths of army personnel plan to return to their pre-war jobs. Ninety per cent of men in the army, he said, have benefited from army training and have acquired new skills.

Perry Faulkner, national USES veterans' employment representative, said, "Labor, management, and government have responsibilities in finding jobs for veterans and must cooperate." William H. Spencer, regional WMC director, urged an adequate program for veteran reemployment.

CHICAGO IS EXPECTED TO MAKE FAST RETURN AS A CONVENTION CITY

Chicago is expected to make a rapid comeback as the nation's busiest convention city as soon as war restrictions are lifted, Sherman J. Sexton, president of the Chicago Convention bureau, said yesterday.

He based his statement on a survey just completed which showed that 43 of 72 national organizations with offices in New York City and 38 of 74 similar groups in Washington, D. C., plan to hold their first post-war meetings in Chicago.

There are excellent prospects, he said, that the American Legion may hold its first victory get together of veterans of World Wars I. and II. here. Such a gathering might attract as many as half a million participants, it was said.

REBUKE WALKER FOR MAIL BAN ON MARRIAGE BOOK

Washington, D. C., May 28 [Special]—The United States court of appeals ruled today that Postmaster General Walker had abused the fundamental liberty of a citizen by barring a pamphlet, "Preparing for Marriage," from the mails as obscene.

Justice Henry W. Edgerton held the pamphlet neither "obscene, lewd or lascivious" by 1945 standards, commenting that the 72 year old law under which the postmaster general acted does not mean that "treatment of sex" in printed matter has to be reduced "to the standard of a child's library in the supposed interest of a salacious few."

In a concurring opinion, Justice Thurman Arnold said that "the borderline between obscenity and decency changes with the times, with public taste in literature and with public attitudes on sex instruction."

The case was said to involve somewhat the same issues as the postoffice ban on Esquire magazine, which has been appealed to the same court.

TARDY STUDENT HAS EXCUSES— 10,000 OF THEM

When Ira Torme, 6718 Ridgeland av., an eighth grade pupil at the Parkside elementary school, 6938 East End av., was tardy one day last week, his teacher scolded him and asked where he had been.

"In the school office," he replied.

"You belong in this classroom at 1 o'clock!" she told him.

"Yes, ma'am," was all the pupil had to say.

At recess, the principal called the teacher to tell her that one of her boys had stopped in the office to buy a $10,000 war bond.

Clothing Worth $3,256 Stolen from Loop Shop

Women's clothing, mostly blouses, stockings, and anklets, valued at $3,256, and $100 were stolen from the Kitty Kelly shop at 112 S. State st. by burglars who apparently concealed themselves in the store before it was closed, Sidney Charney, 1359 Estes av., the manager, reported to police yesterday.

BURGLARS TAKE $900 AND CIGARETS
James Callas, owner of the Victory restaurant at 531 Roosevelt rd., yesterday told police burglars took $900 from the cash register, 35 cartons of cigarets and 10 boxes of cigars.

HOW TO OBTAIN 123 MILLION IS TRACTION ISSUE

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

To give Chicago adequate local transportation will require the spending within ten years of 123 million dollars on the present properties of the surface and elevated lines. This figure is from Philip Harrington, city subway commissioner.

In Harrington's opinion the surface lines must have 3,650 new cars and buses, to cost more than 54 millions, and other improvements to cost 13 millions. He has settled on 56 millions as a minimum requirement of the elevated lines, including 1,000 metal cars.

Fund Raising Is Crux

The crux of the traction problem is the raising of this vast sum. For unless the properties can be modernized there is little use in taking the trouble to reorganize and consolidate them.

Mayor Kelly is convinced the only way to guarantee satisfactory service is to establish public ownership. So, too, is Gov. Green. They have coöperated in backing the legislation creating the Chicago Metropolitan Transit authority, which is to be voted on for acceptance or rejection next Monday. The authority, if approved by the voters and the courts, would purchase the two lines with borrowed money and operate and modernize them.

There is no controversy about the poor equipment now used. In the last 20 years the surface lines have bought 85 street cars. The elevated has bought none. The rolling stock of both companies is obsolete—much of it 30 to 40 years old.

Recall 1907 Deal

Chicago's mass transportation system was not always this sort of a headache. A traction ordinance was adopted in 1907 giving the surface lines a 20 year franchise and enabling them to borrow about 100 million dollars, which was spent for improvements that were completed about 1913.

For years this company's earnings were of the bonanza type. Until 1927 interest was paid regularly on all its bonds and dividends made on its stock. Under an agreed formula excess profits were split with the city, and more than 40 millions were paid over to the traction fund, now all spent or committed for subway building.

The surface lines were and still are paying taxes. They are earning interest at 5 per cent for the first mortgage bondholders of 1907. In 15 years, beginning in 1930 and ending a few months ago, their net income applicable to bond service was 89 millions, an average of 6 millions a year. Last year earnings were about 5½ millions.

In 1927 the surface lines had to go into receivership, not for lack of earnings but because the first mortgage bond principal became due then, just as the old franchise expired. The city and the company were unable to agree on a franchise and refunding of the bonds was impossible.

"Longest Receivership"

Thus began the "longest receivership in history." Only a property of high vitality could have earned money under such unfavorable circumstances. It did more; it built up a renewal fund of about 30 million dollars and kept itself, in addition, in a strong cash position. The long receivership, however, virtually wiped out the junior bondholders and stockholders. They have had no return since 1927.

The history of the elevated is different. It prospered during the lush 1920s. It had substantial earnings in 1930 and 1931. For the last 13 years, as a whole, it has had an operating loss. It has had nothing for its security holders. It is in bankruptcy.

One of the great realities of the present situation is that the city thru several administrations has insisted there can be no reorganizations of the elevated and surface lines separately; that there must be an integrated company operating both. It amounts to propping up the elevated lines with the financially stronger surface lines.

[Another article on the traction problem will be published soon.]

ACCUSED HONOR STUDENT GETS 132 IN I. Q. TEST

Judge Frank H. Bicek in Juvenile court yesterday continued until June 6 the case of William O'Brien, 16, Mount Carmel High school honor student, who slugged Horace P. Ramey, 60, a family friend, on May 1 in an attempt to take the latter's car for a high school dance.

O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. O'Brien, Clyde av. and Dundee rd., Homewood, possesses superior intelligence, a psychiatric examination showed. He scored 132 on intelligence quotient tests, an unusually high rating.

Ramey, a sanitary district engineer, testified as to the attack made at his home, 2149 Evans rd., Flossmoor. O'Brien substantiated the testimony. Institutional care was recommended for O'Brien.

FOUND ILL IN HER HOME
Mrs. Dorothea Ross, 24, a divorcee and mother of two children, was revived yesterday after she was found in a semi-conscious state in her home at 4940 Blackstone av., apparently suffering from an overdose of sleeping medicine.

BILL TO INCREASE SUPREME COURT SALARIES LOSES

House Votes Against Boost to $18,000

BY GEORGE TAGGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 28 [Special]—Still smarting from the recent defeat of a bill to raise legislators' salaries, the house tonight defeated an emergency bill to increase pay of state Supreme court justices from $15,000 to $18,000 a year.

"This is the worst insult ever delivered against our highest court," said Rep. Stransky [R., Savanna], who sponsored the bill. "There was no reward for me in handling this bill."

One result is that the 24 judges of the Superior and Circuit courts of Cook county to be elected next Monday will receive $2,000 a year more than the Supreme court justices. Their salary was increased from $15,000 to $17,000 under a bill passed last week with the emergency clause.

Lacked 10 Votes

It would have taken 102 votes under the emergency clause to approve the raise for the Supreme court justices, but only 92 votes were counted for it with 14 against.

Justice Clyde E. Stone of Peoria, who is unopposed and will be re-elected next week, was the reason for the bill being brought up on an emergency basis. If it had passed without the emergency clause the bill would not have become law until July 1 and Justice Stone would have had to wait six years for his raise. Under the law raises can not be voted for incumbent justices. The raise would not have affected the other six justices until their terms expired and they were reelected. Seventy-seven votes would have passed the bill without the emergency clause.

Downstate Circuit judges had their pay boosted from $8,000 to $10,000 a year during this session. Salaries of downstate County and Probate judges also were increased.

Act on Pension Laws

At tonight's session the house also passed a bill to increase contributions of judges to their pension fund from 2½ to 5 per cent of salary. Pensions range up to 50 per cent of salary.

The house passed a bill making many changes in the old age pension laws. The most important provides that even parents with children able to support them must be placed on the rolls if they apply. But the state may sue the children for restitution of the money.

The Illinois public aid commission is authorized by the bill to make periodic surveys of the cost of living. A compromise measure based upon many pending bills, the bill must go to the senate for concurrence.

SCHOOL'S PAPER SALVAGE TO NET $700 FOR VETS

Amundsen High school, which "adopted" Downey Veterans hospital at Great Lakes for its waste paper drive, yesterday turned over to hospital representatives a part of the $700 worth of athletic equipment it expects to buy from the sale of scrap paper.

Two seniors, Donna Lee Johanson and Harold Throop, presented the equipment to Maj. A. S. Mason of the hospital staff in a ceremony at 225 N. Wabash av. Amundsen High set a nation-wide precedent for schools, being the first student body to donate paper campaign proceeds to hospitals for athletic equipment.

John J. Cusack, Cook county American Legion commander, who arranged the presentation thru the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association's Double V [Victory and Veterans] program and the waste paper salvage committee, hailed the high school's act as "an idea which should spread thruout the country."

HOUSE REJECTS NEW HEARING ON CEMETERY BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 28 [Special]—The house tonight blocked an attempt to schedule another hearing on bills to regulate privately owned cemeteries, some of which Atty. Gen. Barrett has charged are part of a "multi-million dollar racket."

A motion to hold another hearing next Tuesday, at which former Gov. John Steele would speak against the bills, was tabled on a 58 to 51 roll call which split party lines.

Rep. Cutler [R., Lewistown], who introduced the bills, charged that an effort was being made to delay action. Barrett at a hearing last week said that some cemetery operators have used "ghoulish practices" in mishandling perpetual care trust funds. The bills would authorize the attorney general to regulate the private cemeteries.

ACCUSE 3 MEN, WOMAN IN GAS STAMP PROBE

Bay City, Mich., May 28 (AP)—Three men and a woman were named in federal grand jury warrants today charging conspiracy to "unlawfully acquire, possess, and transfer" gasoline ration coupons in Flint, Saginaw, and other Michigan cities.

Named by the grand jury after a four months' investigation were Henry Wilson, 29, Flint; J. Walter Girard, 40, a former investigator for the Saginaw OPA district; Edward Shaw, operator of a Flint club, and Ruby Tremayne of Flint.

Arraigned before a United States commissioner, Wilson stood mute to the charge and was remanded to jail in default of $25,000 bond. The other three, along with several not yet named, will be arraigned tomorrow.

BANDIT HOLDS UP MICHIGAN BANK AND GETS $2,000

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 28 (AP)—Threatening the teller with a "time bomb" and revolver, a shabbily dressed man held up the Grandville av. branch of the Peoples National bank today and escaped with $2,000. It was Michigan's first bank holdup since July, 1942.

The robber walked up to Teller Ward Hecker and shoved a note thru the grill stating a "bag on the floor contains a time bomb set to go off in four minutes." He also displayed a revolver.

He scooped up all the currency within reach and ran from the building. State police set up highway blockades in an effort to apprehend the robber.

Defeat Plan for School Board to Run College

Springfield, Ill., May 29 [Special]—A bill to authorize the Chicago board of education to conduct a four year college received the worst beating today in the house of any measure this season. It got only 14 votes out of a required 77. Rep. Sandquist [R., Chicago] sponsored the bill.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

May 28, 1945

MOST Americans think of harems only in connection with Turkey, but the harem system of family life is in operation in northern Illinois and all other areas in which the ringneck pheasant is common.

The standard Turkish rules of harem conduct are observed by pheasants during the nesting season, with one domineering male bird as the boss of several hens. And, as in real harems, the family head may have a varying number of wives and declares open warfare on any male invader of his family living area.

A Field Discovery

One of the men on the Wheaton farm drove a light tractor thru an alfalfa field the other day on a trip to find and uproot the wild mustard weed which is so troublesome this season. His tractor flushed about a dozen pheasant hens which had nests in the lush alfalfa. Only two male ringnecks were sighted during the trip thru this 18 acre field, indicating that each of these two feathered sultans is head of a harem of at least six wives.

Wildlife technicians often have observed this harem phenomenon among pheasants and other upland game birds. A single male bird gains control over a nesting area, usually covering about five acres. If an invading male enters this territory during the nesting season, a rousing cock fight ensues, with the winner chasing his vanquished opponent out of the nesting estate. In the case of the farm alfalfa field, it is fairly obvious that each of the two male ringnecks is head man of a specified section of the field.

Birds Are Smart

There's nothing new about the harem system of family life, but the four pairs of barn swallows which are living in the Wheaton farm house barn have strictly modern ideas on nest building. These birds usually build mud nests on the perpendicular sides of farm rafters, but the swallows in the horse barn must be efficiency experts, because all four pairs built their nests on the topside of metal light shades near the barn ceiling.

By using the flat shades for their nesting bases, the birds require only about half as much mud as they would need for building completely independent nests on the sides of the rafters.

★The GARDEN★

THE farm gardeners believe that most home gardeners are not economical in their culture of onions and cabbages. The average home gardener depends entirely upon onion sets and cabbage sets, both of which are very costly in comparison with the seeds of these two vegetables. The farm gardeners plant only a small fraction of these two vegetables as sets or seedlings, and depend upon seedings in the open row for their main crops.

Last week the men planted two rows of cabbage seeds. Several varieties of late cabbage are practical for this type of planting. These include Surehead, Wisconsin Ballhead, Wisconsin All-Seasons, and Bugner.

Seeds should be sown thinly any time in the next month. When the seedlings germinate and start to crowd each other, they should be thinned to leave only one plant to each 18 to 20 inches.

["The Gardener's Diary," a 58 page booklet published by The Tribune, contains information on the culture of cabbages and all other common vegetables. It is available at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and 435 N. Michigan av., for 15 cents over the counter, 18 cents in stamps or coin by mail.]

CURB ON LABOR WRITS LOSES IN SENATE AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 28—For the fifth time during his legislative career, Sen. Lee [D., Chicago] failed today to get the senate to approve his bill to restrict the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

The bill defeated by a 24 to 20 vote was backed by the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

Lee's bill would require that judges conduct hearings and obtain evidence from both sides before labor injunctions are issued. Opponents replied that the proposal might stir up trouble, spoiling Illinois record for industrial peace.

FOOD SHORTAGE EXAGGERATED RUMOR, U. S. SAYS

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—The department of agriculture, in an official publication, said today that "the many rumors you have heard about acute food shortages have been exaggerated."

"Prospects are that food production in the United States in 1945 may not be as great as in 1944," the fortnightly inter-office magazine USDA declared. "In fact, it may be 5 or 10 per cent below 1944."

The magazine declared "our food supply is adequate to keep us healthy and vigorous, even tho we shall have to make some adjustments in particular foods."

RENEW EFFORTS TO BAN RACIAL PROPERTY CURB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 28—Another attempt to outlaw agreements by property owners not to sell or rent to Negroes was launched today before the Illinois house judiciary committee. Two new bills on the subject have been broadened to include religion and national origin in the ban on racial discrimination.

The measures, sponsored by the five Negro members of the house, would declare restrictive agreements to be contrary to public policy and unenforceable in court.

Bernice Fisher, 1223 E. 57th st., Chicago, a white girl representing the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, at a hearing on the bill, asserted real estate interests have blocked similar legislation in the past to increase profits.

Noboru Honda of Des Plaines said his three Japanese-American brothers are in the army, one on Okinawa, and that his brother-in-law of Japanese extraction was killed in Italy. He said, "What happens to one minority group may happen to another."

ARGUE IN SENATE OVER STATE AIR CONTROL BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 28—Bills to create a state department of aeronautics were assailed and defended today before the senate sitting as a committee of the whole. These state administration measures would empower the new department to control intrastate air commerce, including rates.

Erwin Seago of Chicago, spokesman for nine air lines, the operators of private airports, the Air Transport Association of America, and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, said the operators would prefer a commission form of control to a single director.

Sen. Dick [R., Quincy] said the evident plan is for the new department to act as "propaganda agency and indulgent father to get air lines in the state." Harold Stickler, Chicago lawyer and member of the state aviation commission, who drafted the bills, smilingly conceded this to be true.

The bills will be ready for senate action next week.

STATE PURE FOOD BILL APPROVED BY HOUSE GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., May 28—A bill providing for state control of food, drug, and cosmetic standards and advertising in intrastate commerce was recommended for passage today by the house committee on public health.

Rep. Noble Lee [R., Chicago], dean of the John Marshall Law school, sponsored similar measures in 1941 and 1943 but this is the first time the bill was reported to the floor of the house.

He said numerous workshops in Illinois cities manufacture drugs and cosmetics for sale within the state so as to avoid federal standards.

Under the Lee bill the state department of agriculture would promulgate standards of quality and purity of goods and containers.

False advertising about these products also would be prohibited, but publishers and radio station licenses would not be liable unless they refused to furnish the name and address of the manufacturer, distributor, sellers, or advertising agency.

Penalties for a first offense would be a maximum of six months in jail and a fine of up to $1,000. For a second offense the penalty would go up to a year in jail and $2,000 fine. Court injunctions could be sought against continuation of violations.

Isobel Lindsay and Alice Butz to Bow Sept. 8

BY JUDITH CASS

SATURDAY, Sept. 8, which bids fair to become the most popular debut date on the fall calendar, has been reserved for a tea in the Indian Hill club by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lindsay and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rogers Butz of Winnetka, who will introduce their daughters, Miss Isobel Lindsay and Miss Alice Butz, to society that day. Miss Lindsay, a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school, is finishing her first year at Wheaton college in Massachusetts. Miss Butz, a freshman at Wellesley college, also was graduated from North Shore Country Day.

Miss Margaret Malott Loomis and Miss Margaret Macfarland, who were classmates at the North Shore Country Day school for a number of years and now attend Pine Manor together, will share a debut luncheon in the Indian Hill club during the Christmas holidays. Miss Loomis is one of the four children of the John S. Loomises of Winnetka. Miss Macfarland, who also attended Dobbs Ferry, is a daughter of Mrs. Edwin Keeler of Winnetka and of Henry J. Macfarland of Barrington.

Miss Loomis' elder brother, John Jr., will be graduated June 22 from Yale university, and her sister, Mary Florence, will receive her diploma from the North Shore Country Day school June 8. They have a younger brother, Paul. Miss Macfarland's sister, Mrs. J. Roy West, is living in Winnetka while her husband is overseas.

Other Debut Notes

Mrs. Wayne Wills has invited debutantes of the season to a luncheon Saturday in the Racquet club for Miss Jennifer de Bujac Turner, who will make her bow to society at a tea Dec. 23 in the Highland Park home of her parents, the James Allen Turners. Mrs. Wills is a friend of the bud's mother and grandmother, Mrs. C. Frederick Mather-Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yoe Williams of Highland Park probably will present their daughter, Grace, at a small tea at home during the Christmas holidays. Miss Williams, who attends Northwestern university, has a 17 year old brother, Bob, and a twin sister and brother, Mary and David, who are 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Vallee O. Appel of Highland Park haven't yet decided on a debut date for their daughter, Mary, who will be graduated in June from the Highland Park High school. The Appels have a younger daughter, Nancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Salsman Jr. of Lake Shore dr. are thinking in terms of a Christmas tea for their only child, Margie. Miss Salsman, who will be graduated next month from the Girls' Latin school, will go east to school in the fall, perhaps to Connecticut college. Also on the season's debut list but without plans for a party is Miss Judy Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitt Schultz of Highland Park.

Here and There

Lt. Robert Bartholomay, who has been stationed in England, surprised his father, Herman Bartholomay, and his sister, Miss Vera Marie Bartholomay, by walking into their Winnetka home Sunday. As he has a 30 day leave before reporting to Miami Beach, Fla., he will be here for his sister's marriage June 16 to Thomas P. Nelligan. Lt. Bartholomay's wife will arrive in a few days from Binghamton, N. Y., where she has been living while he was overseas.

Lt. Bartholomay's second cousin, Lt. Henry Bartholomay III., has received the air medal for service in India with the army air forces.

On his way home from the battlefields of Germany, where he was wounded in action in March, is Lt. George S. Isham, who was attached to a field artillery group. Lt. Isham has been a patient in hospitals in France and England. Another brother, Pvt. Robert T. Isham, still is in Germany with the 7th army, and Pvt. Henry P. Isham Jr. is stationed in India with a service squadron of the army air forces. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Isham of Lake Forest.

The Hughston McBains, who recently purchased Mrs. William B. McIlvaine's home in Hubbard Woods, will have their official "housewarming," an informal gathering after 5 p. m., June 17.

Today's Events

The annual spring tea of the Antiquarian society—and probably its only party this year—will be held this afternoon in the Art institute to mark the opening of a special loan exhibition called "The American Craft Tradition in Household Art, 1650-1850." The collection was made by Mrs. Dudley Phelps Sanford, now of Aiken, S. C., and was used to furnish a 17th century house near Boston during the time of Mrs. Sanford's first marriage. Every known type of chest is included in the collection, as well as a great variety of early tables. The exhibit also shows the development

Dear Gurls [and Boys]:

This isn't a colyum but a letter, so I won't hafta worry about grammer and punkuation. Ennyway, the proof reader is a friend of mine and he's gettin' bad eyes correktin' my spellin'. [I can't think why—I kin spel as good as enny white collar gurl.]

It's really in the naycher of a confeshion. Last week the boss sends me a note, kinda formal like, and asks me to be on the corner of State & Madison, Tuesday, the 29th, at noon. I sez to myself, "Whadda y'know!" and honestly, gurls, I felt 10 [why quibble—make it 20!] years younger. Of course, I thought it awful funny he'd choose the busiest corner in the world, but there's no accountin' for tastes, to coin a phrase.

So—I sends him an answer, "Yes, Boss," and I goes right out and gets a facial!

But then, whadda y'a 'spose? I finds out there are to be a lot of other people there—and it's goin' to be a Tribune party—and we're to sell bonds!

Charlie Collins is goin' to be there with his smoothie Line . . . and Arch Ward tellin' his contributers to "Wake Up" and buy bonds . . . and Marcia Winn, with that Winning way of hers. And all of 'em have been out huntin' their constituents [I betcha] for days!

Hurry, Hurry, Hurry

But where will our white collar gurls be during the noon hour today? Eatin' a home-made sandwich in the office [as usual] to save money to buy more bonds!

And where will the bosses be? "In conference" [as usual] to make more money to buy more bonds!

You kin see the editor of this colyum is in a fix!

So, she's askin' you pleeze to swallow that peanut-butter sandwich in a hurry and c'mon over to State & Madison . . . and pleeze bring the boss.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 28—The 157th general assembly of the Presbyterian church today voted to raise $23,320,000 for post-war rehabilitation and restoration work and $3,680,000 capital for stabilizing the ministers' pension fund. The drive, to be instituted at once, aims at completion within 30 months.

This total of 27 million dollars in addition to the regular 10 million dollars for benevolences represents a compromise between the pension board and the war time service commission of the church, with the former originally asking for $7,120,000 and the latter $24,750,000. The two drives were merged, and each year for three years the pension board will receive $300,000 from the regular benevolence budget. In addition, the general assembly of 1947 will decide whether to continue such amortization or whether to make a pension drive.

Debate on the compromise plan was light and only one "No" out of the 318 commissioners [delegates] was heard when the vote was taken. Dr. William Blakeman Lampe of St. Louis, Mo., moderator, explained that a nation-wide committee of laymen will head the merged drives, with regional agencies reaching every church. He added that quotas for local churches probably would be set up.

Nearly 4 million dollars of the post-war fund will be used for reconstruction of dispersed congregations and restoration of the ministry. Other objectives there include provision of Christian literature, evangelistic campaigns, development of Christian youth movements, and rebuilding of destroyed churches. Two and a half millions will be used in Asia.

Domestic uses of the fund include 1 million dollars for 39 Presbyterian colleges, and a similar sum for the purchase of sites for new churches. A slighter small amount was planned for ministry to racial and minority groups in this country. The Rev. Dr. Harold Dalzell, formerly in the clergy staff of Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago, was named director of the war time service commission which will administer the fund.

It's Wrong for Adults to Vie for Little Child's Affections

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Who [or whom, if you are a stickler for form] do you love best?" This is a cruel [and I think stupid] question for any adult to ask of a child. It is wrong for adults to vie jealously for a little child's favor. Yet many do, to the great distress of a loving and intelligent mother, as in the following case:

"It isn't fair to put loving hearted children in the position of grading loves." [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

The baby's aunt was spending the day with her. She would have been less than human if she hadn't adored the child. And the baby loved her, too. That was evident. But it wasn't enough.

"Do you love me, honey? Very much? Do you love me as much as you love Aunt Margaret? Do you love me as much as you love mother? Who do you love best?"

The baby looked at her bewildered. As much as she loved Aunt Margaret? As much as she loved mother? But Aunt Margaret was Aunt Margaret and she loved her as little girls loved their Aunt Margarets. And mother was mother, and she loved her mother as little girls loved their mothers. And she loved the aunt who was asking the question as little girls loved their aunts who ask such questions. She was bewildered. She had never heard any one talk like this before. What did it mean?

I am sure it never occurs to a child to sit down and think whom she loves best in the world, unless some foolish person asks the question.

Each person has a certain place in her life. She loves each one in an entirely different way. All these loves are warm, each in its own way. But an insistent voice rings thru her consciousness: "Which do you love best?"

It isn't fair to put loving hearted children in the position of grading loves. "I love Mummie best, then Daddy next—no, Daddy just the same—then Grandma," and so on. It's almost as if they were forced to price the people they care for, which is just a little cheapening all around. It is likely, too, to make them less honest because more fearful of hurting some one's feelings.

Let them love freely with no questions asked.

Thru the Looking Glass

Babies and very young girls seem to be the only ones who have leg skin that could possibly be called attractive. We older sisters shouldn't flatter ourselves into thinking that we can bare our legs to the public view without grooming and dressing them first. Take a good gander at the women without hose, and without leg makeup. You won't like what you see.

First, there is that old, old problem of superfluous hair. It's a nuisance, but we're stuck with it, and to have it show is certainly an unforgivable sin against good grooming. If you want the "coolth" and the comfort—and the economy of not wearing hose—you'll simply have to remove it, carefully and frequently, so that not one single bit of fuzz mars the exposed leg surface. What method you use doesn't matter—just get it off.

And if you're getting up there in years you have a further obligation. Your skin won't be soft and satiny as a baby's is. You have to scrub it well and oil it well. If it's terribly rough and scaly, try a salt rub, moistening the skin first with tepid water. Follow this with warm, then plenty of cold water. And finally, use a softening lotion. Do this every night and your leg skin will be fine and smooth in the morning before you whip on your substitute for stockings!

Your camouflage stockings, no matter how good the product, just can't look like the nylons of lovely memory if the skin to which they're applied is rough as a washboard. In fact your hose out of a bottle will be bumpy and smeary, and you'll be sorry you ever took up the idea!

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Today's the day, remember, when we hope you'll head for State and Madison sts. with the price of a 7th drive bond in your hot little hand. We Tribune writers will be there, and bond writers will be there—and we'd LOVE to meet you! Time: 12 to 1.

Kalman's Warmly Melodious Music and Patrick's Baritone Best of "Maritza" Revival

"COUNTESS MARITZA"

Revival of the operetta with music by Emmerich Kalman and book and lyrics by Harry B. Smith. Directed by Zella Russell, with ballets by Natalie Komerova, and presented by the Messrs. Shubert in association with the theater management at the Civic Opera house Monday evening, May 28, 1945.

THE CAST

Manya, a gypsy ..... Roxanne Damar
Countess Maritza ..... Helene Arthur
Count Tassilo Endredy ..... Harold Patrick
Tabeko ..... Nat Burns
Stefan ..... Victor Carroll
Prince Populescu ..... Malcolm Lee Beggs
Baron Koloman Zupan ..... Pittman Corry
Zingo ..... Harry K. Morton
Princess Bozena ..... Zella Russell
Dances by Beth Dean, Flower Hajer, Bettina Dearborn, Pittman Corry, and others.

They really missed a bet with this one. For Emmerich Kalman's "Countess Maritza," not heard here in almost a decade, is worth far better than the mediocre revival it got at the Civic Opera house last night. Even in a production often no better than amateur operetta of high school caliber, it is blessed with a warmly lovely score, all Hungarian brilliance and voluptuous gypsy curves, and it has in Harold Patrick a stalwart baritone who held his own in the face of two major hazards—insufficient rehearsal and a costume that didn't fit. Beautifully done, "Countess Maritza" should have lasted out the summer. It may do fairly well as it is, just on the strength of that enchanting music.

Sorry to have a poor memory, but I can't quite believe that the book was as bad 10 years ago as now. Somewhere in the Harry B. Smith tinkering, a lot of curious things have happened to this once Graustarkian tale of a haughty Hungarian countess who loses her heart to a servant, only to discover, of course, that he is a nobleman in disguise. There is now a fat comedian who ejaculates "Bromo Seltzer! Sal Hepatica!" in petulant guise of profanity, and there is a little dancer who shouldn't sing, but keeps on trying, who calls the Baron Zupan, pronounced Shupan, such quaint endearments as Stewpan and Shoestring. There are gypsies in bedraggled costumes that resemble dishmops in motley, an there are wineglasses painted pink inside so that you don't have to fill them, and made so tough outside that not even the hero can smash one when he throws it crashing against some scenery from "Thais." There are some ballets, too, but if you don't mind, we will pretend they never happened.

After Mr. Patrick, the cast declines sharply. Helene Arthur, a slender, rather brittle girl with hoity-toity notions of an uppity countess, sings Maritza adequately, but without the heroine quality that makes you care what happens to her, and the tired gypsy of Roxanne Damar stirs only nostalgia for the piquant days of Odette Myrtil. Mr. Corry is rather better cast than usual as the dancing fiancé, and Harry K. Morton goes assiduously thru his tricks as the medal thief who would have been in his glory with the Goering of more decorated days.

The direction comes under the head of get-the-thing-on-somehow, and the chorus is rather pathetic, as choruses must be when short on talent and shorter on training. But the orchestra under Pierre de Reeder has found itself a score in which "Play Gypsies! Dance Gypsies!" is no more than a gala incident in a happy setting.

Hot Weather Styles Play Up the Bare Look

BY REA SEEGER

With the first real long holiday of the summer staring you in the face, out of doors clothes are tremendously important. All the sun tan fashions are ready, with the one shoulder bare, the other covered model going strong. These come in cottons and jerseys and are the most revolutionary clothes of the hour. Swim suits likewise are made in this startling silhouette. It takes a master designer to cut and fit them in perfect lines that will flatter a good figure or sun tanned skin.

Black is predominant this summer, in simple play clothes and the most sophisticated swim suits. The black day suits are contrasted with giddy colored and printed skirts of the tie-on or wrap-over models. Most of the skirts are simple, gathered to a band, with the side or front buttoned affairs coming in a close second. Everything designed for the coming summer emphasizes this bare look. Off the shoulders, exposed diaphragm cut-outs, extremely brief shorts, very narrow bra tops, and skirts much shorter than in any other year are the vogue.

Simple one-piece dresses cut with one shoulder covered, the other bare, are sensational in slinky jersey. Such pastel colors as dusty pink, yellow, lime, and light blue, as well as white and black prove dramatic contrasts for sun tans, light or dark. These dresses are the simplest models ever seamed — a gathered skirt and the bodice top. If the single shoulder standard doesn't click, try the halter neck models. A good smooth back sun tan is possible with such a back exposure.

BOND RALLY this NOON, come on down and join the crowd. All the feature writers of THE TRIBUNE will appear. This is your chance to see the writers with the readers. The corner of State and Madison is the place. . . . We'll be seeing you.

Girl's Quick Words Scare Away Swain

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Sugar and spice and everything nice, with a touch of ego, selfishness, and bad temper—that's what most little girls are made of. And a dating friendship may be strictly in the dreamy department till a gal becomes too sure of herself [and of her particular boy] and lets those less attractive traits come out. Here's a typical note from a girl who took to scowling constantly and is now surprised that her current Joe no longer has a smile on his face, either:

on the SOLID side

"I'm a junior in high school and have been going with a fellow for about six months. He was just crazy about me—saw me morning, noon, and night. I wasn't particularly fond of him, so I often pretended I was angry when I wasn't and sometimes I sulked just to worry him. Because I saw him so much of the time I became terribly tired of him and told him so—and not in a very nice way, I'm afraid. He said he understood and the next day he took another girl out. A week later I met him and told him that I was sorry but he never asked me for another date. I realize now that I really do like him and compare him to all my other dates. What was wrong with me and why I talked to him as I did, I'll never know. I realize it was all my fault but I think if he liked me as much as he said he did, he'd call me or something. . . ."

Love is blind but only for a while, and your sharp talk probably jolted the boy till it shook the stardust out of his eyes. This mistake may teach you to be polite to all boys and at all times, for you can never tell when you may need one as a date or a friend. The only way you can try to re-attract the Joe in question is to be as charming and friendly as possible whenever you do see him, and he may think he has made a mistake in confusing his dream gal with a young nightmare. It is your turn to try to make amends. Altho boys are tolerant, a little sweetness goes a long way, and this time, little sweetness, you went too far.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of spades.

One of the smoothest bits of larceny that has ever come to my attention was perpetrated by the East of today's hand against an unsuspecting South, who in all fairness must be regarded as a victim of a well laid plot rather than his own gullibility.

Against the final contract of three no trump West made the normal lead of the three of spades and dummy's jack held the trick. The South hand was entered with the queen of hearts and the queen of diamonds played by declarer. This was permitted to hold the trick and the suit was continued, the 10 being finessed. East without the slightest trace of emotion followed with the nine. The queen of spades was now played from dummy driving out the ace. For want of anything better to do, West continued the spade.

Declarer now had nine tricks by merely cashing off top cards, but who could blame him for seeking the extra trick, with the diamond finesse so clearly marked? He therefore returned to his hand with the ace of clubs to lead a diamond. East won with the blank king and ran off enough clubs to beat the contract. When last seen South was in a secluded corner talking to himself.

East's trap was well conceived. South was marked to a certainty with the ace of clubs when he accepted the invitation to go game. The only other cards out were the queen of hearts and the queen of diamonds which he has already shown. It is therefore evident that with normal play declarer has nine tricks which are in plain view. If South can be persuaded that the diamond finesse will work and can thus be induced to release the ace of clubs to take the marked finesse, the defense has a chance. In any event the effort can cost only one trick at worst.

As for the bidding, an overcall, even tho vulnerable, is recommended with the East hand. With such a solid trump suit there is little danger of running into a disastrous double and it may be very vital to indicate to partner the best defense in the hand. With a club lead, declarer would never have a chance to get away with a no trump contract.

SYNOPSIS: Olivia Warburton and her secretary, Winnie Leslie, occupy a cottage, cared for by Tillie, on the Jennesma estate. The Jennesma factory is managed by Dirk Adams, Winnie's fiance. Sybrand Jennesma plans to manufacture his brother Gerrit's latest invention, a car motor, and hopes to interest Morgan Riley. Sen. North, Riley's investigator, falls in love with Olivia. Jason Kimball, in charge of publicity, is fond of Winnie. The oft-married Hilda Jennesma Paradine claims money is missing from her cottage. Hilda is found murdered, a knife in her back. Tillie informs Police Lt. French that Olivia, who walks in her sleep, went downstairs in the night and took the knife from the kitchen. The missing money is found in Winnie's room. Eddie Paradine heard nothing. He is not familiar with Hilda's will. Dirk was with Hilda from 1:30 to 2 a. m. Olivia finds herself turning to Sen. North, tho there is a barrier, a secret marriage in her youth. Jerrold Corbin, Hilda's first husband, is upset to learn Hilda left him only $1,000. Tillie is poisoned. Arsenic is found in her chocolates. Olivia has a box of chocolates with one layer partly gone. Gerrit receives three anonymous threats and Kim four unsigned telegrams. Three days before her death Tillie deposited $5,000 in cash in her bank. Tillie bought arsenic from the druggist. A fourth threat is addressed to Gerrit. The knife is found in Olivia's garden. Eddie disappears after burning papers. Dirk's L. O. U. for $5,000 is found among Hilda's things and he is held. Gerrit shows interest in Olivia's warning note. Gerrit is attacked by a large man with a knife and is wounded but refuses to have a doctor. There is no sign of battle where the attack occurred. Winnie is unfriendly when Dirk is released. There is a dark stain on Dirk's pants. Opening Olivia's warning, French finds a blank paper. Only Gerrit's blood is on the leaves. No knife is found. A reward is offered for Eddie Paradine.

INSTALMENT XXXII.

RELEASED

The De Kuipers house was a huge Georgian masterpiece of dark red brick. Mrs. De Kuipers, in a fluffy pink frock with cheeks to match, answered the bell. The maid was out. Her startled baby-blue eyes blinked at the bad news. Tears shone on her curly lashes.

She admitted Paradine was there. The detective found Eddie in a fluffy ruffled pink suite upstairs, slowly gagging to death on luxury. His Angela wept all the way downstairs and watched him drive away.

"She kidnaped me," Eddie gasped.

"You think you can make that stick?" sneered the detective.

"I dare you to go back and call on her. You're her type. You wear pants! What a narrow squeak."

Since the polygraph operator was in Chicago taking a refresher course, Edward Paradine remained in custody. It was his own idea. Mrs. De Kuipers engaged the best firm of attorneys in Michigan to get Paradine out on bail.

But, after a man to man talk with the prisoner, the attorney advised her not to interfere and hastily withdrew from the case.

Gerrit Jennesma continued to refuse to see a doctor, but as he also improved daily, he was allowed to have his own way.

Dirk Adams was permitted to remain in his mother's home and go to the factory, but his guard was heavy and unremitting. He talked to Winnie often, over the phone, reminding her of her promise to stand by him. He had no idea whether the spot on his clothing had proved to be blood, or not.

It was a dark, rainy night, four days after Paradine's capture. Kim and his employer were playing bridge with the senator and Miss Warburton. Winnie knitted by the fire.

Mrs. Jennesma had taken the cribbage board upstairs to entertain Gerrit.

The telephone in one of the offices rang. Kim went to answer it and came back with a teasing grin.

"That was French. Eddie took the polygraph test this afternoon. Any bets?"

"Yes," said the senator. "Five dollars says he burned the second will."

"I'll take it," said Miss Warburton, "and raise you to 10."

"Why, Olivia?" The senator eyed her with adoring interest. "Is it just your kind heart, or inside information?"

"I just don't think he did it, that's all."

"Come, come, Kimball. What did he say?" Sybrand Jennesma spoke sharply.

Kim nodded toward Miss Warburton. "Pay her, senator."

North eagerly complied. "What? Really!"

"Yes, Eddie came thru with flying colors."

Mrs. Jennesma appeared in the doorway, panting a little. "Who telephoned?"

Her husband explained impatiently. Kim was urged on.

"Eddie did not burn the second will. Knows nothing about it, if any. He burned letters. Letters from his lady-loves. He was chivalrous, canny. The nasty old police would be poking into things, he thought."

Jennesma said, "Did they find out if he killed my sister, Kimball?"

"I asked. French said he was telling me all he could at the present. That was all. O, no . . . I forgot. French sent his regards to Miss Leslie. Said to tell you Eddie did not cache the cash in your socks box."

"Honestly? You're not kidding?"

"I'd cross my heart if I still had it."

Mrs. Jennesma said sourly, "So he gets all her money. All but a measly 10 thousand she left her own kin. Not a word mentioning me, her only sister-in-law."

Kim leaned close and said: "Eddie's not a bad guy, Mrs. Jennesma. He may give you some of her jewelry if he's handled right. Think it over." Then in a louder tone, he went on, "There's more news. Eddie is on his way home. That's the main reason French called. Thoughtful, what?"

"Here?" Sybrand exclaimed.

"Where else? He owns the other big house now. At least, I guess he does. Unless the other will is found. And it isn't in that house after the state police have finished looking for it, believe me."

North asked, "How about that De Kuipers woman who's been phoning out here morning, noon, and night, wanting to know when he'll be out. Maybe he'll go there."

"Not while he's conscious," Kim giggled. "He's being supplied with a . . . a guard. To protect him, I suppose."

"Or us," said Mrs. Jennesma plaintively. "Mr. Kimball, if some one's to watch him, how will we know if he's guilty or not?"

North asked, "Why did he skip out with the De Kuipers woman at night that way, if he wasn't guilty?"

"Search me. Cold feet, I suppose. My guess would be she got the jitters and he caught it from her."

"And he gets everything," Mrs. Jennesma repeated.

"Listen!" Sybrand held up his hand. A car was climbing the drive from the highway. "That must be Eddie now."

At once both Jennesmas put on pleasant expectancy. Miss Warburton met Kim's shining eyes and the senator's derisive twinkle. Eddie had money now.

"Five hundred dollars. Five hundred dollars! You utter fool. How could you throw my money around like that without consulting me?" Mrs. Jerrold Corbin burst into new floods of tears.

"I told you it was a chance . . . a good chance . . . to get hold of a fortune," screamed Corbin. "Shut up and let me think."

"You've thought too much already. Why should she leave you money, anyway? She'd divorced you and was thru. Or maybe you've been up to something?"

"Don't work up any new trouble. Haven't we enough to suit you? I can't help it if she still cared for me. I was thru."

"O, you were? How did you know she'd left you the money?"

"She told me so. I can't help it. She was always impulsive, full of crazy whims."

Mrs. Corbin smiled with extraordinary malice.

"How'd you like a divorce for Christmas, darling?"

"Look. Let's go to bed and sleep this off. Let's not say a lot of things we'll be sorry for. In the morning I'll go up to the Jennesma house and demand to be allowed to search for that will. I won't believe it isn't there in her house till I've looked, myself."

"Didn't she have a safe deposit box?"

"Not with a will in it. The police have checked that."

Mrs. Corbin walked to the door of their bedroom and opened it.

"Where are you going, dear?" he ventured.

"I'm spending the night in the guest room."

Expect 100,000 to Join in Youth for Christ Rally

The Chicagoland Youth for Christ rally tomorrow night in Soldiers' field is expected to attract more than 100,000 youths, the Rev. Torrey M. Johnson, leader of the movement, said yesterday. The gathering will climax all the Chicagoland Youth for Christ rallies held last winter in Orchestra hall and Moody Memorial church, supplemented by about 150 youth rallies elsewhere in the metropolitan area.

The program will begin at 6:30 p. m. with band music directed by Lt. Col. Harry Atway of the Salvation Army. The 300 instrumentalists will support a choir of 5,000 voices conducted by T. J. Bitticoffer of Detroit. The national anthem, to be sung at 7 p. m., will be followed by the posting of the American colors by a marine corps color guard on 21 flagpoles around the Stadium.

The "Battle Hymn of the Republic" will then be sung by the massed choir and band, after which 400 nurses, in a cross formation, will march down the field to the platform, where a gold star will be unveiled and a wreath placed thereon by a Boy Scout troop as a tribute to the gold star mothers.

After an appeal for the 7th war loan by Chaplain Robert Evans, a missionary pageant will be presented. Representatives, typically costumed, of China, India, Africa, Russia, and the United States will give brief messages from two hemispheres outlined on the ground. Each will be accompanied by a color guard.

Brief Christian testimonies will be given by Gil Dodds, track star; Lt. Cora Miller, army nurse, and Bob Findlay, president of the student body of the University of Virginia. Percy Crawford of Philadelphia, leader of the Young People's Church of the Air, also will speak. The program will close with the audience singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Engagement

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Martha Roberts, daughter of Mrs. John Morgan Roberts of La Grange and the late Mr. Roberts, to Lt. Victor Jerome Hultquist Jr. of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hultquist of Alcoa, Tenn. Miss Roberts was graduated from Lindenwood college. Her fiancé, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, has returned from 18 months of duty in Wales and France.

Fat blueberries and big rosy cherries aren't the least expensive fruits in the markets, but it's good to see them again and have them available for an occasional luxury pie or cherry nibbling spree.

Both fruits are attractive on a fruit salad platter. One of the nicest of such platters, suitable for buffet, table, or family board, consists of sliced fresh pineapple, orange sections, piles of fresh cherries and blueberries, grouped around a mound of cottage cheese garnished with watercress. A platter like this can be salad or dessert, depending upon whether a dressing accompanies it or not.

To save fats, skimp on the pastry for that blueberry pie—bake the deep dish kind of pie with only a circle of pastry to each portion, or make a lattice topped pie with only a few strips of pastry, instead of an entire top crust.

Fresh Blueberry Pie
[9 inch]

Pastry for lower crust and lattice top
1 quart blueberries
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
Juice of ½ lemon
2 tablespoons margarine [optional]

Mix sugar and flour and spread a little of the mixture over bottom and sides of lower crust. Add rest of sugar mixture to berries and fill crust. Sprinkle lemon juice over top and dot with margarine if used. Adjust lattice strips. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes; reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake 20 minutes longer.

To save sugar the pie may be made with ⅓ cup sugar and ⅓ cup honey, but an extra tablespoon of flour should be added to care for the excess liquid.

This recipe may be used for currant pie when currants come in, which should be soon.

Blueberry "dream pie" was awarded a prize in our recipe contest about three years ago. It makes a smaller pie, but one which will serve six at the expense of only a pint of berries and ⅓ cup of sugar.

Blueberry Dream Pie

1 baked 8 inch pie shell
1 pint fresh blueberries
4 egg whites
½ cup sugar

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar gradually and continue beating until mixture stands up in peaks. Fold berries in carefully and pile lightly in pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 28—Orson Welles had his face shaved for the end of "Tomorrow Is Forever." Then he looked too young, so to make him look older, he was experimenting with a false nose. Said I, "How about your returning to San Francisco for your Sunday Round Table discussion with the experts? Without a beard, do you think they'll let you in?" "I doubt it," said he, and called up Westmore's to ask them to make him a false beard. I asked him why he was extending himself so, trying to do everything at once. Why didn't he stick to those good radio shows he did so well? Said he, "I did them—so now they bore me. I must experiment." "Oh, you and Edison?" "Yes," replied Orson. "If some one would build me a theater, as they built him a laboratory, I'd be perfectly happy." "For how long?" said I. He got a wire from William Seiter which ran: "Winston Churchill, soldier, writer, polo player, lord of the admiralty, lecturer, statesman. Churchill is 70. You're 30. Catch on?" ! ! !

One for All and All for One

Bette Davis sure gets love from her co-workers. When her director was taken ill and had words with the big boss, Bette stayed home. After three days there was an apology, and every one, including Bette, came back to work happily ever after. . . . After Victor Fleming's recent run-in at Metro, Hoppie, the studio wit, nicknamed him "the 50 year old Rooney!" . . . New York can expect bigger and better parties when the Basil Rathbones land back there in September. Basil will play Charles II. on the stage. . . . Frank Smith is taking his troubles to court because he wasn't able to collect ten weeks' salary for work he did on "Walk in the Sun." . . . Don De Fore hopes his next with Hal Wallis will be made in England.

Angela Lansbury's mother, Mona McGill, is known as "the body" at Universal—not the same kind of body Marie McDonald has. She has been a corpse for a week—done in by George Sanders in "Uncle Harry." It was she who did that wonderful drunk scene with Keenan Wynn in "The Clock." . . . I watched Betty Hutton, Barry Fitzgerald, and Mary Young doing some scenes in "Stork Club." My mind went back to Mary when she did "Dancing Mothers" with Helen Hayes. Mary's years older than Betty, but she'd win out even now in any beautiful back contest. . . . George Raft may get what he wants—"The Mirabilus Diamond" by Jerome Odlum, which comes out in book form soon. . . . In an effort to throw the world's fashion spotlight again on Paris, directors of the French congress of fashion, whatever that is, named Judy Garland as one of the smartest dressed women in the world. When I recall how Judy and I fought for years to get her some decent looking clothes, I'm sure she got as big a laugh as I did out of this.

A Short Memory!

What goes on at Republic? Some months ago I mentioned that Lester Sharpe had become a producer. He wrote and produced a picture called "Thoroughbreds." Now a trade paper comes out and gives the production credit to Armand Schaefer, and the picture gets a good notice. Whatever happened to Sharpe? Or shouldn't I be so inquisitive? . . . David Bruce will co-star with Susanna Foster in "Once Upon a Dream" with William Seiter directing. Bruce is the boy who stuck his neck out when he made the statement, "The girls at Northwestern university are the homeliest in the world when they get up in the morning." He's married to one.

An Old Story in Hollywood

It could only happen here. Those who want jobs can't get 'em, and those who don't can. Doris Kenyon's handsome son, Kenyon Sills, 17, was stopped on the street by a talent scout. Would he come over to 20th and make a test right away. No, he's not interested in acting. He's going to school. As soon as he is graduated, he joins the navy. But the guy was so insistent, Kenyon went. Two days later Doris was called up by another producer, a friend of hers, who said, "I hope your son hasn't signed at 20th. I'd like to offer him a seven year deal." Milton Sills' son is still joining the navy, and still has no inclination to act. And

GI WIDOW, WED AGAIN, SAYS SHE WAS IN A DAZE

News that her first husband had been killed in action so shocked her that she didn't realize she married again until two months after the wedding, Mrs. Narlene Pollock Wons, 21, of 1928 N. Whipple st., alleged in a suit to annul her second marriage, filed yesterday in Superior court.

She was married, according to the suit, to Pvt. Paul Pollock on Sept. 7, 1943. He was killed in Germany, Oct. 24, 1944, and she learned of his death Nov. 8. On Feb. 26, the suit states, she married Wons during a lapse of memory.

On May 15, the suit says, friends hinted that she investigate her relationship with Wons, and she discovered she had married him. She had regarded him merely as an acquaintance, the suit states.

Her bill charges that both her husband and her parents can attest the fact that the couple never had lived together as man and wife.

YOU RIDE THE DECK OF A TROOPSHIP HOMEWARD BOUND

YOU'VE wondered what they say, what they think, how they talk—when the orders come, orders that snatch men out of the hell-hole of war, and put them into a ship of dreams with home at the other end.

You've wondered—and there's no true way of knowing, unless you've been there. Unless you've known the chilling fear of being killed on the last mission . . . or the last jeep ride . . . with a ticket to home in your pocket.

All America may well read this moving word picture by a returning soldier. An intimate, plain-spoken picture that will tug at your heart, and help you to a better understanding of the hopes and dreams and thoughts of the men on the way back.

THIS IS OUR ROAD HOME

Suwannee Treasure Hunt
by John Maloney

IN 60 years, men with treasure fever in their blood have poured $200,000 into a Florida swamp, searching for buried riches. More fantastic than the fictional tales of pirate gold is this story of the fact and fancy surrounding a mysterious buried loot . . . a treasure hunt that has been marked by blood, fire and murder. Read this amazing tale of a Florida "Klondike" that may yield millions—and may not.

TAME GERMANS ARE HEADACHES TOO
by Ernest O. Hauser

REDUCED to rubble—everything organic smashed—the prostrate cities and towns of Germany are the current headache of our Military Government. No water, no light, no window glass, no telephones. Only ruin and defeat and dead to be buried. How the M G teams go into action against heartbreaking odds is told in this eye-witness account from Frankfort on the Main.

Love's a Sham
by Hermine Hall

PERHAPS you haven't read a story in a long time quite like this. The story of a woman who knew the full meaning of love—and a man who didn't—until she left. Here's a small wager you won't lay it down, from the first line to the very last. And what a last line!

SOX DEFEAT BOSTON, 8 TO 6; CUBS WIN, 5 TO 3

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

BRITISH and Scotch soccer teams played to 150,000 in a recent international match in Glasgow and another estimated 250,000 fans were turned away. . . . Bernie Bierman and Dr. George Hauser, head football and line coach, respectively, at the University of Minnesota, both were awarded the Western conference medal for "the student of the graduating class who has attained the greatest proficiency in scholarship and athletics." . . . Bierman won the honor in 1916 and Dr. Hauser in 1918. . . . Lt. Col. Frank McCormick, who is on leave from his position as director of athletics at Minnesota, is in charge of a special school in Paris where athletic officers are being trained at the rate of 100 per week. . . . Col. McCormick is chief of the athletic division for the United States army in the European theater. . . . One of the projects in the special program aims at interesting German youth in American games and sports under American supervision. . . . Army authorities figure this is the best bet for winning them away from Nazi ideology. . . . Malin Craig, one of the six full generals on active duty with the United States army, pitched a no hit, no run baseball game while at West Point. . . . The Chicago Cubs tried to sign him upon his graduation but he preferred the army. . . . Most jockeys ride with a longer stirrup on the left side than on the right to assist in throwing weight on the turns. . . . A successful exception is Ted Atkinson. . . . Mildred [Babe] Didrikson Zaharias insists she'll enter the California amateur golf tournament at Pebble Beach next September, despite the attitude of officials who are opposed to the idea of a lone woman competing with a field of males in a major event. . . . Pete Mehringer, 1932 Olympic wrestling champion, and former star football tackle at the University of Kansas, is grappling professionally in California. . . . Fighter Juan Zurita is a real estate dealer in Mexico City.

Si Johnson, 37 year old former Cincinnati and Philly pitcher, now is at the Alameda [Cal.] Naval Air station after many months at sea in transport service. . . . Eight players who helped Milwaukee win the American association pennant last season are wearing big league uniforms this year and only two—Infielder Bill Nagel and Pitcher Earl Caldwell of the White Sox—are with the same club. . . . The others are Outfielder George Binks, Senators; First Baseman Heinz Becker, Cubs; Pitcher Charley Sproull, Phillies; Outfielder Hal Peck, Athletics; Shortstop Dick Culler, Braves, and Outfielder Hershel Martin, Yankees. . . . Take it from Willie Hoppe, the reason there are so few good balkline billiard players is that the training regimen is just too tough. . . . Willie walks two miles in completing an average block; as a champion he did two miles of road work every day to condition his legs; he eschewed the movies because of possible strain and reading for the same reason. . . . Liquor is out because of its effects on the nerves. . . . In other words, being a champion was great stuff financially but not much fun.

Wine and Tea

You were once a heady wine
Coursing thru this soul of mine;
Laughter flowing from your lips
Tingled in my finger tips.

Wine, one day, had turned to tea,
Something in the core of me
Felt your laughter growing less,
Ardor changed to gentleness.

Smiles were mixed with blood and tears;
Children, older than their years,
Mark the hearts of you and me . . .
Come, and sip a cup of tea!

Not "By Appointment Only."

I've just been thinking that oftentimes
The pleasantest things of our day
Are a little unpatched happenings
That crop up along the way;
Going thru the postoffice door
A face is suddenly scanned,
A meeting with an old time friend,
Impromptu, all unplanned.

Crossing the parth thru the Sixth street park,
Enjoying the warm spring breeze,
Someone calls, you turn around,
And there 'neath the age-old trees
You have the nicest sort of a chat
With old Mrs. Weathersbee,
Then Carrie Callaghan comes along—
And what a visit, we three!

Lots of engagements I've made and kept
Have left me low and lonely,
But I've had lots of fun out of many chance ones
That were NOT "By appointment only."

The Dream Is Dust

The dream has turned to dust and I
I am cold,
But, I who dreamed am strangely wise and old.
There are no tears tonight, no stern regrets,
The cynic turns away and soon forgets.
Altho you flung a cloud into my laughter,
The sun will mark my sorrow shortly after.
Joy that dares not dance beneath the sky
Will never let the spirit rise and fly.
Altho you waved a banner at my fall,
It did not wound me deeply after all.
The dream is dust against an ancient cross,
But I, not having gained, can feel no loss,
And I, who cannot wholly love or trust,
Will never weep because a dream is dust.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boston, Mass., May 28—The White Sox, after being thumped six times in a row, finally went back to work this afternoon, the result of their industry being an 8 to 6 success in the third of the series with Joe Cronin's Red Sox. Fifteen hits boomed from the bats of the Chicagoans, this display against a quartet of home town pitchers making it a simple matter for Orval Grove to register his fourth victory of the season.

The Chicago Sox started after Rex Cecil in the first inning, blew him off the scene in the fifth, continued against Mike Ryba, and tapered off later again. Vic Johnson and Red Barrett. The choicest bit of the whole attack came in the fifth when Manager Jim Dykes actually was shocked to see his hired hands produce six hits in succession.

Bob Johnson Smacks One

At one stage of the party it looked very much as if the losing streak would continue for at least another day, Grove encountered the dangerous Bob Johnson at a very ticklish time in the third inning and the veteran clubbed the ball over the fence to give Boston a 4 to 1 bulge.

Thereafter Grove, altho deeply involved most of the time, dodged additional scoring until the eighth.

The White Sox picked up a run in the first inning on a pass to Wally Moses and a single by Keirby Farrell. The slim edge held up until the third. Cass Michaels fumbled Cecil's roller with one out and after two were out, Ben Steiner walked. Tom McBride singled to score Leon Culberson, who had forced Cecil. Then Johnson pasted Grove's first pitch for his sixth homer to put the Chicagoans in arrears, 4 to 1. They improved their position slightly with a fourth inning run that grew from a pass to Guy Curtright and the second of Tony Cuccinello's four hits.

Farrell Starts Rally

The three run activity in the fifth got under way after Moses had been thrown out. Farrell touched it off with his second single. Oris Hockett also singled and so did Curtright, Farrell scoring, but Hockett was nipped when he attempted to reach third. Cuccinello contributed another single and this was where Cecil turned over the pitching chores to Ryba. Mike quieted things down after Schalk and Michaels had singled to complete the three-run incident.

Ryba got himself into difficulties in the sixth by plunking Grove with a pitched ball. Moses followed with a single, but Farrell, trying to sacrifice, forced Grove at third. Hockett made amends for his hapless base running venture in the fifth. He sent a triple to the 420 foot single in center, Moses and Farrell scoring to change the count to 7 to 4.

A single by Curtright and Cuccinello's fourth hit gave the Sox a run off Johnson in the eighth and the Red Sox immediately countered with their final demonstration. Tobin singled to lead off in the home eighth and Michaels fumbled Lake's grounder. Dave Ferriss batted for Garbark and singled, Tobin scoring. Lake went to third on Ferriss' hit and scored on a fly ball.

REDS WIN OVER BRAVES, 2-1, IN 12 INNING GAME

Cincinnati, O., May 28 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds took a 12 inning 2 to 1 victory over the Boston Braves tonight when Shortstop Eddie Miller singled, driving in Frank McCormick from second with the decisive run.

Boston held a 1 to 0 lead on Tom Holmes' first inning home run until the ninth, when Phil Masi's error helped the Reds tie the score. Frank Dasso limited the Braves to five hits in eight innings but Howard Fox, who pitched the last two innings after Horace Lisenbee was lifted for a pinch hitter, was given credit for the victory.

$55.40 Payoff at Jamaica Called Error

New York, May 28 (AP)—Stewards of Jamaica's Metropolitan Jockey club decided today their association had paid off on the wrong horse last Monday at the rate of $55.40 for $2 in straight betting and at $1,001 for $2 in the daily double.

The stewards definitely identified the winner of the race as Grandpa Max. Previously Easy Spell had been regarded as the winner.

Both of the 2 year olds are trained by Sol Rutchick, who admits he can't tell the difference between the two. They are by the same sire, Easy Mon, and have the same coloring and conformity except that Easy Spell has a white spot on his right hind leg. Both are owned by Fred Landsburgh.

Pay-offs to Stand.

Neither had raced before last Monday. Grandpa Max, programmed as Easy Spell, won the opening race of the New York season. Easy Spell, listed on the program as Grandpa Max, finished ninth in a nine horse field on Wednesday.

Marshall Cassidy, assistant secretary of the jockey club [New York], said the betting pay-offs would stand, but that first place money in the race would go to Twenty Six, who finished second in the race.

"It was an innocent mistake," said Cassidy, "and no other penalty will be imposed."

Grandpa Max Sold

When Easy Spell's registration certificate was produced in the paddock before the May 21 race, the failure of the paper to list the white spot was noticed, but the colt was approved and the papers sent to Trainer Rutchick for correction.

Later a study of the two colts and their certificates brought out the discrepancy and today an affidavit from Marvin Childs of Nicholsville, Ky., farm manager for the Henry H. Knight breeding establishment, straightened out the matter.

After Wednesday's race A. L. Kleven purchased Grandpa Max, really Easy Spell, and Cassidy said that Kleven "now has the right of refusal to buy the thorobred."

31,316 Jamaica Crowd Watches 3 Horse Spill

New York, May 28 (AP)—A three horse spill, involving Jockeys Nick Jemas, Eddie Arcaro, and Mike Caffarella, marked the running of the Rostand purse at Jamaica before 31,316 today.

Hugh Mc. L. Fenwick's Hillyer Court, riden by Arcaro, was leading when he stumbled and fell. Jules Fink's Zacotilla, guided by Caffarella, was thrown off stride and went down. Briggs F. Spach's Turnplate, Jemas up, fell over both.

The three horses were unhurt. Arcaro and Caffarella, altho badly shaken up, rode in the next race. Jemas was reported to have suffered a possible broken nose and a bruised instep.

Hal, from the Millbrook stable, raced clear of the pileup and under Jockey Eric Guerin won by three lengths over the Wheatley stable's Mountaineer. Col. C. V. Whitney's Cave Man took the shows.

BY EDWARD BURNS

Paul Derringer presided at yesterday's 5 to 3 Cub victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in Wrigley field. He thus loosed a bundle of statistics, including those anent the overtaking of the Dodgers, who were 6½ games ahead of the Chicagoans after the Cubs dropped that 15 to 12 riot in Brooklyn a week ago Friday night. The Cubs tied for second with the Pirates, also gained on the leading Giants, who still lead them by 6½ games despite sufferings in Pittsburgh preceding their arrival in Chicago tomorrow. The Dodgers dropped to fourth.

It was Big Paul's sixth victory of the season, his second over the Dodgers this year, his 213th victory in the National league, and his 30th in history over the Dodgers. [This scarcely seems the place to mention the Dodgers have beaten him 35 times.]

Dodgers Are Tumbling

And continuing in the statistical vein it is set down that the Cubs have won seven of their last eight engagements since Derringer ended their six game losing streak in Brooklyn a week ago Sunday. Beginning with that Sabbath victory of Derringer's—the score was 4 to 2—the Dodgers have dropped eight of their last nine games. Before Derringer stopped them on May 20 the Dodgers had won 12 out of 13, including an 11 game winning streak. The rigors of intersectional travel are devastating, indeed.

Starting and losing pitcher for the Dodgers yesterday was Ray Hathaway, a righthander who spent 27 months with the Seabees in the South Pacific. His debut as a major league pitcher got off to a bad start because of an error and four walks, plus a single by Eddie Sauer in the first inning. However, he lasted until the sixth, after the Cubs had scored their final run.

Paul Suffers in 3d Inning

The Cubs played their sixth straight errorless game against the Dodgers, counting Sunday's eight inning tie, but Derringer needed no special defensive genius yesterday. His only trouble came in the third inning [instead of the customary fifth] when three singles and a double, half the total hits made all day by the Dodgers, enabled the visitors to tie the score at 3-all.

The Cub hitting was adequate but by no means brutal. Don Johnson had three singles in a row and Stan Hack had two. Bill Nicholson was shut out, but Phil Cavarretta scored one run after walking in the first inning and drove home the winning run with a single in the fourth inning. Len Rice, Peanuts Lowrey, and Derringer each hit safely. Derringer's double was the only extra base hit by the Cubs.

Rice Drives In Run

Seabee Hathaway showed a bit of nervousness in the first inning, with the result that the Cubs made only one hit, a single, in effecting three runs—and those three runs

Lincoln Fields Holiday Profit to War Fund

The American Red Cross and the Chicago service men's centers will receive the net proceeds of the Lincoln Fields Memorial day racing program at Hawthorne tomorrow. Charles W. Bidwill, chairman of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, operator of the southwest side track, acting for Col. Matt J. Winn, executive director of the Lincoln Fields Jockey club, said the Red Cross will receive two-thirds and the service centers one-third.

The Memorial day card, one of the choice programs on the calendar, is expected to draw a crowd of more than 35,000. Last year a total of $104,657.12 was realized, of which $69,771.41 was donated to the Red Cross and $34,885.71 to the service men's centers.

Peabody Stake Is Feature

Headlining tomorrow's program is the $5,000 added Francis S. Peabody handicap, a mile and a sixteenth event for 3 year olds and up. The Peabody is a fixture of the Lincoln Fields meeting and is named for the late father of Stuyvesant Peabody, president of the Lincoln Fields Jockey club.

Two brilliant campaigners, Quizzle and Night Shadow, are expected to battle it out for the major portion of the purse. Both are undefeated, Night Shadow in two starts and Quizzle in three this season.

The first race yesterday afternoon was won by Mrs. G. H. Emick's Tideover. Warrior Lad was second and Chance Taker third. Tideover, a 3 to 1 shot in the betting, paid $8.60, $8, and $3.40. Millpomp took the second race at $4.60. Second place went to High Talent and third to Lillian Roth. Millpomp and Tideover formed the daily double combination which paid $27.20.

Ghost Hunt Wins Feature

It was just a breeze for Noisily in the third race. This 3 year old filly owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark, broke out in front in the six furlong event and stayed there all the way, winning by 12 lengths.

The feature race, sixth on the program, a $1,500 event, was won by Ghost Hunt. The 5 year old gelding, ridden by Robert Campbell, defeated Gay Franka by a nose. Little Minx was third. Ghost Hunt paid $6.80, $3.60, and $2.60. It was the second of three winners for the afternoon for Campbell, who also rode Tideover in the first and Woodsman in the eighth.

The attendance was 11,318 and the mutuel handle, $661,315.

Central Zone Season to Open Friday

BY BOB BECKER

Despite high water in the Wolf river, Wisconsin, fishermen who recently visited that stream for white bass fishing have been getting some pretty good strings. Due to heavy rains and unusual weather this May the white bass fishing has been "off and on," but it looks as if the run would produce some good fishing for several days.

A resident of Weyauwega, Wis., writes us that the white bass caught during the past few days were big ones, mostly males. Each catch of stripers has included a few walleyes, too. Many fishermen also have been taking some good sized northern pike from the river.

CALLING ALL FISHERMEN!

This department will be at the corner of Madison and State streets at 12 noon today to throw a few casts at prospective war bond buyers. Sportsmen are invited to rally around the bond selling platform and bring their war bond money with them.

Season to Open Friday

While southern Wisconsin fishermen are busy with white bass and northern pike, central Illinois fishermen are getting ready to fish for black bass. The Illinois season opens next Friday, in the central zone. [In northern Illinois black bass fishing starts June 15.]

It's the same story down state—too much water. Heavy rains have filled up the lakes and bayous so the boys are worried about conditions for opening day fishing. Not only is the water way above normal but it's pretty dirty.

Too Much Water

When we were at Horseshoe lake near Cairo, Ill., a few days ago we found too much water in the lake and more coming down. Some of the biggest crappies and bass to be found in the state are in Horseshoe lake, the refuge of thousands of geese every autumn. But what with high winds and rain squalls the big crappies had no trouble at all keeping away from our lures.

Until recently they were striking well.

Illinois Votes Not to Defend Track Crowns

Champaign, Ill., May 28 [Special]—The Illinois track team voted today not to defend its central collegiate championship Saturday at Great Lakes or its national collegiate title a week later at Milwaukee.

Illinois won the central collegiate meet in 1943 and 1944 and the national last year.

The Illinois baseball team today elected Howard Judson, pitcher and outfielder of Hebron, Ill., captain for 1946 and John Johns of Evanston most valuable player for 1945.

The Illinois track team elected Bob Phelps, East St. Louis, Ill., captain for next year.

Announce Letter Winners

Three men won track letters by their single performances in helping Illinois win the Western conference championship.

The three are Al Zimmerman, Lou Agase, and Gus Blom, Zimmerman had run before, but had never placed. For Agase and Blom, Saturday was their first competition of the year. Blom, who had reported for track only five days before the meet, placed third in the conference discus. Agase's letter was his third of the year—a record for a freshman at Illinois. Baseball awards included nine boys in the Chicago area. Following is the list of letter men:

BASEBALL—Robert Anderlik, Waukegan; Bill Butkovich, St. David; Arthur Ecklund, Peoria; Leo Gedvilas, Spring Valley; John Kohns, Evanston; Gerald Wasikowski, Waukegan; Howard Judson, Hebron; Walter Mroz, Chicago; William Meyers, Elgin; James Neufeidt, Chicago; Eddie Planert, Chicago; Marvin Rotblatt, Chicago; James Wakefield, Chicago; Roy Wiedow, Oak Park.

P. G. A. GOLFERS TO QUALIFY AT OAK PARK CLUB

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, which teed off on its 1945 rehabilitation program for hospitalized service men last Saturday at Tam o' Shanter with a tidy audience of more than 25,000 at the Crosby-Hope-Evans-Hines match, will take time out Friday at the Oak Park Country club for another item. The occasion will be the local qualifying round for the national P. G. A. championship, to be decided the week of July 9 in Dayton, O.

10 May Qualify

The test to determine the approximate 10 places to be awarded the Illinois section for the big show will be held over 36 holes of medal play. Alex Cunningham of North Shore, president of the Illinois section and Bill Gordon of Tam o' Shanter, the tournament chairman, yesterday announced that nearly 24 entries already are willing to challenge Byron Nelson for the title. The lean umbrella man from Toledo, who gained a convincing split with Sam Sneed in their so-called world's championship match over the weekend, does not actually hold the crown, but Bob Hamilton, who did win from Byron last year is now in the army, and Nelson hasn't been out of the semi-finals of the pros' main event for the last five years.

Many Entries Already Received

Among the entries already received are those of Harry Adams of St. Charles; Jim Foulis of La Grange; Ralph Guldahl of Medinah; Jimmy Hines, the national tournament chairman who now makes his home here; Ky Laffoon of Chicago; Jack Grout of Butterfield; Eddie Bush of Oak Park; Byron Barcke of Twin Orchard; Johnny Gibson of Westmoreland; Art De Mane of Oak Park; Jim Carberry of Aurora; Sam Bernardi of Old Elm; Charley Penna of Beverly; Red Dennison of Midlothian; Paul Schmaindа of Acacia; Al Huske of Glen Oak; Bill Gordon of Tam o' Shanter; Bob Stupple of Skokie; Joe Paletti of Sunset Ridge; Pete Wilcox of Riverside; Pete Thomas of Chicago Golf, and Lou Strong of Park Ridge.

BLOOMER GIRLS, BLUEBIRDS WIN SOFTBALL GAMES

Marge Lange last night pitched a six hit game to turn in her second victory of the season as the Bloomer Girls defeated the Chicks, 11 to 2, in Parichy stadium, and Pitchers Carol Ollrich and Lonnie Stark collaborated in leading the Bluebirds to a 4 to 2 victory over the Rauland Queens in Hilburn stadium.

In National Girls Softball league games tonight the Sparks play the Music Maids in Rock-Ola stadium, 4200 N. Central av., and the Chicks will meet the Bluebirds in Bidwill stadium, 1900 E. 75th street. Doroth [Boots] Klupping and Mary Skorich will pitch for the Sparks and Maids while Agnes Schlueter and Doris Picka will pitch for the Chicks and Bluebirds.

BOB SATTERFIELD AND VORCE DRAW AT MARIGOLD

Bob Satterfield and Johnny Vorce, the latter from Detroit, fought to an eight round draw in Marigold Gardens last night before a capacity crowd of 1,779.

In other bouts on the Marigold card Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor heavyweight, won a five round decision over Young Mitchell of Chicago; Art Price beat Jimmy Martin in four rounds, Bennie Droll stopped Harold Thomas in the third round, and Ted Newsom beat Charley Jerome in five rounds.

BY FRANK MASTRO

More than 400 De La Salle High school alumni will pay tribute tonight in Orchestra hall to Brother Austin, F. S. C., who recently resigned as athletic director at the south side school after 25 years' service.

They will honor the 61 year old apostle of Chicago Catholic high school sports with a concert given by the De La Salle band and glee club and the St. Casimir academy girls' glee club.

Those 400 will represent thousands of other alumni and athletes who have competed under Brother Austin and will be unable to attend this evening.

STRIKE BY 560 MENACES B-29 ENGINE OUTPUT

Forgers Insist on Wage Boost Denied by WLB

Dissatisfaction over a war labor labor board ruling covering wages and other union contract provisions and refusal of the company to join with the union in a compromise agreement caused 560 employes of the forge division of the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, where engines for B-29 Super Fortresses are made in volume, to go on strike yesterday.

This was the 178th strike or work stoppage at the plant since May 1, 1944.

Voted to Strike May 5

The strikers are members of local 495 of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers [AFL]. Their action followed an election held May 5 under the terms of the Smith-Connally law, when the unionists voted 200 to 131 for a strike.

Several strike delays were agreed on by the membership to allow the WLB to amend its findings, but finally the local union members voted Sunday night to leave their jobs yesterday morning. Continuance of the strike, company officials said, would hamper production of the vitally needed B-29 engines.

Seek General Pay Boost

On April 27 the WLB issued an interim order in which wage increases were denied in all but five work classifications, and these were delayed pending completion of a wage study by the board, the company said yesterday.

A. J. Eberhardy, international representative of the union, said the men are demanding a general wage increase. He said the strike could be settled if the company would change its position and agree to compromise by offering wages to the strikers equal to those paid by the corporation for similar work in its Detroit, Mich., plant.

MEXICO'S NEW CURB ON ALIENS MAY BE REVISED

MEXICO CITY, May 28 (AP)—Mexico's new 7,000 word law governing professions, effective today, seems likely to go back to congress for modification. The bar association announced it would propose changes, and Deputy Frederico Medrano, chairman of a congressional political commission, said amendments were necessary. The law bars foreigners, except political refugees, from engaging in a number of professions. One clause says foreigners practicing here for the last five years may continue on the same basis as Mexicans. So far as known, this will not affect adversely any United States doctors or leading lawyers. It may act against some junior lawyers and engineers who came here early in the war.

BRIDGES URGES TAX EXEMPTION ON SERVICE PAY

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] today proposed legislation exempting men and women in the fighting forces from income taxes on service pay.

He said in a prepared senate speech that he would offer the measure as an amendment to the first revenue bill to come before the senate.

Bridges said that under present law many service men and women will return to find their personal problems "acutely increased" by income taxes which have accrued during their years of service.

Noblesville, Ind., May 28 [Special]—Lt. Robert A. Barnes, 25, son of William J. Barnes, Decatur, Ill., was killed in a crash of his P-63 fighter plane northeast of Noblesville, Sunday night. He was flying at an altitude of only 200 feet because of a low ceiling and when he attempted to bale out his parachute did not open, officials said. He was a veteran of the China-Burma-India theater and held the distinguished flying cross and air medal with oak leaf clusters.

MRS. J. N. OTT JR. ASKS DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Mrs. Emily Fentress Ott, 34, of 85 Hibbard rd., Winnetka, daughter of Calvin Fentress, socially prominent banker and lumberman, yesterday filed suit in Superior court for divorce against her husband, John Nash Ott Jr., 35, grandson of James B. Forgan, the late president of the First National bank.

Mrs. Ott's bill charges that her husband, a lieutenant in the navy, left her Feb. 17, and that on two occasions since then, March 25 and May 24, he struck her and treated her with extreme cruelty.

The bill seeks custody and support of four children. Wendel Fentress, 13, and David Fentress, 11, are by a previous marriage. The other two are children of her union with Ott—James Forgan, 9 and John Nash III., 6. The bill also asks temporary and permanent alimony.

GIVE US SCRIBES A BREAK TODAY; MAYOR'S ORDERS

Today is Scribe day, according to a proclamation issued yesterday by Mayor Kelly, and it's about time, too. It is a sort of be-kind-to-animals week boiled into a single day and applied to the hardworking members of the press. On Scribe day members of the press can do amazing things with a dime. They can get an L ride, a glass of beer, or a street car ride with two cents back. Or they can make telephone calls if they haven't anything better to do. According to the mayor's proclamation "it is impossible to overestimate the debt we owe to the entire writing profession for its contribution to our civilization" and he wasn't talking about the rubber check artists, either. It should be a great day.

COUNTY PLANS NO CHANGES IN ROADHOUSE LAW

Clayton F. Smith, president of the Cook county board, said yesterday that a new law adopted in the general assembly, giving county boards the power to regulate rural dance halls and roadhouses, will mean no change in local regulations. "We have for years been regulating roadhouses and dancing places in the unincorporated areas of Cook county," Smith said. "We have done so under general police powers and zoning rules. The new law does strengthen our legal position, but no shift in policy will result."

Some 18,000 troops were employed by the chemical warfare service in the European theater, it was disclosed. Some were here more than two and one-half years.

Suspect in Race Track Fraud Shot by Policeman

Francis R. Mobley, 25, of Galveston, Tex., was shot in the leg yesterday at the Hawthorne race track by Sgt. James Zitek, a Stickney policeman, who asserted Mobley tried to flee after he had been pointed out by a woman bettor as a tout who had cashed a winning mutuels ticket for her and then vanished. Mobley was charged with larceny, disorderly conduct, and resisting arrest.

ARRESTED BRIDE, 17, SPURNS FOOD —ALL FOR LOVE

Mrs. Betty Lou Camm Dice, 17, blonde, blue eyed bride of four days, spurned her fried bread, syrup, and coffee in the Lake county jail last night and said she would not eat until she is reunited with her husband, Harold, 36, an employe of a Waukegan auto body shop.

They were married in an elopement to Woodstock May 24, and took an apartment in the Plaza hotel, 215 Madison st., Waukegan. Mrs. Dice gave her age as 19.

Yesterday her mother, Mrs. Earl Camm, 5389 Bowmanville av., obtained warrants charging Harold with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and her daughter with delinquency. Both were placed in the Lake county jail pending a hearing June 4 before Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt.

"I love him and I'll never go home again," said Betty Lou. "As long as they keep me in jail I won't eat."

"Our love will never cool," said Harold who, police said, spent 10 years in Waupon penitentiary in Wisconsin for highway robbery.

RUSSIAN NEED FOR CHICAGO FOOD EXPLAINED

Need of the Russian people for a trainload of food being asked of Chicagoans was explained by Morris Lewis, executive director of Russian War Relief, Inc., last night at a dinner in Hotel Continental to 100 leaders of the city's electrical industry. Another speaker was Municipal Judge Samuel Heller.

"When the Germans invaded the Ukraine they destroyed practically everything," Lewis told the guests of Paul Worth and Murray Rosenblum, heads of the relief organization's electrical division. "The Russians since have had neither men nor opportunity to rehabilitate their agriculture. That's why we're being asked to help.

"We're asking for rice, prunes, raisins, apricots, sugar [if we can get it], condensed and evaporated milk, baking chocolate, malted milk, strained baby foods, bouillon cubes, and hard candy."

PROMISES STEPS TO PLACE MORE MEAT IN STORES

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Rep. Clinton P. Anderson [D., N. M.], who will become secretary of agriculture and war food administrator July 1, today promised efforts to channel more meat "to the grocery store where you and I can buy it."

In an interview prepared for broadcast, he said that a civilian now must eat in restaurants part of the time "if he expects to get his share." That, he said, "tends to make it a rich man's war, which many of us do not like."

Asked if there is "a specific way we can get better channeling to the grocery store," Anderson said he believed the OPA's recent program for allotments to sections of the country where meat has not been plentiful will help the situation greatly."

SUPREME COURT WILL DECIDE ON 'DEATH' CLAUSE

Stone Rules Self Eligible; Makes Quorum of Six

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Chief Justice Stone today opened the way for a Supreme court decision months hence on long stalled litigation over constitutionality of the "death sentence clause" of the public utility holding company act.

The chief justice decided he is eligible to consider the case, thus giving the court a legal quorum of six members to decide the issue. Directly involved is North American Company of New York.

The securities and exchange commission ordered North American to divest itself of securities of various companies it operated. North American in February, 1943, asked the court to determine the validity of the order, but it was shortly afterward made known that four justices had disqualified themselves.

Others Never Disclosed

Names of the three justices other than Stone have not been made public, but it is presumed they are Justice Douglas, former SEC chairman, and Justice Murphy and Jackson, former attorneys general. Stone did not disclose why he had changed his position.

The "death sentence" clause requires interstate gas and electric holding companies to limit operation to a single integrated system. The court set Oct. 8, the start of the next term, for hearing argument.

At the same time it will hear companion cases on the same issue involving Engineers' Public Service company, operator of gas and electric properties serving 12 states; American Power and Light Company of Maine; and Electric Power and Light corporation, which operates in the vicinity of the Gulf of Mexico.

Union Loses Case

The court in a 5 to 4 decision overruled a labor union's attempt to knock out part of a lower court decree so the national labor relations board could increase a back pay award. The opinion affirmed the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in a case involving 209 workers and the Eagle-Picher Mining and Smelting company and the Eagle-Picher Lead company, operating in Oklahoma, Missouri, and Kansas.

The board had set up a formula for back pay to the workers and obtained a court order enforcing it. Two years later, in 1943, the board determined it should have computed the award differently and sought unsuccessfully to vacate the decree. The CIO Mine and Smelter Workers' union carried the appeal to the Supreme court.

The majority opinion by Justice Roberts, in which Justices Reed, Stone, Frankfurter, and Jackson concurred, said that unquestionably the national labor relations act intended to vest exclusive jurisdiction in the courts once the board had reached its determination and applied for enforcement.

Justices Murphy, Black, Douglas, and Rutledge dissented.

GRAINS STRONG; WHEAT, RYE, AND CORN SET HIGHS

All deliveries of wheat, corn, rye, and December oats reached new seasonal highs yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Talk of the tight food situation in Europe bolstered by Herbert Hoover's conference with President Truman stimulated speculative buying.

Reports of expected additional buying of flour by the government strengthened wheat futures, and heavy buying by mills was reported.

Wheat futures closed 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents a bushel higher, corn ⅛ to ⅓ higher with July corn selling at the ceiling, oats ⅝ to 1⅝ higher, rye 1⅛ to 2½ higher, and barley ⅞ to 1⅛ higher.

RAU DENIES FTC CHARGE AGAINST FURNITURE MEN

Roscoe Rau, executive vice president of the National Retail Furniture association, yesterday denied the federal trade commission's charges against the association, its officers, and directors, and member trade associations of conspiracy to suppress competition and restrain trade in the sale of furniture.

"The motives and programs conducted by the association are entirely within the objectives sought by the federal trade commission," Rau said. "We cannot understand just what technicalities may be the bases of the complaints until they are analyzed."

Corn Planting 'Keeps Piggie from Market'

Many thousands of meat animals stayed home from market yesterday when farmers hurried into the fields between showers to plant the corn to fatten next year's butchering crop. Receipts at many other markets were more curtailed by the field work than was volume in Chicago, because heavy rains in some areas tributary to this market stopped field work temporarily.

An increase in shipments of cattle to the Chicago stock yards did not equal the decrease in movement to the other points, and the overall meat supply situation was estimated to be the tightest in the history of the packing industry.

Supply Shrinkage Shown

The 20 main markets received 205,000 cattle, hogs, and sheep, a decrease of 22 per cent from a week earlier and 39 per cent less than a year ago.

Cattle receipts in Chicago increased sharply to 18,000 head, the largest Monday total in four weeks, and the second biggest in 10 weeks. However, 19 larger outside markets received 25 per cent fewer cattle than a week earlier and 11 per cent fewer than last year.

Hog Run at New Low

The Chicago hog run shrank 16 per cent from last week, and the 19 other centers had a 28 per cent drop to a new Monday low for 8 per cent below the previous low this year. Sheep and lamb receipts at all 20 markets showed a 26 per cent drop from last week and 32 per cent from a year ago.

Steers, which moved up late last week, fell 15 to 20 cents. Other cattle were steady to higher.

Best lambs available sold steady. Ceiling prices again were paid for all hogs.

PROPOSES HELP FOR RAILS IN ICC RATE DECISION

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—A plan to help railroads adjust to the far reaching effects of the interstate commerce commission's recent uniform freight rate ruling was offered today in congress.

Under the proposal the rail lines would be allowed to make agreements among themselves without violating anti-trust laws if the ICC approved the pacts. Such agreements are illegal unless the ICC initiates the action.

Sponsors of the plan, incorporated in a bill introduced by Rep. Bulwinkle [D., N. C.], said the ICC decision had "emphasized the need" for legislation to simplify "the complex job of establishing fair and just rates." The ruling called for a uniform pattern of class rate charges to eliminate present higher rates on southern and western manufactured products.

OPA SUSPENDS MARHOEFER CO., ALLOWS MERGER

Another Packing Firm to Absorb Business

The Marhoefer Packing company, 820 Fulton st., doing a $10,000,000 business annually, was suspended from dealing in rationed meats for the duration of the war by the office of price administration yesterday on charges of violating OPA regulations.

Almost immediately afterward, the company announced that, thru stipulation with the OPA, it would be absorbed by another packing house of comparable scope. This was one of the largest concerns—if not the largest—forced out of business by the OPA.

Huge Discrepancies Charged

The suspension, effective July 1, was ordered by OPA Hearing Commissioner Kenneth Lemmert on agreement of the OPA and John H. Marhoefer, president of the company. The company was accused of discrepancies of more than three million red points in its account, of selling meats without points, and of charging over-ceiling prices. The hearing, which began April 3, filled 2,000 transcript pages, and was the longest in local OPA records. The company challenged the government's charges.

After the suspension order, Harry L. Rudnick, company lawyer, announced the plan for absorption of the company by another packing house.

Marhoefer Also Suspended

He declined to identify the company, but said that its annual business equaled that of the Marhoefer firm. It will take over Marhoefer's facilities in Chicago and in Fort Wayne, Ind., he said, and Marhoefer will join the merged organization as production executive. Marhoefer individually was suspended with his company, but it was explained that in his new position he will not handle any form of rationing.

DUTCH DEBT 4¾ BILLION

The Netherlands national debt has been estimated at more than 4 billion 725 million dollars by Dr. Gerardus W. M. Huysmans, Netherlands minister of finance, Aneta, Official Netherlands news agency, reports. At the end of 1939 the national debt stood at 1 billion 333 millions.

URGES INQUIRY IN SEC APPROVED SALE OF UTILITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., May 28—Rep. Jensen [R., Ia.] today made public a letter he wrote to Ganson Purcell, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, asking immediate investigation of the sale of Nebraska Power company by American Power and Light company, which the SEC authorized, to Omaha Citizens' Committee, Inc. He said "revelations charging fraud and conspiracy" in the transaction recently were called to Purcell's attention.

"As matters stand, it would appear to me that unless early action is taken, you run a grave risk of being confronted with the popular conclusion that the SEC has either been used as a catspaw or that somebody within the SEC staff was really the 'inside man' in this deal," Jensen wrote.

Jensen questioned whether the "Omaha Citizens" group was "a bona fide public body or a privately owned device to capture a rich utility property by issuing bonds out of revenues gained in part by avoidance of federal taxes."

PROPOSE A. T. & T. LARGE OFFERING OF DEBENTURES

New York, May 28 (AP)—Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, today said the company was preparing a registration statement for filing with the securities and exchange commission covering a possible 175 million dollars of 2¾ per cent debentures.

Proceeds would be used to retire at 105 and interest on Oct. 1 the company's outstanding 175 millions 25 year 3¼ per cent debentures due Oct. 1, 1961. Gifford said if the proposed new debentures were issued the company would sell them under competitive bidding.

Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, Atlanta, Ga., announced plans for issuance of 45 millions of 40 year debentures bearing 2.75 per cent interest. A registration certificate has been filed with the SEC. Proceeds will be used to redeem at 103 outstanding 25 year 3.25 per cent debentures due April 1, 1962.

REID, MURDOCH, SPRAGUE JOIN IN BIG FOOD FIRM

Cummings to Head Consol. Grocers

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Plans for the formation of Consolidated Grocers corporation, which will be one of the nation's largest food companies, and for the acquisition of Reid, Murdoch & Co., 92 year old Chicago wholesale grocery house, were announced yesterday by Nathan Cummings, wholesale grocery company operator.

Nathan Cummings

A onetime Boston shoe store messenger, Cummings at 48 will be president and majority stockholder of Consolidated, which has established executive offices in the Field building. The new company, which will have operating assets of more that 20 million dollars, is to be incorporated in Maryland today. When the corporate structure is completed Consolidated and its subsidiaries will operate 52 branches in every part of the country, 19 canneries, 15 pickle stations, and seven grocery processing plants.

Each to Be Separate Entity

Reid, Murdoch and the other divisions, or subsidiaries, will be operated as separate entities, each with its own officers, and will compete with each other where their areas overlap. Cummings explained that the various divisions will be operated in much the same way that General Motors corporation runs its divisions.

Consolidated will be an expansion of Sprague Warner-Kenny corporation, of which Cummings is president. Col. A. A. Sprague, chairman of Sprague Warner-Kenny, and S. M. Kennedy, executive vice president, will hold the same positions in the new corporation.

In addition to Reid, Murdoch, Consolidated will control the Sprague Warner division, C. D. Kenny division, Western Grocery company, Marshall Canning company, and Dannemiller Grocery company, a 75 year old Canton, O., company being purchased. These units have an annual volume of about 100 million dollars and serve 100,000 retail grocers and a large number of hotels and institutions. All have been in business about 50 years.

Formed 92 Years Ago

Reid, Murdoch was established in 1853 at Dubuque, Ia., and 12 years later came to Chicago. Horace Armstrong, who succeeded his father as president in 1920, will remain president and Cummings will become chairman of the board. John MacMahon, chairman, will become vice chairman and Louis S. Anderson will continue as executive vice president.

The stock which will give Consolidated ownership of Reid, Murdoch is being acquired from Armstrong, other employes, and two estates.

Cummings started his business career at 14 as the shoe store messenger. Later he became a shoe salesman in Montreal and then a partner in his father's shoe store there. In 1934 he obtained control of McCormick's Ltd., a London, Ont., candy and biscuit manufacturing chain, continuing as president until he sold out in 1939.

Merges Sprague and Kenny

In the same year he was offered the presidency of the C. D. Kenny company of Baltimore, a leading eastern wholesale grocery house. In July, 1942, he purchased majority control of Sprague, Warner & Co. of Chicago and consolidated it with Kenny.

Cummings said it was too early to indicate whether there would be any public offering of stock in Consolidated. The company plans a broad expansion after the war in the food field. He said the former huge Sprague warehouse at 505 N. Sacramento blvd., taken to provide quarters for the Bendix Aviation corporation, would not be repurchased from the government because it was too large to be used efficiently as a grocery warehouse.

C.E.D. Urges Steps to Build World Trade

The peace and prosperity of the United States and the other countries of the world would be advanced by the reëstablishment and increasing development of world trade, the committee fo. economic development said yesterday. It urged the lowering of the protective tariff as a vital step.

The C. E. D. recommended:

1. Renewal and strengthening of the reciprocal trade agreements act by making the 50 per cent limit to reductions apply to the rates existing in 1945.

Ask Vigorous Negotiation

2. Press vigorously negotiations under the act so as to bring about substantial rate reductions.

[The house on Saturday approved a bill extending the reciprocal trade act three years and giving the President new powers to cut tariffs up to 50 per cent below rates prevailing Jan. 1, 1945, in reciprocal agreements with other nations. The bill goes to the senate.]

The committee's recommendations were given in a policy statement on international trade, foreign investment, domestic employment, and Bretton Woods proposals.

Specific recommendations for strengthening reciprocal trade after the war included:

1. Intensive efforts to achieve quickly a high level of productive post-war employment within the United States.

2. Prompt and final settlement of war debts and other international obligations.

Reduce Artificial Barriers

3. Reduction or elimination of purely artificial barriers to world trade whether they be tariffs, import quotas, exchange controls, or restrictive business agreements.

4. Place the international movement of capital, both public and private, on an economic basis.

5. American coöperation with other countries thru membership in official international organizations to facilitate and expand world commerce, health, education, the arts, and other elements in a higher world standard of living.

The committee urged that the Export-Import bank be used, and its lending power be strengthened if necessary, to carry out and assist international financial transactions which are in the interest of the United States, but which are either unsuitable or impractical from the standpoint of private funds.

Bloomington, Ill., May 28 (AP)—Shareholders of the Williams Oil-O-Matic Heating corporation voted today for a merger with the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company of Detroit, Mich., and officials said Eureka stockholders meeting at Detroit also had approved the plan.

Sale of 122,000 shares of Eureka stock to cover the company's expansion, the only step remaining to complete the merger, was expected this week. Under the proposal, Williams stockholders will receive one share of Eureka stock for each two shares of Williams. W. A. Matheson, president of Williams, will become manager of the Williams Oil-O-Matic division of the Eureka company, and also a vice president and director of the Eureka company.

Reduced Military Needs Free Wire for Civilians

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Requirements of the military services for communications wire have been reduced almost one-third, the WPB reported today. Requirements are on a monthly basis of 218,000 miles, compared with 313,500 miles heretofore. The reduction is expected to free copper wire for civilian electrical fixtures, home appliances, "and just about everything," a WPB official said.

Market Holiday

Securities and commodities markets and banks will be closed tomorrow in observance of Memorial day. Live stock markets will remain open. Canadian markets will be open as usual.

Surplus Land Top Priority Goes to U. S

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—The surplus property board tonight gave the federal government top priority on the purchase of surplus agricultural, grazing, mineral, residential, and small business real estate.

The regulation does not cover the disposal of industrial property, war housing, shipyards, or airports which may be declared surplus. Separate regulations will be issued to govern their sale.

State, Local Units Next

State and local governments were given second priority in the regulation governing disposal of nonindustrial real property, with other purchasers becoming eligible in the following order:

Former owner, tenant of the former owner; veterans of World War II, and the wives and children of deceased service men; "owner-operators," defined as prospective buyers who will purchase and operate the farm land, and finally, nonprofit institutions, such as schools and colleges.

Issuance of the regulation was expected to help start real property sales rolling after a long delay.

SPB spokesmen have acknowledged much of the delay was caused by the difficulty of writing practical regulations which would comply with last October's surplus property act. William L. Clayton, former surplus property administrator, termed that act "unworkable."

Get 90 Days to Decide

Each class of priority holder will have 90 days to exercise purchasing rights before the property is offered to the next eligible buyers. Land and property remaining after all priority holders have had a chance to buy will be placed on general sale.

If in the disposal of some farm lands those holding higher priorities than veterans do not exercise them, the properties will be broken up into familily sized farm units and then offered first to the veterans, then to owner-operators, then to nonprofit institutions, and finally to individuals having no priority.

Disposal agencies will open offices in all parts of the country, the first probably within 60 days at Illiopolis, Ill.

DONALD D. DAVIS ELECTED PAPER COMPANY HEAD

Minneapolis, May 28 (AP)—Donald D. Davis, former WPB vice chairman in charge of field operations, today was elected president of the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company. He succeeded R. H. M. Robinson who became chairman of the board.

Davis joined the company last November after resigning from WPB Sept. 30 when Donald M. Nelson refired as chairman. Prior to going to Washington late in 1942 he had been president of General Mills.

The annual meeting of stockholders approved a proposal to refund the balance of approximately 6 million dollars of 5 per cent income bonds and authorized issuance of 6 million of new mortgage bonds.

BANK PREDICTS LITTLE EASING OF WAR CURBS

Production to Dip, Then Expand

The final phase of the war definitely will be a war time and not a peace time economy, the Guaranty Trust Company of New York said yesterday in its monthly review of business and financial conditions. In the next few months, particularly, little "relief from emergency strains" is to be expected.

"The net decline in the total volume of war production in the next three months is estimated at between 10 and 15 per cent," the review said. "Thereafter no further reductions are expected until the long 'pipe lines' to the Pacific have been filled. Six months from now production as a whole probably will be almost equal to that in 1943."

Expect Little Unemployment

High production for the war against Japan will require that a large part of those now employed in war production stay on the job, it said.

Unemployment is not expected to total more than 2.5 million at the end of the next 12 months as against the present total of approximately 1 million. Much of the prospective unemployment, moreover, may be purely temporary, arising from the inevitable slight delay in shifting jobs.

Transport Restraints Likely

"The end of fighting in Europe is regarded as likely to increase, rather than diminish, the difficulties of the railroads for some time to come, since the building up of supply lines to the Pacific will coincide in point of time with heavy shipments of goods for European military supply, relief, and rehabilitation, together with the seasonal movement of the nation's crops," the review said.

The bank predicted that most types of civilian goods will become available in increased quantities "only gradually" despite complete restoration of "spot" authorizations for civilian production, revocation of certain production bans, and release of steel, copper, and aluminum for purchase in the free market in such quantities as are no longer needed for war or essential civilian purposes.

WFA Accuses 2 Companies, 4 Persons of Cornering Rye

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—Charging that a corner had been created in the Chicago rye market in May, 1944, the war food administration moved today for the suspension of two corporations and four individuals from "all contract markets." A hearing was set for July 2 in Washington before a referee to be named by WFA.

The complaint named General Foods corporation and its executive vice president, Charles W. Metcalf; Daniel F. Rice & Co., Chicago, and Daniel F. Rice, Lawrence J. Ryan, and Philip R. O'Brien, Chicago Board of Trade members.

Deny Corner Operations

Denials that they took part in any corner operation, or that any corner existed, were issued by Metcalf in New York and by Rice and Ryan in Chicago. O'Brien, who resigned last July 1 after more than three terms as president of the Board of Trade, was out of town and was not immediately reachable.

The WFA complaint asserted that those named had manipulated the price of rye futures from December, 1942, to May, 1944, the time of the alleged corner. Violation of the commodity exchange act was alleged. The complaint was signed by Ashley Sellers, assistant war food administrator.

Charge 89 Pct. Controled

It alleged that in May, 1944, they held or controled about 11,805,000 bushels of cash rye, representing 89 per cent of the total deliverable supply in Chicago, and that of this amount 3 million bushels had been imported from Canada and delivered by "shorts" on May, 1944, futures contracts. WFA said that at the same time Rice & Co. and Rice and Ryan held or controled 2 million bushels in store in Canada which had been delivered on May futures contracts on the Winnipeg exchange.

Rice denied that either he or his firm "has ever attempted to corner the rye market or any other market." Ryan said the complaint was "the first I knew of any corner in 1944 May rye and as I remember there were liberal deliveries and an open market at all times." Metcalf asserted that General Foods "did not profit as a result of its rye operations."

MARSHALL FIELD HALTS SALE OF FIELD BUILDING

BY AL CHASE

A transaction under which the Field building, 135 S. La Salle st., was to have been sold Thursday for 19 million dollars, was called off last night by Marshall Field, owner of the building.

A meeting had been arranged for Thursday in the Field building office of C. Robert Lazerus, president of the Mortgage corporation, to close the deal in which he was sole broker. Field, Lazerus, and Herbert Becker, Chicago attorney, were to have been there as was Floyd B Odlum, president of Atlas corporation, one of the nation's largest investing companies.

Odlum posted a check for 1 million dollars when he made his 19 million offer in New York recently, and was prepared to take title Thursday, presumably on behalf of Atlas, until Field's action last night after publication of details of the transaction. Field previously had refused a 16½ million offer by Chicago interests. It had been said Field was considering giving the building to his son, Marshall Field IV., who lives in Lake Forest and has expressed the opinion title should remain in the family.

BRASS MILL PRODUCTS RELEASED AT ONCE BY WPB FOR CIVILIAN USE

Washington, D. C., May 28 (AP)—The WPB today released brass mill products for immediate delivery to civilian nonpriority purchasers. The action, five weeks ahead of the scheduled July 1 release of steel, copper, and aluminum, reflected a sudden loosening of supply of brass mill products because of the drop in army demands for shells and bullets, items cut back soonest after the European war ended.

Like other copper products, brass mill output has been controled rigidly by allotments to essential users under the WPB controled materials plans which is to be "open-ended" July 1 to permit the filling of nonpriority orders by civilian goods manufacturers when the materials are available.

Ford Buys Atlanta, Ga., Site for Assembly Plant

Detroit, Mich., May 28 (AP)—Ford Motor company announced today the purchase of an 82 acre site near Atlanta, Ga., to be used for a post-war assembly plant and parts depot. The plant will be designed for the assembly of 350 automobiles daily.

STOCK AVERAGE CLIMBS TO NEW HIGH SINCE 1937

Post-War Outlook Aids Price Rise

New York, May 28 (AP)—Urgent investment demand today lifted the stock market average to a new peak since Aug. 25, 1937. Purchasing inspiration was based partly on WPB Chairman Krug's optimism over the post-war business outlook, reconversion plans, and his promise that government would keep hands off industry and quickly relax civilian production controls.

Earnings and dividends were helpful. Cheap money and dwindling bond yields also affected buying.

Turnover Tops 1½ Million

Dealings were relatively fast at intervals after the start. Transfers were 1,570,000 shares, compared with 1,300,000 Friday and were the largest since May 8. Pivotal industrials led the rise but individual rails exhibited strength.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.7 at 66.6, the widest jump since April 16.

Conspicuous in the rise were Sears-Roebuck, in further response to split up talk; Philip Morris, on last week's split up proposal, and American Telephone, reflecting a big refunding program.

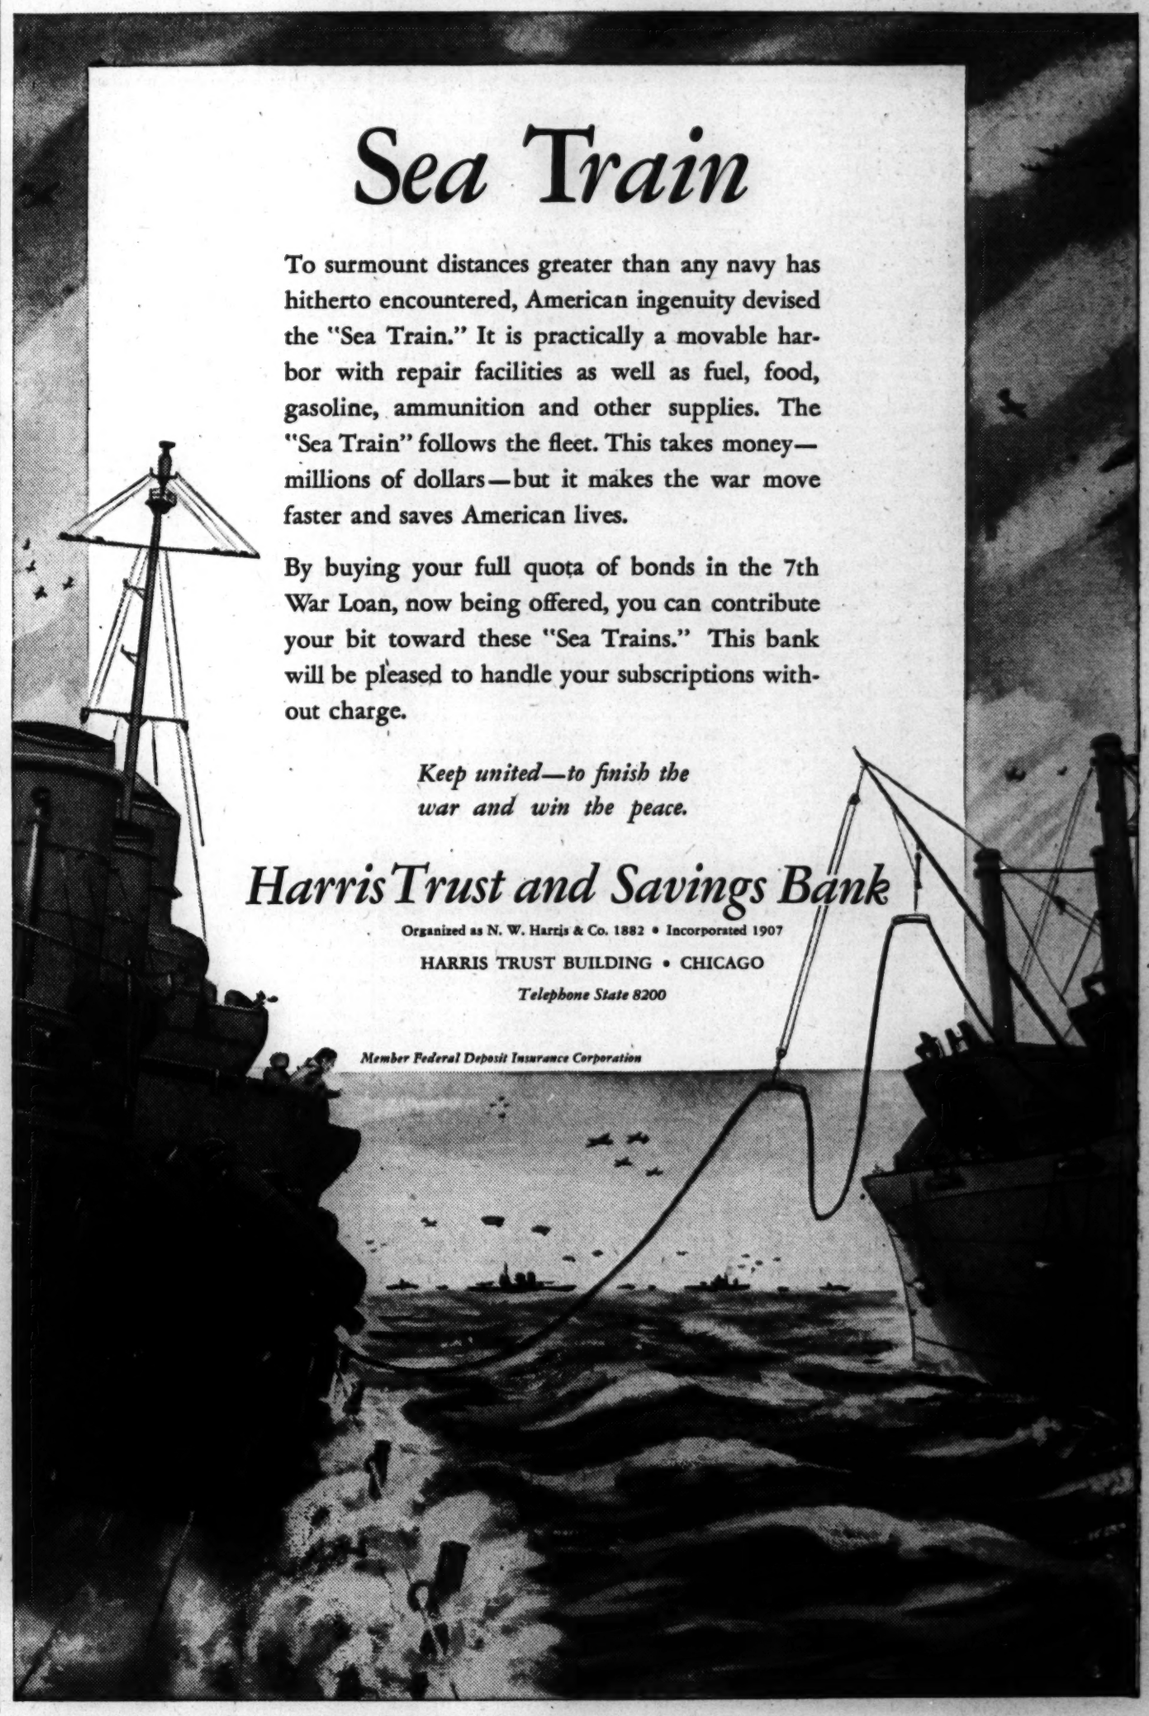
Childs preferred rose about 10 points at one time on the Curb, but backed away to finish up 3¼.

BOND PRICES GAIN

New York, May 28 (AP)—Bond prices averaged higher today with substantial help from medium priced rails. Advances of fractions to more than a point were well distributed among the carriers and other groups had a sizable quota of modest gains against scattered losers. Transfers of $9,780,000 compared with $9,970,000 last Friday.

CHICAGO PRICES HIGHER

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday with turnover at 43,000 shares. Volume leaders included Marshall Field & Co., New York Central, and Miller & Hart, up fractions; Chicago corporation, down ¼, and Aviation corporation, unchanged. Among the new highs were Sears, Roebuck & Co., up 8¾; Montgomery Ward, up 3½, and Paramount Pictures, up 1¼.



Sea Train
To surmount distances greater than any navy has hitherto encountered, American ingenuity devised the "Sea Train." It is practically a movable harbor with repair facilities as well as fuel, food, gasoline, ammunition and other supplies. The "Sea Train" follows the fleet. This takes money—millions of dollars—but it makes the war move faster and saves American lives.
By buying your full quota of bonds in the 7th War Loan, now being offered, you can contribute your bit toward these "Sea Trains." This bank will be pleased to handle your subscriptions without charge.
Keep united—to finish the war and win the peace.

FBI MAN RACES EX-FELON AND CAPTURES HIM

George J. Soeder, 48, ex-convict and alleged leader of a nation-wide gang of automobile thieves, was captured yesterday in an alley in the 2400 block on N. Clark st. by a federal bureau of investigation agent. He had been a fugitive since March 15, when he failed to appear in federal District court for arraignment on 16 indictments charging violation of the stolen automobile act.

Spencer J. Drayton, head of the Chicago FBI office, said the agent was standing on the southwest corner of Clark and Fullerton sts. when he spotted Soeder and a woman walking down the street. Soeder spotted the agent at the same time and fled, Drayton said.

The agent chased Soeder into an alley and fired his revolver into the air, shouting for the fugitive to halt. The agent caught up with Soeder just as the fugitive was attempting to scale a board fence. Soeder will be turned over to the United States marshal, Drayton said.

Dr. Ross Granted New Trial in Abortion Case

Dr. Edward J. Ross, 56, of 4300 Clarendon av., who was found guilty by a jury last month on a charge of abortion, was granted a new trial yesterday by Judge Peter H. Schwaba in Criminal court. The court sustained the plea of Atty. Harry Busch that the evidence was insufficient for a conviction in the case, which involved the wife of a soldier.
